CIRCUIT COURT FOR GARRETT COUNTY
MARYLAND

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County: The Respondents, Gladys Skipper, Janet Skipper and Ross Skipper, and any unknown heirs, devisees or personal representatives of Gladys Skipper, Janet Skipper and Ross Skipper, are hereby notified that Complainant, Iris Violet Skipper, has filed an action to quiet title to real estate situate in Election District No. 14 of Garrett County, said real estate having been purchased by Complainant and her late husband, James Leo Skipper, from the heirs of Romanus M. Skipper, by deed dated December 4, 1958, and recorded in Liber No. 214, folio 264, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland. The said Respondents are heirs of Romanus Skipper and, as such, were apparently owners of an undivided one-seventh interest in the subject property, but never joined in the aforesaid deed. The substance of the allegations is that Complainant alleges that she has adversely possessed the one-seventh interest of Respondents for more than twenty years and she prays for a decree that she has absolute ownership and the right of disposition of said property, and stated that the last known address of Respondents, Gladys Skipper, Janet Skipper, Ross Skipper and any unknown heirs, devisees or personal representatives of Gladys Skipper, Janet Skipper or Ross Skipper is unknown.

RESPONDENTS, GLADYS SKIPPER, JANET SKIPPER, ROSS SKIPPER AND ANY UNKNOWN HEIRS, DIVISEES OR PERSONAL REPRESENTATIVES OF GLADYS SKIPPER, JANET SKIPPER OR ROSS SKIPPER, ARE HEREBY WARNED THAT FAILURE TO FILE AN ANSWER OR OTHER DEFENSE ON OR BEFORE December 21st, 1981, MAY RESULT IN THE CASE PROCEEDING AGAINST THEM BY DEFAULT.

Pickett is the Defendant, the same being No. 8032 Equity, the undersigned hereby gives notice that they will offer for sale and sell at public auction to the highest bidder

at the hour of 11:00 a.m. EST on the property hereinafter described. The property to be sold is known and designated as Lots Nos. 6 & 7 in the Roger W. Bray Subdivision and described as follows:

1—Lot No. 6: BEGINNING at a stake standing in the margin of a 40 foot street, at a point which is north 60° 36' east, 261.34 feet and north 36° 52' 45" west, 240 feet from the beginning of the 19.18 acre tract of land of which this lot is a part, and running thence, north 36° 52' 45" west, 200 feet to a stake; thence north 53° 07' 15" east, 100 feet to a stake, thence south 36° 52' 45" east, 200 feet to a stake; thence south 53° 07' 15" west, 100 feet to the beginning, containing 20,000 square feet, more or less, and being the property conveyed to the said C. Arthur Ross Metheny and Linda J. Pickett by deed from Donald P. Welch and wife, dated May 20, 1978 and recorded in Liber No. 389, folio 245, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

2—Lot No. 7: BEGINNING at a stake in the northerly margin of a 40 foot street, said beginning stake being the fourth corner of said Lot No. 6, and running thence from said beginning stake with the third line reversed of said Lot No. 6, north 36° 52' 45" west 200.0 feet to a stake, thence north 53° 07' 15" east 100.0 feet to a stake, thence south 36° 52' 45" east 200.0 feet to a stake in the northerly margin of said 40 foot street, thence with said northerly margin, south 53° 07' 15" west 100.0 feet to the beginning, containing 0.46 of an acre, more or less, and being the property conveyed to the said C. Arthur Ross Metheny and Linda J. Pickett by deed from Roger Wayne Bray and wife, dated July 27, 1978 and recorded in Liber No. 390, folio 747, one of the said Land Records.

Together with a right of way over the aforesaid 40 foot street and such other streets as are in said subdivision.

Said property is subject to the following restrictive covenants:

1—No building or structure other than a private residence and private garage for use in connection therewith shall be built or placed upon said premises, and the premises or building built or placed upon said premises, shall not at any time be used for the purpose of any trade, business or manufacturing whatsoever, except that the dwelling built thereon may be used as an office. This restriction shall prohibit placing of trailers or mobile home on said property to be used as a dwelling.

2—The exterior of any dwelling built on said property shall be constructed of new materials which are usually accepted and shall be finished or painted in such a manner as not to detract from the natural beauty of the surroundings.

3—No chickens, ducks, geese or other type or kind of fowl, nor horses, ponies, cows, or livestock of any kind whatsoever may be kept, maintained or bred on any lot or lots or in any dwelling or building erected thereon, nor shall any owner or occupant be permitted to breed domestic animals for commercial purposes. Nothing in this paragraph contained shall prevent the keeping upon the premises of usual household pets.

4—Any dwelling placed on said property shall be completed within eighteen months from the time of the commencement to the completion of same.

5—The covenants, restrictions, reservations and limitations above set forth shall run with and bind the property hereby conveyed and shall inure to the benefit of and be enforceable by and binding upon the parties hereto and all persons claiming under them.

Said property is improved with a rambler type dwelling, 45 feet x 24 feet with aluminum siding containing living room, dining room, kitchen, three bedrooms, 1½ baths on the first floor and a family room and laundry room in the basement. Said dwelling is heated by electricity. Said property is further improved with a well and septic system and a swimming pool 18 feet x 36 feet with filter and patio.

State, county and municipal taxes shall be pro-rated to date of final ratification.

Terms of sale: ⅓ cash on day of sale and balance on ratification of the sale by the Court.

Outstanding Values In Used Automobiles

When you go shopping for a used automobile, you want to find one that's affordable, that's in top condition, and that fits your own personal transportation needs. When you've met these requirements plus find one that's exceptionally attractive at a real bargain price, you've really got an outstanding buy. From our big selection of fine used automobiles, we have listed three exceptionally good ones.

1976 Chevrolet Monza 2-Door Hatchback. An outstanding example of a sporty car that's inexpensive to operate. Four-cylinder engine, automatic transmission, air conditioning, and lower than average mileage. This one has the deluxe seats and a beautiful dark red exterior and is priced way below book price.

1978 Mercury Zephyr 4-Door Sedan. An excellent value in a basic automobile. This particular car has low mileage, automatic transmission, excellent body and mechanical parts, and is economical to buy and operate. And, we've priced it way below book value. If you want a good, plain car at a real bargain price, try this one.

ARMED SERVICES REVIEW

Marine Promoted To Corporal Rank

Gregory A. Friend, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Friend, Oakland, was recently promoted in the U.S. Marine Corps to the rank of Corporal.

Friend is presently stationed at the Marine Corps Base in Quantico, Virginia. He is a 1977 graduate of Southern High School. His wife, Doreen, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Friend, Oakland.

Second Lt. Deborah K. Slane, daughter of Thelma Slane, Grantsville, has graduated from the U.S. Air Force flight nurse course at Brooks Air Force Base, Texas.

Now skilled in the management and nursing care of patients in flight, the nurse is being assigned for duty at Andrews Air Force Base, with the 22nd Missile Security Squadron.

She is a 1980 graduate of the University of Maryland, Baltimore.

Marine Pfc. Roger W. Wiltrout, whose wife, Twila, is the daughter of John W. George of Grantsville, has been meritoriously promoted to his present rank upon graduation from recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S.C.

He received the early promotion for his superior performance during all phases of the 11-week training cycle, which emphasized physical conditioning, self-discipline and teamwork.

He joined the Marine Corps in May 1981.

Completes Basic

Airman Mark A. Grimm, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis L. Grimm, Mt. Lake Park, recently completed basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas.

During the six weeks at Lackland, the airman studied the U.S. Air Force mission, organization and customs. In addition, he earned credit toward an associate degree in applied sciences.

Airman Grimm has been assigned to Keesler AFB, Mississippi, for specialized training in the electronics and telecommunication field.

Grimm is a 1981 graduate of Southern High School.

Enlists In Navy

Debra Hartman of Bradley Manor, Oakland, has recently enlisted in the United States Navy and is preparing to leave for basic training in Orlando, Florida.

A 1981 graduate of Southern High School, Miss Hartman enlisted under the Navy's Seaman Apprentice Program and she will receive specialized training in that field.

4-H Club News

Grantsville 4-H Club met November 2 with Dwayne Wilhelm presiding. Eugene Broadwater led the group in pledges.

A Christmas Party was planned for the next meeting and a Roller Skating Party scheduled for Nov. 15 at Moon Glo Skating Rink.

A demonstration on patch pillows was given by Vivian Wilt.

Refreshments were served by Matthew and Patricia Pope.

State Park Cabin Rental Applications Set

The 1982 summer season cabin rental applications are now available from the Maryland Park Service. The applications, which must be filed in order to be eligible for the lottery-type computer selection, must be received in the Annapolis office of the Maryland Park Service between December 1, 1981, and Monday, January 11, 1982. Only one application will be accepted from each person or address.

Cabins are available at Herrington Manor, New Germany, Elk Neck and Martinak State Parks with rental fees varying depending on cabin size and location. At Herrington Manor and New Germany, cabins are available for two, four or six persons. Cabins at Elk Neck and the Martinak cabin are built to accommodate four persons. the season begins Saturday, June 12, 1982, and runs through September 11, 1982. All reservations must be made Saturday to Saturday.

All applications will be acknowledged after the computer selection which takes place the third week in January. Upon confirmation of a reservation, a $50 non-refundable deposit will be required.

Additional information and applications may be obtained from the Maryland Park Service, Department of Natural Resources, Tawes State Office Building, Annapolis, Md. 21401 — (301) 269-3771 or from the four parks which have cabins for rent.

Synfuels Project Director Seeks Prospectus Funds

Officers of the WESTMAR Synfuels Corporation asked the Maryland Coal Association Thursday evening for $50,000 to $100,000 to publish a prospectus for the projected plant. The book will provide financial and technical data thought to interest investors.

Fifty-four coal producers attending the dinner meeting at the Grantsville Holiday Inn heard Jack Meyer, WESTMAR project director, describe the synfuel process which turns coal into methanol gas and other products including electricity and a gasoline substitute.

Meyer said the plant would exclusively use about three and a half million tons of Western Maryland coal each year; last year area miners sold three million tons. An added benefit to the coal producers is significant reductions in transportation costs, allowing them to sell coal cheaper than other producers.

Estimated cost to ship the high-sulfur content coal and other coal to the probable WESTMAR plant site will be about $25 a ton. Coal producers sending their product to the Port of Baltimore for sales overseas must reportedly charge $45 to $50 a ton to remain competitive.

Also speaking for the synthetic fuel plant were Bechtel employees Jack Kemeny, Dave Brannen, and Pete Danforth. Kemeny is the international firm's manager of business development. Brannen is a management process engineer and Danforth is a business developer.

Friday through Sunday chance of showers in the mountains. Friday, otherwise fair weather. Milder with highs averaging in the 50s to low 60s. Lows in the 30s and low 40s. Friday and Saturday warming to 40s to low 50s Sunday.

Browning's Issues Statement On Uphold Shoplifting, Suicide Case

An article which appeared in last week's issue of The Republican and which was subsequently picked up by numerous other newspapers has caused the issuance of a statement from Browning's Supermarket in Oakland.

The story concerned the suicide of a 73-year-old Friendsville man who, on November 6, had been arrested for shoplifting at Browning's. A news story covering his arrest appeared in the November 11 edition of The Republican and, on the following day, Uphold was found dead at his home from an self-inflicted gunshot wound. Members of Uphold's family claimed that he was innocent of the shoplifting charge and ended his life because of the humiliation he suffered in being arrested. The family said that Mr. Uphold placed some cans of snuff, which kept falling through the shopping cart and onto the floor, into his pocket and then left the store, momentarily forgetting to pay for them.

The statement from Donald M. Browning, chairman of the board, and James H. Browning, its president, is as follows, concluding with a statement from Donald W. Sincell, editor of The Republican.

"The officers and employees of Browning's deeply regret the death of Theodore Uphold on Thursday, Nov. 12, 1981, and knowing of the grief his family has already sustained it was our desire not to discuss publicly the incidents which led to his arrest on Friday, Nov. 6, 1981, on a charge of shoplifting at our market. However, the newspaper article which appeared in The Republican on Wednesday, Nov. 18, 1981 and which, among other things, implied that the arrest was not proper and, quoting a member of his family, stated that 'it was an outlandish charge,' leaves us no choice except to describe in some detail just what occurred that Friday afternoon.

"At approximately 1:30 p.m., Mr. Uphold was observed by Kevin Buser, a store employee, picking up three cans of snuff in the tobacco section of the store. He placed these items in a shopping cart in which he had other groceries. The cans of snuff were placed on the bottom of the cart in front of the other items in it. He then went to the end of the frozen food aisle and placed two of the cans of snuff in his right coat pocket and the third can was put in his left coat

Development Corp. To Launch Effort To Draw Industry

The Garrett County Development Corporation decided Wednesday evening to mount an advertising campaign to attract industries to the county.

The campaign will be a first for the county, said Tom Jones, county development director, who noted the county until now has relied on promotions developed at the state level.

The Corporation members believed the time was proper to become more aggressive in attracting industry because the county has an established industrial park and has several vacant buildings suitable for certain types of manufacturing.

The campaign will be directed at certain types of industry, compatible with industries already in the county, said Jones. Among targeted industries are garment manufacturers, meat-packing companies, and assembly operation.

Some of the available buildings suitable for a manufacturing operation are the old Friendsville Elementary School, a portion of the H.P. warehouse in Loch Lynn, and the old Grantsville pea cannery.

The advertising campaign will primarily consist of placing an advertisement in the Deep Creek Lake-Garrett County Promotion Council Vacation

Prosecution To Rest Today In Federal Tax Trial Of Snyder

by Kathy Railey

The trial of James Dwight Snyder, 45, Oakland, is expected to continue in Baltimore Federal District Court into the middle of next week, according to Elizabeth Trimble, Assistant U.S. Attorney for the District of Maryland, who is representing the Internal Revenue Service against Snyder. The trial began Monday, November 16, with the selection of an eight-woman, four-man jury and four alternates, and the presentation of opening statements. Ms. Trimble said she should finish the government's case by today, after which the court will adjourn for the Thanksgiving holidays, to resume on Monday. The presiding judge is Federal District Judge Norman Ramsey.

Snyder, a local cabinetmaker, was indicted by a federal grand jury in May and charged with three counts of willful failure to file federal income taxes from 1973 through 1975, three counts of concealment of assets for the same years and concealment of assets for 1980. He pled not guilty to the charges.

Ms. Trimble stated last night that the trial is "interesting, as I thought it would be," and she said that most of the prosecution's witnesses have testified, including about 18 from the Oakland and Terra Alta, W.Va. areas.

Ms. Trimble explained there are two aspects to the case: showing assets through property Snyder acquired, and money loaned by Snyder along with testimony to show "that loans were put underground." The prosecuting attorney declined comment on specifics of the case, saying that "it really wouldn't be fair to Mr. Snyder for me to comment on

DNR Police Arrest Poachers, Seize Weapons

Department of Natural Resources Police from Garrett, Allegany, and Washington counties made a surprise visit to several parties of poachers and illegal hunters last weekend, making six arrests, according to Capt. Ray Thorne, DNR police. Six weapons were also seized.

The use of aircraft is credited for the success of the surveillance team, who plan continued efforts to stop illegal kill in the woodlands of the three counties.

Arrested were Walter Paul Bishop, Robert William Robertson, Jr., Timothy Dallas Wilhelm, Thomas Harrison Tinney, Lori Ann Wilhelm, and Vicki Jill Wilhelm. Addresses were not available at press time, but complete details will follow when the cases come to trial in Garrett County District Court.

Bausch & Lomb To Discontinue Ophthalmic Products Business

Bausch & Lomb, based in Rochester, N.Y., announced Thursday it plans to discontinue its worldwide ophthalmic products business through a phased dismantling program.

The company expects the action will enable it to transfer its investment in ophthalmic assets to its growing vision care and instruments businesses.

Daniel E. Gill, president and chief executive officer of Bausch & Lomb, said Thursday the decision will improve the company's future earnings potential and further strengthen its financial condition.

The plan resulted from a strategic reassessment of the ophthalmic business (manufacture of corrective lenses) which clearly indicated the company should redeploy its investments.

The earnings potential of the ophthalmic industry falls far below the profitability of our other businesses, and is not consistent with the company's strategy of investing management and financial resources in businesses with strong growth potential," Gill said.

Bausch & Lomb made its announcement one day after its Board of Directors met in the Rochester office to make the final decision to close the ophthalmic division. Plant managers and employees were notified Wednesday afternoon.

Bausch & Lomb's ophthalmic operations principally consist of the manufacture of eyeglass frames and ophthalmic glass in Rochester, New York, the production of eyeglass lenses in Oakland and in Buenos Aires, Argentina, and 57 ophthalmic laboratories in the U.S. and four other countries.

Negotiations are underway for the sale of many of these operations and the company believes it will dispose of a significant portion of its ophthalmic facilities and assets through sales to other parties. Facilities to be sold will continue to operate normally until negotiations for a transfer in ownership are completed.

Foster Good, Oakland plant manager, noted that the equipment in the Oakland plant would probably be sold, leaving space for expansion or addition of other operations.

Good stated that the Oakland

Named Member Of American College Of Physicians

Dr. H. James Beecham III, an Oakland physician, was notified this week that he had been elected a member of the American College of Physicians, the official organization of physicians whose specialty is internal medicine. The process in becoming eligible for membership includes providing supporting letters from medical faculty members, a display of credentials of medical publications written by the physician, a board exam and approval by the governor.

Dr. Beecham, a member of the Garrett Medical Group, began his Oakland practice in June of year. He is a native of Norfolk, Va., and came to Oakland from Hummelstown, Pa., where he was a staff physician in the Critical Care Unit of the Harrisburg Hospital, Harrisburg, Pa.

He was awarded a bachelor of arts degree from Asbury College, Wilmore, Kent., in 1970 and received a doctor of medicine degree from the Medical College of Georgia in 1974. He has done extensive research in communicable diseases and served at the state and federal levels as a medical investigator in the original investigation of Legionnaires' Disease. He has had numerous articles published in various medical journals and publications.

Browning-Ferris Provides Photos To Monitor Dumpster Site Clean Up

The new operator of the Garrett County solid-waste system is now providing the county commissioners with Polaroid shots of each of the 26 dumpster sites in the county and will continue to do so until all are satisfied the sites are being maintained correctly.

Rusty Stewart operation manager for the Winchester District of Browning-Ferris Industries, presented to the commissioners yesterday afternoon the first pictures of the sites taken Tuesday morning. He noted his crews would take pictures at each site on a daily basis and would present the commissioners an album each week.

BFI took over operation of the county system the week of October 19 and soon discovered that Garrett County would not be the easiest of places to haul garbage. Sites were not adequately maintained the first few weeks after BFI took over operation. The problems were attributed to the rough terrain of the county and more garbage than anticipated.

BFI is now operating three trucks with two-men crews

GUEST SPEAKER at the fifth annual dinner meeting of the Garrett County Memorial Hospital Board of Governors, Medical Staff and department heads was Dr. Dennis S. O'Leary, Dean of Clinical Affairs at George Washington University Medical Center in Washington, D.C. The event was held Thursday evening at the Will O' the Wisp, Deep Creek Lake. Dr. O'Leary skyrocketed to national prominence within a matter of hours last March 30 after President Ronald Reagan was wounded by a would be assassin in Washington. The president was rushed to George Washington University Medical Center and Dr. O'Leary was selected to be the spokesman for the nation's media. His professionalism and coolness in dealing with the media and his accuracy in reporting the condition of the president gained him esteem, not only from the media and medical community, but also from the public in general. O'Leary's talk at the meeting Thursday recessed on the events of March 31 and the days during which President Reagan was hospitalized.

Oakland Council Split In Decision To Accept Funds For Water System

by Kathy Railey

After hours of discussion, months of deliberation and review of a severe discrepancy in methods to address a water reservoir problem, the Oakland Town Council last month turned down a $200,000 grant and $100,000 low interest loan offered by Farmers Home Administration for construction of a new water tank. Now that the money has been again offered to the town for some other water-related project, the decision on whether or not to accept it is at a standstill as the council is split down the middle on the issue, with three for it and three opposed. A second vote is expected to be taken at the December 7 meeting after a temporary replacement is appointed for the late councilman Paul DeWitt.

A FmHA official contacted James Stanton, council president, after receiving word that the original offer had been rejected. He informed Stanton that the money could be used for rehabilitation of the town's water system, provided it is needed.

Stanton said, "There has been no formal engineering survey, but Willard Ringer (Water Superintendent) and his men know the system, and listed areas where they know we have trouble." The matter was then turned over to Morgan France, the town's engineer, who estimated that a minimum of $189,000 is needed for immediate, urgent repairs.

France indicated that the most serious problem facing the town is the valves on the res-

Community Event To Mark Holiday

A community Thanksgiving service, sponsored by the Mountain Top Ministerial Association, will be held at St. Paul's Methodist Church, Oakland, on Wednesday, November 25, at 7:30 p.m.

During the worship service, the symbols of Thanksgiving will be presented by members of the various churches in the community. Richard Morris will present a solo, "Thanks Be To Thee," by Handel.

An offering of canned goods for the House of Hope and/or money for the Appalachian Adult Activity Center will be received.

The association invites the public to attend this Service of Thanksgiving.

THE BLANKET OF SNOW which now covers the mountaintop has provided an early winter's treat for local snow sport enthusiasts. Snowmobilers and cross country skiers have already logged several hundred miles over hill and dale and downhill skiers anxiously await the Thursday opening of the Wisp Ski Area, which has made literally tons of snow during the past week to add to what mother nature has provided. A total of eight inches of snow has been received in the county since Friday according to local weather officials.

Quality Control Obtained For Lake Sewerage

The Garrett County Sanitary Commission moved to award a $13,440 contract for quality control check of the Deep Creek Lake Sewerage Facilities project to a Riverdale engineering firm, Greenhorne and O'Mara. The motion was passed at the November 17 sanitary commission meeting, and is subject to review by the State Health Department and the Environmental Protection Agency to determine grant eligibility.

That firm will review contract documents for the basic system for biddability and constructability. According to G & O, this will include assuring that the bid documents are clear and concise and include all necessary items, and assuring the ability to build the project as designed. Rummel, Klepper & Kahl of Baltimore, the project engineers, told the commission they "have no problem" with another firm reviewing their work. Plans and specifications will be reviewed when completed and ready to go to bid. Wendell Beitzel, Sanitary District administrator, said G & O will have its "top people" perform the services.

In other business, the commission discussed three engineering proposals for inspection of constrcution of the Deep Creek sewerage project, which ranged from $730,000 to $297,000. The low bidder was Greenhorne & O'Mara, and the commission is currently reviewing that proposal, having a question concerning the number of inspectors. Beitzel said, however, that the commission was "impressed" with that firm. No decision has been made regarding the awarding of a contract for inspection services.

Representatives from R,K&K were present at the meeting to submit a proposal to perform other engineering services during inspection of the project. That contract, which has not yet been accepted, is in the amount of $214,320 and would include review of the contractor's shop and working drawings, preparation of as-built drawings, preparation of operation and maintenance manuals, preparation of a sewer rate study, and the firm's providing continual grant agency liaison services. Beitzel said R, K&K is the logical firm to do this work, as they designed the system.

The commission also reviewed a contract proposal from R,K&K for Step II (design) of the expanded portion of the Deep Creek sewerage project, which is pending EPA approval of reductions in minority business enterprise participation requirements.

In other business, it was noted that the town of Mt. Lake Park signed an agreement with the sanitary commission for their share of operation and maintenance of the Trout Run treatment facility for the current period, July 1, 1981 to June 30, 1982, in the amount of $26,696.56.

Maximum Fine Levied By Jones For False Report

Judge Lewis R. Jones levied the maximum $500 fine for making a false report to a police officer against Terry Lorraine Frazee, 20, Friendsville.

According to Ms. Frazee, she was abducted at knifepoint by an unknown assailant in the town of Oakland and taken in her car to a wooded area near the Swallow Falls State Park, where she was allegedly raped, her vehicle stolen, and she was left stranded by the attacker.

Ms. Frazee was arrested in July by Maryland State Police Cpl. Charles Hinnant after intense investigation into the alleged facts of the woman's story determined the information to be false.

Judge Jones placed the defendant on 12 months supervised probation following the suspension of a three-month jail term, and ordered the fine and court costs paid within thirty days. In addition, refraining from excessive use of alcohol was included in the court directive.

County Firemen Elect Officers

The Garrett County Firemen's Association nominated and elected officers at its November 18 meeting held at the Friendsville Fire Hall.

Ira "Tip" Yaste of Bittinger was re-elected president of the county-wide organization; Ed Wilburn of Deep Creek Lake will serve as vice-president; Brad Stewart of Oakland will serve as secretary, and George Comp of Deep Park will serve as treasurer for the upcoming year. Alvey Rexrode, Accident, and Herman Yoder, Grantsville, will share the duties of chaplain.

A standing committee for the firemen's group was also elected, including members Allan Murray of Oakland, Rodney Bowser of Friendsville, and Bob Thrasher of Deer Park.

It was announced that all chiefs of the association will meet with Ed Livengood of Garrett County Central Alarm on Wednesday, December 9, at the Deep Creek Fire Hall. The purpose of the meeting will be to revamp boundary lines for use by fire control.

The next regular meeting of the Firemen's Association will be held at the Gorman Fire Hall on January 27, 1982.

Homes, Businesses, Vehicles Entered, Items Stolen

Several cases of breaking and entering and theft to business establishments, homes and vehicles throughout the county were reported to the Garrett County Sheriff's Department last week.

A home site on Pleasant Valley Road west of Loch Lynn, under construction by Meadow Mountain Homes, Oakland, was entered sometime between October 30 and November 17, and several building materials were stolen.

Taken were two rolls of carpet and six rolls of insulation, amounting to a total loss of approximately $480. Police were told that one of the doors to the home could not be locked.

In a separate case, Powles Place, a liquor store and bar in Crellin, was entered sometime during the night of November 16. When the investigating officer arrived at the establishment the next morning he found broken bottles and several six-packs of beer scattered about the exterior and interior of the building.

The front door window glass was broken to gain entry. Missing or damaged items included seven cartons of cigarettes, 30 bottles of liquor, seven cases of beer and some small change, amounting to an estimated loss of $300. Replacement of the window is estimated at $31, and clean-up at $20, making a total loss of about $351.

Donald Custer, owner of the Hilltop DeLite Restaurant, Grantsville, told police that the office of that establishment was forced open about 11 p.m. on Thursday. Drawers in a filing cabinet inside the office were also forced open and approximately $145 in cash was removed.

In a separate case, Jack W. Wotring, Albright, W. Va., reported that his summer cabin on Lake Shore Drive was entered by breaking a window sometime between November 2 and 20. Small change was found missing from the dwelling, along with four fishing poles valued at $25 each. The stolen property is described as three Michel 304 poles and one bamboo pole. Damage to the window is estimated at $8, making the total loss about $109.

Reva G. Poling, Belington, W. Va., reported thefts from her residence in Mt. Lake Park on two separate occasions. Sometime between November 10 and 12 someone entered the home and removed an old 30/30 Winchester rifle. The dwelling was again entered sometime between November 15 and 18 and taken were a set of Corning ware and a Princess telephone. Mrs. Poling was in the process of moving into the home when the incidents occurred.

In a separate case, Dorothy E. White, Mt. Lake Park, told police that items were taken from her apartment while she was in the process of moving in, sometime between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. on Friday. She told police the apartment was left unlocked while she ran some errands. Taken was $23 in food stamps and food items valued at about $7.

Items were reported stolen last week from three separate vehicles in the Mt. Lake Park area.

Howard C. Martin, Mt. Lake Park, told police that someone entered his unlocked truck during the night of November 18 while it was parked in front of his residence. Taken was a 23-channel RCA CB radio valued at approximately $100.

Nathan J. Patton, Loch Lynn, reported that someone used a hacksaw to cut battery cables and remove a 12-volt battery from his vehicle while it was parked at his residence during the night on Friday. Damage to the cables is estimated at $20, and the battery is valued at about $30.

Harry E. Shahan, Oakland, reported that someone removed a number of stereo 8-track tapes from his vehicle while it was parked at Par-Matt Lanes bowling alley at Oak Park. The incident occurred November 17 between 10:30 and 11:30 p.m. An estimated total loss value is $40.

During a routine patrol in the early morning hours Thursday a deputy found a shattered window at Joe's Place, Oakland. The owner was contacted and the interior of the establishment was found in order, with nothing missing. Loss in damages to the window is estimated at $40.

In other business, the department arrested three adults and two juveniles last week.

Denise Tasker, 23, Kitzmiller, was arrested Thursday and charged with failure to appear in court and theft. She is still incarcerated on $1,500 bond with District Court and $1,000 bond with Circuit Court.

Walter A. Tasker, 18, Deer Park, was incarcerated Friday and charged with destruction of property. He was released the next day on his own recognizance.

Charles Bolyard, 47, Oakland, was arrested Sunday and charged with battery. He was released the same day on his own recognizance.

Two juveniles, a 17-year-old girl and a 15-year-old boy, were taken into custody Friday, both charged with being runaways from Massachusetts. The girl was sent home by bus and the boy was transported to the Finan Center.

The painter Whistler sometimes signed his work with a small butterfly.

Turkey Harvest Results Noted

The Maryland Department of Natural Resources' Wildlife Administration announced this week that the fall turkey season, which ended November 12, produced a total harvest of 173 turkeys taken from Garrett, Allegany and Washington Counties.

According to turkey biologist, Joe Shugars, this year's kill fell one bird short of the 1980 harvest which was 174.

Shugars, who earlier predicted a kill of only 150, said 55 turkeys were taken this year in Garrett County, 100 in Allegany County and 18 in Washington County.

For comparison, the 1980 county-by-county kill was: Garrett, 40; Allegany, 123; and Washington, 11.

With the new I.R.A. accounts
EVERY WAGE EARNER CAN SAVE TAX DOLLARS
while you save for retirement . . .

HERE'S HOW!
Effective Jan. 1, 1982 there will be important changes in I.R.A.'s

1. Now every wage earner under the age of 70—even those already in a pension plan—can have his own I.R.A.
2. The annual TAX EXEMPT DEPOSIT is increased from $1,500 to $2,000. The ceiling goes to $2,250 if a non-working spouse is included.
3. A working couple may deduct up to $4,000 a year from their taxable income to contribute to an I.R.A.
4. All contributions to an I.R.A. can be deducted from earned income for tax purposes, up to the maximum legal amounts. Compounded interest earned on an I.R.A. is also tax-deferred.
5. With a Garrett National I.R.A. account you not only save on taxes, but at the same time, build for a comfortable, independent retirement.
6. I.R.A.'s from Garrett National Bank are as easy to open as a savings account.

Stop in today and get ALL the facts about a GNB tax-sheltered I.R.A.

Reporting The News . . .

In the aftermath of the death of Theodore Uphold of Friendsville, an incident which every reader of this newspaper must by now be thoroughly acquainted, it seems necessary and appropriate to make some specific statements about this newspaper's involvement in the occurrence and some general statements about news reporting.

Because of the unusualness and the tragedy of this event, the story spread like wildfire. It appeared on the front page of the Baltimore Sun and was picked up by both United Press International and the Associated Press who transmitted it over much of the country.

Many writers, including those of our neighboring Cumberland newspapers, chose to headline the story in ways which indicated the man committed suicide not because of the humiliation of being arrested for something he claimed he was innocent, but because of the disgrace suffered when news of his arrest was printed in The Republican. We were somewhat disappointed by this approach by our fellow journalists, for they are familiar with the responsibilities associated with reporting the news.

Much news, unfortunately, is bad news, but news nonetheless, which should be reported. A news story, when written properly, contains nothing but hard, and often cold, facts. Persons often ask why accounts such as the arrest of a 73-year-old man for shoplifting are published. Our response is that, the moment an individual becomes involved with the police and courts, the incident becomes a matter of public record. Arrests and subsequent court cases are published by this newspaper and, in order to be as fair as possible, all cases are reported. We show no favoritism based on age, sex, social or economic status.

A newspaper such as the Baltimore Sun, on the other hand, must screen the arrests and print those of greatest interest and severity, for it would take far too much time and space to report every shoplifting arrest occurring in a week's time in Baltimore. However, it is a normal procedure for rural newspapers to print all of the reports and the entire court docket.

As our area grows, the day may come when such incidents will become too numerous in Garrett County for us to report. For example, a decision was made a few years ago by our staff to stop publishing minor traffic violations such as speeding, mainly because of the same situation faced by the Baltimore Sun: the number became so great it was taking too much time to gather the information, time which could be spent on more newsworthy items.

We realize that the appearance of Mr. Uphold's arrest in this newspaper may have contributed to his decision to take his life. We certainly don't feel good about that possibility. With almost any such story the possibility exists for misfortune to come to persons who may be innocent of any wrongdoing. But a newspaper must not relinquish its responsibility to report the news to the public, a public which has a right to know and which depends on a newspaper for complete, accurate and fair coverage. Reporting just part of the news not only destroys public faith in a newspaper, but also adds to public suspicion, rumor and mistrust.

Hunters, Beware . . .

by Carol Kapel

Renegade hunters and bootleg poachers to Garrett County game lands can now expect some uninvited company during their after-sundown capers.

Midnight stalkers will imagine the roar of an airborne engine, the sound of ground-to-control contact, and the sight of uniformed game wardens at strategic points along the path of escape. The mirage will be real. So will the arrests.

The Maryland Department of Natural Resources has now enlisted the finest form of surveillance techniques in its unending battle to protect the wildlife and natural resources of our county.

The renewed cooperation of private landowners, coupled with the use of aircraft, now extends an arm of the law never before available. The results thus far are proof positive. Eight individuals found out last weekend that DNR means business.

The merciless killing of white-tailed deer, the taking of fur pelts, and the meaningless slaughter of domestic cattle may never completely cease, but the concentrated efforts of dedicated officers, whose deeds are seldom heralded, will do much to make illegal kill a most unattractive pastime in Garrett County.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

The tragic story about the suicide of Mr. Theodore Uphold that appeared on the front page of last week's Republican (Nov. 18th edition), was heartbreaking and most disturbing. I certainly hope the management at Browning's Foodland is deeply regretful due to the outcome of their accusations of shoplifting against an apparently innocent man.

Why wouldn't they believe that poor man? I thought the customer was always right, especially one who shopped so regularly for such a long time. Let's hope in the future the management will realize when someone is telling the truth, and that a tragic occurrence such as this one will never happen again.

I'd like to add that I'm glad you gave this sad incident the importance it deserved by putting it on the front page; I hope all of Browning's loyal customers read it. My sincere sympathy to Mr. Uphold's family, and may they have peace of mind in knowing that I'm sure God has judged him to be innocent.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Patty Miller
Frostburg

Dear Sir:

I have been increasingly impressed with your newspaper and I would like to see more investigative reporting. I particularly appreciate the editorial page and the increasing depth in the thinking evidenced; the Carol Kapel Comments and Harry Fox's Second Impressions.

Congratulations to Charlotte Griffith and Hurray for the Handicapped! The Cause of the Handicapped can only progress with such a committed, intelligent administrator! Charlotte is like a rare gem!

The excellent correct coverage of the "Uphold Tragedy" left me with unanswered questions. Why was Brownings Manager's position on this tragedy not pursued further? To prefer not to comment when a man's life has been snuffed out is very sad and very ridiculuous! Too bad Mr. Thrasher wasn't talking at the time of the incident and perhaps Mr. Uphold would be alive? In Mr. Thrasher saying we report the facts as we see them and then the matter is turned over to the state? I am wondering if he has Myopia? Having encountered Mr. Thrasher's managerial practices on occasions personally, I think they leave something to be desired.

How much christian or any real intellectual concern was shown Mr. Uphold? Where are common sense, reason, sensitivity and humanitarian instincts of the elderly in this situation?

Is the human instinct operating at all in this sad chronicle?

Being only 4 years younger than Mr. Uphold and cherishing his stated ideals and knowing my forgetful deficiencies in some areas, I feel for his loved ones!

Will Kevin Biser take the rap for his store management? I sincerely hope not! To snuff out a life over a can of snuff? Who was really listening to what Mr. Uphold said, or who really cared? We call ourselves a christian community! Are we? It could be you or yours involved next! Think about it, please!

Thanking you,
Sincerely
Louise V. Harvey

Dear Sir:

This morning, as I read The Republican, I was appalled at the lack of humanity exhibited by the manager of Browning's Supermarket, Jerry Thrasher, toward the late Kenneth Uphold. The incident of the alledged shoplifting hardly warrented the arrest and degradation of a 73-year-old man. The end result of those many years of life was a self-inflicted bullet due to the unyielding policy of Brownung's and poor judgment of Mr. Thrasher.

I am so pained by this injustice that I would like to publicly proclaim my future non-patronage of Browning's Supermarket.

Sincerely,
Gloria J. Walsh
Deer Park

An open letter to Donald Sincell, editor of The Republican, and Kevin Biser, of Browning's Supermarket:

Today after reading about Mr. Theodore A. Uphold's suicide in the Hagerstown Morning Herald, I'm still in a state of shock.

There is a lot I could say out of anger, but I will try to understand your situations.

I pray in the future you both will be more understanding.

Mr. Sincell, I'm enclosing a check for 92¢ to Browning's Supermarket. Please forward it to them. I'd really hate for their books not to balance. I figured the three cans of snuff at 29¢ per can is 87¢. Since I'm not sure what percentage of sales tax is, I used the same as Pennsylvania's rate, 6%. The total is 92¢.

Dear Mr. President (via editor),

This is in reference to the matter of the case of the United States vs. James Dwight Snyder, criminal No. R-81-0250. This case is currently being tried in U.S. District Court, Baltimore, Maryland.

It is unfortunate the case was brought to trial. Already it seems apparent to the American people that Mr. Dwight Snyder is a just and honest man; fighting, perhaps for all of us, the bureaucratic machinery of an agency that no longer functions in the best interests of any individual—president or pauper.

But worst is the reflection this throws upon your office! At this critical time in your presidency you need the support of all Americans. Perhaps your supportiveness in the case of Mr. Snyder would create an improved relationship between you and a sympathetic and overtaxed public. The national and international press this trial is receiving would then be serving a constructive purpose.

Current goings on in Washington are creating a poor image of government in power. It's these little affairs that chip away your credibility with the people, and if unchecked by you, Mr. President, they could sap the strength of your administration, and destroy the opportunity you have to make significant changes in this country.

Respectfully,
(Ms.) Deborah Downing Georgetown, Kentucky

Dear Editor,

I would like to use this opportunity to thank the many people who help make Ram Football a success. These "behind the scenes" workers are a very large reason for the accomplishments of our program and will forever have our indebtedness. They include:

Luther D. Parrack, Jr., principal; Ed Green, vice principal; Dave Mayfield, athletic director; James Lupis, assistant superintendent who has been a driving force behind improvements to the football field; Clark Sharpless, principal, Dennett Road, who has helped make available those facilities; Drs. Jared Zelman and Paul Williams, team physicians, who have donated many hours to take care of the players; Brad Stewart and Frank Custer, trainers, who came to every practice and game, donating their time and expertise to help prevent injuries; Blue Marucci and Ron Stemple, the force behind getting the football field resurfaced and put into excellent shape; pocket. Contrary to the account published in The Republican the cans of snuff did not keep 'falling through the grocery cart until it became a nuisance to keep picking them up.' In fact, the size of each of the cans of snuff in question is such that a can will not fall through the bottom of the cart if it is placed there as it was in this case. Again, contrary to the newspaper account, the items were placed in his coat pockets, not his shirt pocket.

Bill Deckman, goal post construction (with help from Allegheny Welding Company); Max Messenger and John Hill, game films; Xie Colaw, season tickets; Dave Beard, LeRoy Bolding, Gene Bartlett, Lowell Leitzel and Pat Welch, for their game supervision and help; Mark Marucci, Joe Everd, Randy DiSimone and Jeff Friend, the "Chain Gang;" "Mac" McLaughlin and Coach Don Stemple, transportation of game equipment; Betty Liller, typing playbooks, schedules, contracts, etc.; Andy Callis, field maintenance; Wood Products, filming booth on top of the press box; Oakland-Mt. Lake Park Lions Club, for their concession help; S.G.A.A., the most important part of our organization because they are there to do anything that needs done.

A special thanks to the players, parents, fans and wives who are the heart of Ram Football.

"From that time until he went through the checkout counter, the cans of snuff remained in his pockets. At the checkout counter, other prices for the groceries in his cart were totaled on the cash register, he was asked by the young woman operating the register if 'that was all' and his reply was 'yes.'

"Mr. Uphold then left the store carrying his groceries in a shopping bag, not in a cart as reported, and he was followed at some distance by Kevin Biser. He did not attempt to return to the store, again as reported, but rather walked away from the store doorways and toward the parking lot.

"He was then stopped by Kevin Biser who indicated that the store manager, Mr. Jerry Thrasher, wanted to speak to him about the snuff in his pockets. Mr. Uphold did not, as reported, offer to pay Kevin Biser for the snuff, and he did not, again as reported, say he was just going back in the store to pay for the goods. The two men then went to the front office in the store where Jerry Thrasher was also located. Mr. Thrasher explained we knew about the cans of snuff and Mr. Uphold then removed them from his pockets.

"Browning's has a form statement called an Acknowledgment which is a written statement persons suspected of shoplifting are requested to sign. This was explained to Mr. Uphold who then signed it and in this statement he admitted that he wilfully took three cans of snuff with the intention of converting them to his own use without paying their purchase price.

"At this point, the Sheriff's Office was notified and a deputy sheriff came and took Mr. Uphold to Oakland where a formal shoplifting complaint was filed against him. It is our understanding he was released after a summons was served upon him and that he was not fingerprinted, although we have no personal knowledge of this.

"The events which occurred in the store indicated to our employees that they were confronted with a case of shoplifting and it is difficult to understand how anyone could reach a different conclusion.

"As stated at the beginning of this statement, we are deeply sorry about the death of Mr. Uphold. We regret finding it necessary to make public the facts in this matter and we take no pleasure in doing so. However, we do resent the newspaper implications that our actions were improper and for the sake of our firm and our employees, we felt compelled to make this statement. If The Republican had given us any indication as to what the content of its article was going to be, we would have released the information sooner."

Editor's comment: There are two points we wish to make.

1. The Republican newspaper and the writer of the story in question made not a single allegation against Browning's Supermarket in this article. We fabricated none of the material and made no claims in support of, or against, Mr. Uphold or Browning's. For all we know, Browning's above account of the incident may be completely accurate. We simply reported the information which was given to us by the members of Mr. Uphold's family and from the arrest report filed at the sheriff's office.

2. We did, in fact, contact the manager of Browning's Supermarket and request information about this specific incident. We informed him about the allegations we received from a member of Mr. Uphold's family in the form of a letter to the editor (which was incorporated in the original story). Despite the obvious severity of the situation, the manager declined to comment.

Second Impression

Thanksgiving

by Harry Fox

This week marks an unusual meeting of two themes. It is an anniversary of sorts for Second Impression readers, who for one year have been alternately pleased, enraged and puzzled by the opinions expressed here.

It is also the week of Thanksgiving Day. Tomorrow each of us pauses to give thanks, in his own way, for the blessings of life, food, safety and, yes, for peace in this uncertain world.

Indeed, a year has passed. That in itself is somewhat surprising. Our days tend to be numbered by the humdrum ordinary events that blend together in obscurity. The resulting rhythm of time is broken only by an occasional red-letter day or life-changing experience. To look back becomes an exercise for survivors of the modern lifestyle.

We are the children Philip Wylie called the "generation of vipers." We risk becoming dulled, desensitized by our times—the commercialism, crass appeals to greed, encouragement of costly pleasures at the expense of the less fortunate . . .

But this is not the place for a litany of despair. Our reasons for giving thanks should center on the little, overlooked details of living. We so often allow ourselves to become overwhelmed with our concerns that sometimes we lose sight of the good that we are allowed to give and to receive.

This is where the holiday and my own unique "anniversary" come together. This year of time and thought invested in writing have yielded a rich harvest of personal benefits. Above and beyond the satisfaction of the task is a clear signal to pursue other, as yet unexplored, paths as a journalist. For this we give thanks.

Finally, it is a time to reflect on the real meaning of what we do. The ancient term from which our word for printers "type" came, used the image of a hand striking soft clay, so as to leave a mark, an impression. It is said that as God left an impression on his creation, so our craft of putting words to paper leaves an image, a lasting impression on the mind. This is so, whether the words are cast in metal or shot onto film by a computer.

No, the words written here are not timeless, nor should they be cast in bronze. It is enough that they cause some to think, some to question, some to remember.

Happy Thanksgiving.

Shoplifting Incident Leads To Businessmen's Comments On Policy

A recent incident involving Browning's Supermarket, Oakland, and a Friendsville man has led to some local businessmen's commenting on shoplifting in Garrett County.

Theodore Uphold, 73, was held at Browning's November 6, handcuffed by a county deputy and taken to the Garrett County Sheriff's Department and charged with shoplifting by a store employee who had observed the man place cans of Skoal snuff in his pocket. He was released on his own recognizance.

On Thursday afternoon, November 12, Uphold was found lying next to a lumber pile near his residence on White Rock Road, dead of a self-inflicted gunshot wound, the day after the news of his arrest was published in The Republican newspaper. Family members told police that Uphold had complained of head pains and "was told by a doctor he wouldn't live long because of other medical problems." They also advised he was upset because he had been arrested for shoplifting. The arresting officer and family members said Uphold explained to them that the cans of Skoal fell through the shopping cart so he put them in his pockets, forgot to pay for them and was going to come back in to pay for them when he was stopped by the store employee.

A statement from Browning's, however, which also appears in today's issue of The Republican, states that, in their opinion Mr. Uphold was aware that he was taking the Skoal and did not intend to pay for it.

Richard E. Dyer, Chief Investigator of Security for Heck's, Inc., said a shoplifter is stopped when he/she is seen picking up, carrying and showing intent by concealing a merchandise item. Jerry Thrasher, manager at Browning's, said a person is stopped and charged with shoplifting when he/she carries something out of the store without paying for it.

Dyer explained that his company makes no exceptions for senior citizens, citing one Heck's store (in an elderly neighborhood) where, out of 20 some shoplifters charged a month, 80 percent are senior citizens. He said shoplifting was responsible for nearly a three percent loss of Heck's total sales for 1980 and he added that the Oakland store loses $500 to $800 per month to shoplifters. A Browning's official said that store normally writes off one percent of its total sales for shrinkage, which includes damaged stock, employee theft and shoplifting, making up the largest portion.

Both stores have a policy of observation prior to checkout, and accused shoplifters are not approached until after they go through the checkout. At Browning's persons are not stopped until after they leave the store.

Dyer explained that Heck's has a special training program for its employees regarding shoplifting. When a person shows intent by concealing, he/she is observed or followed by an employee and the store manager. If these people lose sight of him/her for 10 to 15 minutes, the customer can not be stopped. All cashiers are trained to ask, after everything is placed on the counter, "Is that all?" or "Is there anything else?", which Dyer says gives a person an opportunity to remember. Bill Stemple, Heck's manager, said the store feels that "carrying an item beyond a certain point constitutes intent to steal."

When approached by the manager at Heck's, an accused shoplifter is asked to come to the office and no reference is made to theft, jail or arrest either in front of the store or privately in the office, Dyer explained. Persons are asked to empty their pockets or handbag, and if they refuse, law enforcement officers (who have the authority to search) are called. Persons are asked for their name, which is placed on a form filled out by the manager, which states that the person was apprehended by an employee of the company and had in his possession, at the time of apprehension, certain items (which are listed and described), for which that person did not have a sales slip to show he had purchased them. It further states, "It has been agreed by the store and myself that, after signing this statement I will not hold the store or the arresting officer responsible in any manner, nor will I take any further action whatsoever in regard to this incident. I was not falsely arrested." The form is then dated and signed by witnesses, and the accused is asked to offer his signature.

The State's Attorney's Office in Baltimore indicates a form of that type can be used as part of a case in court, but is not an admission of guilt. A local attorney said it is not an uncommon practice to use the forms, as they protect the store against false arrests. The lawyer said he personally feels they "violate one's privilege against self-incrimination, and would carry the same weight as a statement taken by a police officer." The difference is that a statement obtained by an officer of the law is preceded by the reading of one's rights. The lawyer said he "questions the manner in which the statement is obtained" at the store.

Since no reference is made to arrest, Dyer was asked if accused shoplifters were aware before signing that the form could be brought into court against them. He replied that, "Anyone would know that." Dyer, a former police officer, added that, "We, as civilians, can not inform you of your rights." He said the forms are used in court.

Judge Lewis R. Jones, Garrett County District Court, said the acknowledgement form from an establishment "is one item of evidence we would consider," adding that each case varies. Dyer said that most persons do not agree to signing the forms, while Thrasher stated that most people stopped at Browning's do sign the forms.

Dyer repeated Thrasher's previous statement that "Shoplifting is costing everyone . . . all consumers." Dyer added that much loss is attributed to juvenile thieves, and he said "The courts must stop being so lenient with shoplifters. Stealing is a crime and must be treated as such. Wrist slapping is too common." Thrasher said that shoplifting at Browning's is a continuing problem and they are trying to stop it. Dyer said that Heck's has deterred some shoplifters by placing visable uniformed guards at the front of each store, and he added that large losses are expected during the Christmas holiday season.

Chief Hobert Shillingburg of the Oakland Police Department stated that his officers will increase patrol in the Oakland area during the Christmas shopping season.

Judge Jones Hears Shoplifting And Bad Check Charges

Charges of issuing worthless checks and shoplifting headed recent court dockets, resulting in fines, restitution, and court costs for those defendants involved.

Browning's Supermarket entered shoplifting charges against Clarence Leonard Bowman, 21, Bayard, W. Va., for the loss of a pack of cigarette papers, valued at 21 cents.

According to the record, Bonner took the papers from the rack, and then rejoined his mother at her shopping cart, failing to pay for the item. He pled guilty to the charge before sentencing.

Judge Jones levied a $50 fine plus court costs.

A Swanton woman, Linda Fay Guthrie, 23, was found guilty of theft from Browning's Supermarket when she left the store without paying for a box of Pampers, disposable diapers, valued at $8.48.

The report stated that Ms. Guthrie made several purchases with coupons, after which time she entered the restaurant area of the store with the box of diapers. She stood in the cafeteria line for a time and then exited the store. When approached in the parking lot by Kevin Biser, a store employee, she attempted to pay for the item at that time.

Judge Jones levied a $100 fine in addition to court costs.

Bad check charges were also lodged by Browning's Supermarket against William E. Shaffer, 23, Gormania, W. Va., and Daniel Paugh, 34, Kitzmiller.

Shaffer was fined $50, plus court costs and restitution for the amount of the check ($20).

Paugh was also fined $50 plus court costs and ordered to make restitution in the amount of $38.16.

In other worthless check action, Oakview Motors filed a complaint against Doris Rodeheaver, Bradley Manor, Oakland, for writing a worthless check in the amount of $15.

Judge Jones ordered probation before judgment on the Oakview charge, plus a similar ruling on a charge against Ms. Rodeheaver by the Oakland VFW Post, Rt. 135. The amount of that check was $15.25. An additional charge filed by Paul Dove Enterprises, Inc., for a check in the amount of $10.75 was also heard. Judge Jones ordered probation before judgment on the third charge, as well.

David R. King, 20, Deer Park, was fined a total of $100 for issuing bad checks in the amount of $43.80 and $7.70 for gasoline and boat rental fees to Bill's Marine Service, Deep Creek Lake, in September of this year.

Paul Dove Enterprises, Inc., also filed charges against King for issuing a worthless check for gasoline in August of this year. He was fined $50 plus court costs for that charge. Pamala King, 21, also of Deer Park, was fined $50 plus court costs and restitution for a check she wrote for gasoline at the same establishment which was returned by the bank.

blessed events

Garrett County Memorial Hospital reported the birth of three girls during the week of November 19.

A daughter was born to I. Robert and Amy Lee Roberts Rudy, Oakland, on November 19.

A daughter was born to David Dale and Catherine Marie Mullenax Collins, St. George, W. Va., on November 21.

A daughter was born to Joseph Michael and Cynthia Jane Marx Downton, Swanton, on November 24.

Admissions totaled 59, with discharges listed at 81. This morning's tally shows 52 patients.

Vehicle Mishaps Injure Several

A Saturday evening mishap at the intersection of Rt. 495 and the New Germany Road injured eight persons, none seriously, sending the parties to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, Oakland, and Meyersdale, (Pa.) hospital for treatment.

Autos driven by Harland Friend, 69, Swanton, and Bryan Barron, 21, Rockwood, Pa., collided when, according to police, Barron failed to yield the right-of-way as he traveled west on the New Germany Road and struck the northbound Friend vehicle.

Passingers in the Friend auto, Sarah L. Friend, 65, and Ildra Frazee, 67, both of Swanton, were treated and released from Garrett County Memorial.

Passengers in the Barron auto, Mary J. Carns, 27; Ralph E. Barron, 16; Leann Carns, six years of age; Jane Carns, three years old; and Tana Carns, twelve months old, were treated and released in the Meyersdale facility.

The season's first measurable snowfall contributed to the collision of two vehicles on Rt. 219, near Bill's Marina, Deep Creek Lake, on Monday morning at 8:35 a.m.

According to Maryland State Police, an auto driven by Keva Lynn Layton, 18, Oakland, and one operated by Genevieve Myers, 62, Friendsville, slammed into each other when the Layton vehicle hit a patch of ice on the roadway.

Police say the Layton auto crossed the center line and struck the Myers car. The Myers auto then skidded across both lanes of traffic and crashed into an unoccupied car belonging to Paul William Miller, Rt. 1, Oakland, which was parked in a private drive.

A passenger in the Myers auto, John Arnold Myers, 61, was taken to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by Southern Rescue Squad personnel, where he was admitted with neck and hip injuries.

Deep Creek volunteer firemen, as well as Southern Rescue and Maryland State Police responded to the scene.

Tax-saving IRAs for everyone!

New tax law adds new advantages for you!

One of the best tax saving plans provided by the new tax law is the expanded Individual Retirement Account (IRA). Beginning January 1, 1982, the door will be open to many persons who were not eligible before, and contribution amounts have been raised.

You should consider setting up an IRA plan in January, if you don't already have one. Here's why.

• You can have an IRA, even though you may already be covered under a company pension or profit sharing plan. Before, if you were a participant in such a plan, you were not allowed to have an IRA of your own. But, beginning January 1, 1982, you can set up your own IRA and make deposits to it totaling up to $2,000 per year.

• The annual IRA contribution has been raised to $2,000, up from $1,500. To a person in a 30% tax bracket, a $2,000 deposit into an IRA would save $600 in taxes. The chart below shows the annual tax savings possible for four different tax brackets:

Tax Bracket	Your Annual Contribution	Your Annual Real Cost	Your Annual Tax Savings
20%	$2,000	$1,600	$ 400
30%	2,000	1,400	600
40%	2,000	1,200	800
50%	2,000	1,000	1,000

If a husband and wife both work and each deposited $2,000, the joint savings would be doubled.

• The compounding of interest, tax sheltered in the IRA can really add up. Let's assume you would make the maximum deposit of $2,000 per year, and that you would receive an average rate of interest of 12% annually on your funds. Here's how your IRA would grow over the years:

After	Your Contributions	Total Value of your IRA
5 years	$10,000	$ 14,226
10 years	20,000	39,298
15 years	30,000	83,490
20 years	40,000	161,376
25 years	50,000	298,640
30 years	60,000	540,548
35 years	70,000	966,926

Again, if a husband and wife both work and each deposited $2,000, the total value of your IRA would be doubled.

• "Spousal" IRA limits are boosted to $2,250. If you have a non-working spouse, you'll be allowed to contribute $2,250 annually, and the funds no longer have to be evenly divided between spouses. You could put in up to $2,000 for the benefit of your non-working spouse, and a divorced spouse could deposit up to $1,125 a year from alimony.

• IRA funds are insured at First National.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation insures all deposits, including IRAs, at The First National Bank of Oakland.

• Two easy steps to getting your IRA started at First National. Because we realize that most people can't afford to deposit large sums all at one time, First National has made it easier for you to get your retirement plan started.

Step One: We can set up a special "IRA Passbook Account" for you. This account will permit you to make deposits in any amount as often as you wish. The IRA Passbook Account earns 5¼% per year, compounded and tax deferred. It lets you accumulate funds until you have enough to get an "IRA Certificate of Deposit."

Step 2: Once you have accumulated $500, you may get one of our "IRA Certificates of Deposit*" which yield a much higher rate of return. There are several different IRA Certificates to choose from—all require a $500 minimum deposit, but the months to maturity and the interest rates are different. When, at some point in the future, you have accumulated $10,000 of deposits and maturing certificates, you may wish to convert to our "IRA Money Market Certificate of Deposit." This six-month instrument has a fixed rate which is tied to 6-month Treasury Bill rates, and it allows you to reinvest every six months.

Contact any First National office for the current rates, and more specific information about IRA Certificates of Deposit.

ervoirs which have rusted to the point that they can not be turned off, and one of the valves supposedly controls fire reserve. He said that if a major leak would occur in town or if a fire hydrant would break there would be roughly 400,000 gallons of water allowed to run out before the leak could be repaired, totally draining the storage capacity of the tanks. Then until the break could be repaired (which could involve the gathering of materials) everyone in Oakland would be without water, he said.

In order to obtain any amount of the grant the town must accept the full $100,000 loan, according to Wendell Keaton, Municipal Administrator. FmHA's current lending rate is 12 and a quarter percent, which would mean the town would be paying back about $12,000 per year for a period of 40 years.

The matter was discussed by the Mayor and Town Council at a special meeting on November 11. Mayor H.D. Swartzentruber noted that the annual payback would be money "thrown away," and he suggested the town use that money annually to repair its water system, rather than to pay back a loan to the state. The mayor, Von Johnson and Frank Eberly, the three who voted to turn down the original offer, all voted at the November 11 meeting to reject the grant/loan offer on the grounds that town residents will be paying a new sewer bill when plans for a treatment facility are realized, and they do not want to overburden the residents through increased water bills to pay back the loan. (An estimated monthly increase per user at the current lending rate would be $1.)

Johnson argued that "FmHA is actually not giving the town anything," as Oakland would pay back some $480,000 for a $100,000 loan. Eberly stated that "the town can not stand to go further into debt at this point," particularly in lieu of the upcoming sewerage project. Johnson also suggested the possibility of the town's attempting to obtain the FmHA funds for the sewerage project.

Stanton and Frances Riley, who both voted for the original offer, were joined in their vote in favor of the grant/loan by George Stewart, who had abstained on the vote for the original offer. Stewart said he wants to speak with Ringer once more before the final vote, adding that, "There is no question that we do need water lines replaced, and it will cost a lot of money over the years." He too indicated he is taking into consideration the sewerage project and its anticipated burden on the town.

Mrs. Riley, who was apponted to work with Ringer to determine what needs to be done, agrees with Stanton that the town is "approaching an emergency and is facing major water repairs." Stanton noted that problems with the water system include lines that continually break, small lines that are decreasing in diameter through their corroding inward, repeated complaints regarding water pressure, and the valves at the reservoirs are "nonexistent," he said.

France stated that the town has thousands of feet of 1½-inch line which has corroded over several years, and those lines will eventually close up. The system will need additional valves, which would cost about $600 each for assembly, he said, and the reservoirs are in need of physical rehabilitation. An estimated cost for replacement of the valves on the reservoirs is $25,000, France noted.

Stanton predicts that some people will lose water service within 10 years if something is not done, and he said the water company is "constantly and repeatedly repairing breaks" and putting in hours of overtime, which is costing the town money.

"We know the pumps are putting out twice what the bills call for," he added, citing as an example that two million gallons of water can be pumped into the lines, but the billing readings show for only one million, indicating water delivery is in need of repair. "If we're treating twice the amount of water needed, we're throwing it down the drain," he said. Stanton added that, if the town would borrow from a bank to make the repairs, the interest rate would probably be about 16 to 17 percent.

The town also had an opportunity to apply for approximately $90,000 in Appalachian Regional Commission funds through Tri-County Council, but that application deadline was November 15 and since the council was split in its vote it did not apply for the funds. One local official noted, however, that if the town had applied for and received the ARC monies, it would have had to pay federal wage rates for the project, as opposed to local rates, and it would not end up getting $90,000 in additional work.

Stanton noted that recommendations have been made yearly since 1974 for Oakland to have a capital improvements program, involving doing some work each year so large sums of money wouldn't have to be put out at one time. "We now have to bring the system up to standards and good working order, and that capital improvements plan wouldn't work now," he said.

According to Mrs. Riley, "The municipality has been unable to save money to make repairs, and the emergency now is replacement of the valves at the reservoirs which have become rusted and nonworkable." She added that, several years ago the town had the possibiltiy to obtain funding to work on streets. At that time the offer was rejected, because there was some feeling among council members that the town could set aside a sum of money each year to resurface one street each year. She said that, "Since that time we have resurfaced one street, period. We had no money to set aside." Mrs. Riley said she fears the town "will never be able to obtain this much money again" for repair of the water system.

France said that, "A capital improvements plan would be nice, but you have to have a viable system to begin with. Oakland doesn't have that now; it has a system with serious defects accumulated over the years." France added that the Oakland system "will not tolerate a bandaid approach. It's too far gone for that."

Town residents who wish to express opinions regarding this matter may attend the next council meeting on Monday, December 7, at 7 p.m. at the Oakland Town Hall.

Development

Guide and the development of three promotional brochures. Jones explained that the Corporation has found that many of its contacts from businesses interested in the county as a potential site for their industry have developed as a result of vacationers who have visited the county.

Of the three promotional brochures, two will be at minimal expense to the county, Jones explained. The Tri-County Council of Western Maryland is developing two brochures — one will deal with the incentives Garrett County has for manufacturing companies and the other will be primarily promotional which could even be used by the Promotion Council.

The third brochure will be a folder containing facts about Garrett County of specific interest to manufacturers such as county assets, people, transportation accessibility, and industrial sites.

School Cafeteria Participation Sees Gradual Increase

In a recent news release, Garrett County School Superintendent Jerome Ryscavage announced a gradual increase of seven percent in school food service participation by area students.

This follows the announcement of an 18 percent drop in participation since last September in county cafeterias, even though Garrett has the lowest lunch prices in the state.

Statistics from 1980 indicate 4175 lunches served as opposed to 3387 for September, 1981. In September of 1980, an average of 81 percent student participation was experienced, as opposed to 64 percent this past September.

According to Ryscavage, the bulk of the decrease in students who eat school-prepared meals is due to the government food amount reduction program and the admission of stricter guidelines for participation in the free or reduced food program.

NOTICE
TO ALL EMPLOYERS CONDUCTING BUSINESS IN WEST VIRGINIA - - -
WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION COVERAGE REQUIREMENTS
COVERAGE REQUIREMENTS AND EXCLUSIONS: Virtually every employer conducting business in West Virginia is required to subscribe to the Workmen's Compensation Fund to provide coverage for job related injuries and diseases. The following are the only exclusions to such requirements:
1. Employers of employees in private domestic service.
2. Employers of five or fewer full-time employees in agricultural service.
3. Employers of employees while said employees are employed without the state except in cases of temporary employment without the state.
4. Casual employers. An employer is deemed to be a casual employer when the number of his employees does not exceed three and the period of employment is temporary, intermittent and sporadic in nature and does not exceed ten calendar days in any calendar quarter.
5. Employers covered by federal compensation laws.
AVAILABILITY OF INSURANCE COVERAGE: Workmen's Compensation coverage may be underwritten in this state only by the Workmen's Compensation Fund, an agency of the West Virginia state government. Private insurance carriers are not licensed or allowed to sell coverage in this state.
Employers with large work forces and extensive assets may request permission to self insure their risk. When such permission is granted, the employer pays all its losses directly, as ordered by the Workmen's Compensation Commissioner, and pays premiums to the Fund for administrative expenses.
EMPLOYER'S PROTECTION: Only the proper, mandatory workmen's compensation insurance coverage can protect an employer from the liability arising from industrial injuries and diseases. General liability insurance, health and accident insurance, and other insurance coverages do not provide the necessary protection to an employer. An employer who has failed to obtain coverage and pay premiums as required is subject to potentially unlimited liability should an employee bring an action at law for damages due to an injury or disease sustained on the job.
PENALTIES FOR EMPLOYER'S FAILURE TO SATISFY REQUIREMENTS OF THE LAW: Failure to subscribe to the Fund and pay premiums as required renders an employer subject to numerous civil and criminal penalties. Included among these penalties are interest on unpaid premium at the rate of one percent (1%) per month until payment plus accrued interest is received by the Commissioner, a statutory lien against the assets of the employer, a criminal fine of Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000.00), and injunction from doing business in the state.
INFORMATION may be obtained by writing to:
Workmen's Compensation Fund
P.O. Box 153
Charleston, West Virginia 25321
Telephone - (304) 348 - 0380
It is understood that the vast majority of employers conducting business in West Virginia have complied with the requirements of the law regarding workmen's compensation coverage. This notice is primarily for the benefit of those employers who may not be aware of the important nature of the laws affecting them and to advise that they promptly take necessary action to comply therewith.

The Thanksgiving Day worship service at St. John's Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod, will begin at 10 a.m. The congregation welcomes visitors.

The North Star Girls' Junior 4-H Club will meet on Tuesday, December 1, at 7:30 p.m. at the home of the local leader, Mrs. William Harman. Following the business meeting, the girls will be learning to bake cookies, for the evening's project demonstration.

The Cove Homemakers Club met on Monday evening at the home of Misses Alverta and Louise Dillon. The group decided to make a donation to the Accident Fire Department and to the House of Hope, Oakland. Final plans were made for the Christmas dinner and party to be at the Maplehurst Country Club next week. The evening will include a gift exchange. Several members placed orders for crewel embroidery pillow tops to be worked on during the winter, and other members chose to work on various other items. Mrs. Chester Otto invited members to her home on Monday, January 25, for a craft workshop, where some members will teach particular skills to those who wish to learn.

The Ladies Aid Society of St. John's Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod, met on Thursday evening, with hostesses being Mrs. Paul Thomas and Mrs. John Friend. Plans were made for the society's Christmas meeting and party. The date for the congregational covered dish dinner is Tuesday, December 29, at 6:30 p.m.

The Ladies Aid Society of St. John's Lutheran Church, LCA, met on Sunday evening. They traveled to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Danny Friend, McHenry, to present them with a wedding shower. They were recently married and moved into their home at McHenry. Mrs. Friend is the former Miss Denise Ringer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Ringer.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Ellifritz, Mt. Lake Park, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Resh were among those attending the funeral of Mrs. John Urich in Somerset, Pa., on Wednesday at Trinity Lutheran Church.

Charles Ringer was admitted to Sacred Heart Hospital, Cumberland, early Friday morning and remains a patient there.

Angie Lapp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Lapp, was a patient for several days at Sacred Heart Hospital, Cumberland, where she underwent surgery. She returned to her home on Tuesday.

Mrs. F. E. Smith was discharged from Sacred Heart Hospital, Cumberland, on Monday evening and returned to her home here after being a surgical patient there for more than a month.

Lawrence Glover returned to his home last Tuesday after being a surgical patient at Garrett County Memorial Hospital, Oakland.

Relatives and friends in this community learned several weeks ago that Mrs. Ernest Smearman, Uniontown, Pa., was admitted to the Uniontown Hospital, where she remains a patient.

Mrs. Clara McRobie, Oakland, and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Hockman were Friday visitors of Edward Hachman at Dennett Road Manor Nursing Home, Oakland. Mr. and Mrs. Hockman also visited with Mrs. Anna Wucik at Cuppett-Weeks Nursing Home, Oakland. They were Wednesday and Monday evening visitors of Mrs. Dollie Hunter, Spear's Nursing Home, Markleysburg, Pa.

Some residents of this community attended the program at Cherry Glade Mennonite Church, Accident, on Sunday afternoon that was presented by the bell choir of Locust Grove Mennonite School, Lancaster, Pa.

To celebrate the birthday anniversary of Miss Jenny Golden, an overnight guest of the Golden family was Miss Diane Vitez, Accident, the pair went roller skating, as part of the evening activities.

Several men from St. John's Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Everly on Tuesday afternoon, where they spent time cutting firewood and hauling it to the home of their pastor, the William Wilson family. The pastor also assisted in the effort.

Sunday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Margroff were Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Wable and family, Springs, Pa.

Wednesday afternoon visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Selby were Mr. and Mrs. Worlie Wright, Bruceton Mills, W. Va. Thursday supper guests were Mr. and Mrs. Ray Humberson and Mrs. Humberson's mother, who resides near Deep Creek Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Deniker were Monday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Miller and family, Accident. Mrs. Deniker was a Friday visitor of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Georg, Accident.

Saturday afternoon visitors of Miss Emma Krause were Mr. and Mrs. Russell Krause, Owings Mills.

Sunday dinner guests of Mrs. Alfreda Friend were Mr. and Mrs. William F. Robinson and sons, Friendsville; Charles Springman and Elmer Hanft. Josh Robinson spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. George Fint, Aurora, W. Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Reichenbecher were Sunday afternoon visitors of Mrs. Stella Reichenbecher and Mrs. Viola Stephens.

Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Margroff were Rev. and Mrs. William Wilson and family. Bill, John and Nancy Wilson spent Monday evening at the Walter Hanft home. Walter Hanft was a Tuesday forenoon visitor of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Friend.

Historic Site Damaged By Unknown Vandals

Maryland State Police are conducting a destruction of property investigation at the site of the Garrett County District 6 Election House, Sang Run Road, which was featured last week in The Republican.

Owner John E. Hinebaugh filed a complaint Friday stating that unknown culprits apparently kicked in the door on the building, causing extensive damage to the door and the frame.

Police are asking the complete cooperation of the public in apprehending the perpetrator of this destruction in light of the fact that the building could well be named an historic site in the state as a result of its history and the care and civic pride shown by the owner.

Damage to the structure was estimated at $150. Persons having any information concerning this crime are asked to contact Tfc. Larry Smith through Crime Solvers at 334-3111. The caller may remain anonymous. Crime Solvers pays cash rewards of up to $1000 for information leading to the arrest and indictment of any criminal. Persons may also contact the McHenry barrack.

State Roadways Claim 22 Lives

Twenty-two persons lost their lives on Maryland highways for the week ending November 22, 1981 according to the information supplied by investigating police departments. Of these fatals, 12 were drivers, nine were passengers and one was a pedestrian. Alcohol was a contributing factor in six of the deaths, speed in 15 and driver error in 21.

During the Thanksgiving Holiday last year, nine persons lost their lives on Maryland highways.

Persons killed through November 22 total 718, compared to 695 for the same period last year.

CRIME SOLVERS

Call 334-3111

Reward $100-$1000

The Garrett County Sheriff's Department is investigating the current crime of the week with Deputy Harland Tichnell heading the investigation.

According to Deputy Tichnell unknown persons broke into the residence of Darrell Severe, Rt. 50, east of Red House on October 5, 1981 between noon and 4 p.m.

The intruders removed a quantity of old coins and several pieces of antique jewelry. The home was ransacked, and considerable damage was done to the interior.

Total damage and loss is estimated at $1,142.95.

All leads in this investigation have been exhausted and Crime Solvers is seeking the help of the public.

If anyone has information on this crime or any unsolved crime, calls to the Crime Solvers Hotline, 334-3111, are requested. Callers names do not have to be revealed. If the tip leads to the arrest of the person or persons responsible, the caller will be eligible for a cash reward of up to $1000.

All information will be kept confidential and the caller may remain anonymous. No court appearance is required.

UNDOUBTEDLY ONE OF THE BIGGEST BUCKS taken so far this week in West Virginia is this 183-pound ten-point beauty by Maryland State Trooper John Foley. The animal was bagged Tuesday morning in the Bismarck area. Great numbers of hunters are expected in Garrett County when Maryland's deer season opens this Saturday and continues through the following Saturday.

Deer Hunting In State Forests

by Michael R. Gregory,
Forest Naturalist
Maryland Forest Service

Garrett County residents intent on bagging their deer during the 1981 firearms season should take a close look at the hunting opportunities available on the state forest lands in Garrett County.

Potomac, Garrett, and Savage River State Forests comprise close to 73,000 acres of land open to public hunting. These lands are managed by the Maryland Forest Service to produce numerous benefits for the people of Maryland. Through a cooperative effort between the Maryland Wildlife Administration and the Forest Service these lands have been managed for years to produce healthy deer herds for the people of Western Maryland. To accomplish this, these agencies have implemented various land management practices to increase the availability of food and cover for these animals.

During the 1980 firearms season over 300 deer were harvested from the three state forests in Garrett County. As such, the state forests accounted for over 30 percent of the deer harvested in the county. The outlook for the upcoming season is even more promising. Hunters can find evidence of deer use on almost every acre of state forest land. Areas which look most promising for this season includes the northern and eastern sections of Garrett State Forest, Negro and Big Savage Mountains on Savage River State Forest, and Backbone Mountain on Potomac State Forests.

The Maryland Forest Service urges the public to be especially careful during this firearms season. Be sure of your target before you shoot. Don't let a pleasant day in the outdoors turn into a tragedy.

HOT SHOOTERS — Sean Hershman, left, and Max Hill participated in the area Pepsi Cola Hotshot Basketball competition in Washington, D.C., on November 14. The two qualified for the area event after winning the Garrett County competition during summer basketball camp at Garrett Community College. Sean placed fifth in the area competition in a group of 22 9-12 year-olds with a score of 60. There was a third place tie score of 61. Max placed seventh in a group of 27 13-15 year-olds with a score of 68. The Hotshot event is a skills competition in which boys and girls shoot baskets from five different spots on the floor in a one-minute race against the clock. Sean is a son of Ed Hershman and Sue Hershman, Oakland, and Max is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hill, Shady Acres.

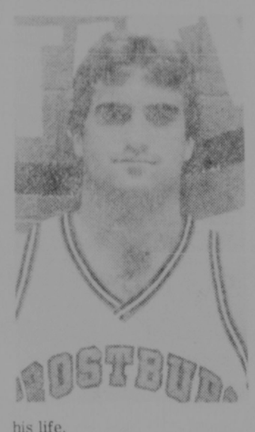
Liller Labeled "Great Asset" To Frostburg State Basketball Team

by Gail Collette
(Gail Collette is a Junior at Frostburg State College, majoring in English. Her hometown is Frostburg)



Twenty-year old senior, Steve Liller has a "hoopful" of accolades and records from his days at Southern High School through his two years at Garrett Community College. He holds the record as Southern's leading scorer in history and was named Player of the Year by the area high school. Liller, with his great versatility to play against the tall and the quick, has been and will continue to be a great asset to the Frostburg State College basketball team.

Liller, at 6'3" and 200 pounds, is not the ideal size for a basketball player, but after several minutes of play, he can convince any spectator that his skills more than make up for it. Head coach Kurt Wolfe ventures to say that he is the best skilled player fundamentally in every angle of the game. "Liller has what we call 'soundness'; he has the ability and exhibits it well," Wolfe states matter-of-factly.

Although Wolfe expects a lot from Liller this season, he wisely de-emphasizes the dominating player system. "He helps form a strong nucleus," the coach says, knowing that a successful season can burgeon from just that.

Liller, playing a swing guard this year, also expects a lot from himself. He feels that he is enjoying the sport more this season, and therefore improving his playing. Already carrying the title of leading scorer of last year's team, he wants to extend his abilities this season. "I want to be seen as a total team player," he says seriously. "I'm a better passer really, and I have a good defense. I guess I just want to play an all-around physical game." Liller has the determination to make himself proficient in all of his versatilities.

Liller has played basketball ever since he can remember. Yet he is one of the fortunate ones to whom the skill comes quite easily. "I learned a lot from watching my brother play," he states. His brother, Kevin, was a standout at West Liberty State College. But basically he just played long and hard almost every day of his life.

As a student in high school, Liller played football much better than basketball. In fact, he was named as the All-Area tight end by the Cumberland Times. Eventually he lost interest in the rough physical contact. Now he channels all of his energy into the latter sport.

"I find that passing the ball is easiest for me on the court," Liller says as he explains his ability to visualize the entire court and everything that is happening. The only thing that seems to bother him now is his realization that he is "getting old and having to play with a million nagging injuries!"

Liller's family is one of his major reasons for continuing to play ball. "It's important to them that they come and watch me play, and I want to make them happy." His brother and sister, having both attended FSC at one time, often give him a great deal of support.

Basketball is not the biggest part of Liller's life. With business management in his thoughts, he has no plans to continue playing the sport after graduation in the spring. But regardless, his contribution and devotion to the Frostburg State basketball team helps him grow and helps the Bobcats towards a successful season.

Lakers Open With Pair Of Wins In Pre-Season Tournament

The Garrett Community College Basketball team opened its season on an optomistic note last weekend by registering a pair of wins in as many starts in the Preview Tournament, held on the GCC floor. The Lakers whipped Penn State-Altoona, 95-82, in an opening contest on Friday and then stopped Cecil Community College Saturday evening, 58-48.

The fourth team in the tourney was Potomac State, which also defeated Cecil and Altoona by scores of 67-66 and 94-84, respectively. Garrett and Potomac State will meet on December 2 in Keyser when both schools resume their respective schedules.

Four Lakers finished in double figures in the win over Altoona, with Jeff Burton scoring 19 on nine buckets and one of four from the free throw line. Shawn Finney netted 17 points, John Steele, 16, and Bill Bender, 12.

The first half of the contest was relatively close, with Garrett holding a 38-34 edge at the half. However, midway through the second half, the Lakers pulled ahead by as many as 16 at one point and were never again threatened.

Pacing all scorers was Altoona's Barry Crawford, who netted five baskets and 13 of 13 from the line for a total of 23. Allan Robinson recorded 18 points and John Maloney added 13.

The Lakers outshot the Pennsylvanians from the floor by a 37-23 margin and connected on 21 of 23 free throw attempts, compared to a 32-for-45 effort by Altoona.

At halftime on Saturday evening against Cecil CC, it appeared as through the Lakers would have little trouble securing their second win, leading 32-20 at that point. However, after being on top by as many at 15 points in the second half, the C-Hawks staged a rally which brought them within six, 54-48, with less than two minutes remaining. The Laker defense went to work, though, and didn't allow Cecil to score again, while the offense added two more baskets for the ten-point win.

Jeff Burton again paced the Lakers' scoring with 12 points, while teammate Dennis Goodson and Shawn Finney contributed 11 and 10, respectively.

Thorton Spellman was the only Cecil player to reach double figures, netting 20.

Southern Rams Individual Grid Statistics Noted

Individual statistics on the Southern High Rams football team were released this week by the coaching staff. The Rams finished the season on November 13 with a win over Northern High School and a 6-4 record.

Junior running back Ron Bosley led in three offensive categories: scoring, rushing and kickoff returns. Bosley recorded 14 touchdowns, booted ten extra points and ran for one two-point conversion for a total of 96 points. Dave Terrant scored four six-pointers for 24 points, Dave Scott was credited with two touchdowns and a pair of two-point conversions for 16 points and Tim Tharp, Todd Lewis and Paul Harvey each crossed the goal line twice for 12 points apiece.

Bosley paced the rushing department with 1,070 yards on 208 carries for an average of 5.1 yards per carry. Fullback Tim Tharp gained 503 yards on 124 carries, 4.8 yards per carry; Dave Terrant gained 309 yards on 71 carries, 4.2 yards per carry; Paul Harvey picked up 295 yards on 45 carries, 6.5 yards per carry; Todd Lewis gained 59 yards on 27 carries, 2.2 yards per carry; J.R. Gibson had five carries for five yards; Dave Scott carried the ball once for two yards; Steve Bennett carried once for minus one yard; and Matt Scheffel lost 12 yards on five carries.

Quarterback Todd Lewis completed 17 of 62 passes for 236 yards, one touchdown, two extra points and ten interceptions, Matt Scheffel connected on one pass in nine attempts for seven yards and three interceptions. J.R. Gibson completed two of seven passes for 32 yards and a touchdown. Ron Bosley attempted five passes, but completed none.

Dave Scott led in receiving with 14 and 248 yards, two touchdowns and two conversions. Dave Terrant caught two passes for 14 yards, Ron Bosley two for 11 yards, Paul Harvey one for 15 yards and Tim Tharp one for a minus three yards.

Bosley returned six kickoffs for 93 yards, Dave Scott three for 62 yards, Mike Pritt four for 62 yards, Paul Harvey two for 39 yards, Dave Terrant four for 39 yards, J.R. Gibson one for 32 yards and Matt Scheffel one for 28 yards.

Dave Terrant picked up 30 yards on four punt returns, Ron Bosley 17 yards on five returns, Dave Scott 15 yards on four returns, Mike Pritt one yard on one return and J.R. Gibson three yards on one return.

Leading in interceptions was Matt Scheffel with four for 17 yards, followed by Paul Harvey with three for 31 yards, Andrew Orr two for three yards, Jim Lyons two for no yards, Don DeBerry and Ron Bosley, one each for no yards.

Andrew Orr punted the ball 18 times for 502 yards, a 29.9 average; Matt Scheffel punted 13 times for 433 yards, a 33.3 average; and Ron Bosley punted twice for 62 yards, a 31 yard average.

The team collected 11 fumbles on the year with Pat Rodeheaver, Paul Harvey and Andrew Orr each credited with two and Dave Scott, Jim Lyons, Tim Tharp, Tim Sisler and Ryan Stemple, one each.

Jim Lyons led in the number of unassisted tackles with 97, followed by Pat Rodeheaver and Andrew Orr, 62 each; Paul Harvey, 57; Tim Skiles, 52; Mike Hillen, 51; Matt Scheffel, 47; Rodney Neely, 38; Don DeBerry and Ron Bosley, 36 each; Tim Sisler, 31; Tim Tharp, 30; Dave Scott, 27; Ryan Stempie, 22; Mike Pritt, ten; John Lipscomb and Mike Susler, nine each; Dave Terrant, six; J.R. Gibson, four; Chris Bock, three; Jim Freeman, two; and Todd Lewis, Danny Clark and Fred Bell, one each.

Three On PVC Team

Three members of the 1981 Southern High Rams football squad were selected as members of the Division I Potomac Valley Conference team, two on offense and one on defense.

They were Ryan Stemple and Pat Rodeheaver, interior linemen; and Jim Lyons, linebacker.

Deep Creek Pacers Will Meet Dec. 1

The Deep Creek Pacers will meet Tuesday, December 1 at 7 p.m. (not at 1 p.m. as reported in The Republican last week) in the auditorium of Garrett Community College.

Shortage Noted In Payment Of Mt. Lake Bonds

Wendell Beitzel, Sanitary District Administrator, met with the Board of Garrett County Commissioners yesterday to discuss an anticipated shortage of funds to make payment on a Mountain Lake Water Company Bond and Trout Run promissory note to the State of Maryland, both backed by the full faith and credit of the county commissioners.

The ad valorem tax in the Mt. Lake Park Sanitary District was levied to meet the bonded indebtedness, however Beitzel explained that the shortage will exist "because many people do not pay their taxes immediately, but wait a year or more, or until they become delinquent." He added that, since the Garrett County Sanitary Commission has no means of coming up with the funds, it must call on the county commissioners for assistance to meet these obligations.

The sanitary commission needs $70,056.19, of which $20,518.19 is due December 31 (for Trout Run) and $49,538 is due January 28, 1982 (for the water company). Beitzel said the amount received to date through the ad valorem tax is $34,227.24, and he anticipates receiving an additional $10,000 by the end of this year. This means there will be a shortage of approximately $26,000 to meet these obligations.

Beitzel said the sanitary commission has discussed turning over monies collected through the ad valorem tax directly to the county, however that method would put the commission in a similar situation next year, "though not of this magnitude." He said the sanitary commission will attempt to build into the ad valorem tax enough surplus next year, and possibly for the next four years, that it will not be pressed for funds when the bonds are due.

County Commissioner Ernest Gregg noted that "the sanitary commission initially should have calculated a higher amount to cover that," and he said he "would like to see the commission develop a buffer in the future."

Beitzel informed the commissioners that normally the bill for Trout Run would be in the area of $16,000, and that the increase is due to payment deferred since 1972 and added interest.

Gregg directed Beitzel "to draw up the necessary papers," saying he feels "the commissioners have no choice in the matter" of meeting the obligations. Beitzel stressed that the money will come in, but possibly not for one or two years.

Legionettes Hold Annual Banquet

The Legionettes Majorette Corps held its seventh annual covered dish awards banquet on November 7, at the Accident Elementary School.

Marlene Taliaferro, president, introduced the special guest representing the Ladies Auxiliary, Accident.

Trophies were presented to all members of the corps. Special Awards were presented to Stacey Rodeheaver as most outstanding junior, Becky Dolan, most improved junior, and Regina Resh, most improved tiny tot. Stacey Rodeheaver was voted most congenial by the members of the corps.

Perfect parade attendance bars were presented to Becky Dolan, Stacey Rodeheaver and Tim Rush, for missing only one parade and to Bob Taliaferro, Lori Klotz, Dana Sweitzer, Becky Klotz, Regina Resh, Angela Lapp for second in a row and Melissa Lapp for fifth year in a row missing none.

Perfect practice attendance medals were presented to Stacey Rodeheaver, Melissa Lapp, Richard Kinzey, Bob Taliaferro and Regina Resh for missing only one and to Dana Sweitzer. Receiving awards the second year in a row were Becky Dolan, Angela Lapp and Becky Klotz.

Leaders for the juniors this year were Ginger Platter, Stacey Rodeheaver and Melissa Lapp. Tiny tot leader was Becky Klotz.

Trudy Carpenter director for the juniors, and Sherry Kolbfleisch director for the tiny tots, were presented a money gift and necklace in appreciation from the officers and members of the corps. Suzanne Dolan was presented a plaque for all her time and dedication to the corps over the years.

One year members are Ginger Platter, Cheryl Frantz, Kris Patton, Carrie House, Joyce Dixon, Julie Dixon, Tim Resh, Regina Resh, Ellen Wilt, and Brandy Beitzel.

Two year members are Cyndi Kolbfleisch, Susie Kolbfleisch, Angela Lapp, Dana Sweitzer, Lori Klotz, Becky Klotz and Kendra Frazee.

Three year members are Stacey Rodeheaver, Stefanie Burrow, Bob Taliaferro and Richard Kinzey.

Seven year and the only original members of the corps are Tammy Wakefield, Melissa Lapp and Becky Dolan.

Practice will resume in March 1982 when the corps will accept new applications. Anyone wanting information on the corps should contact Marlene Taliaferro, Donna Lapp, Ann Kolbfleish, or Carol Wakefield, officers for the 1981 season. New officers will be selected in March 1982.

County Man Jailed; Facing 24 Charges

A Garrett County man, Edward Alvin Morton, 27, Swanton, remains in the Allegany County jail on charges filed against him in Garrett and Allegany counties, and the state of Florida.

He was arrested on October 26 and charged with breaking and entering and theft at a Westernport residence where a $3,800 loss of cash and jewelry was reported.

Since his arrest, Morton has been charged with 10 additional counts of burglary and 10 counts of theft that supposedly occurred during September and October at homes in Cumberland, Westernport, and LaVale. The total worth of goods allegedly stolen by Morton is estimated to be near $60,000.

Morton failed to appear in court in Garrett County in October, and in court in Laurel City, Florida, on charges of assault with intent to murder. He is also wanted in Florida for being a fugitive from justice following his escape from the Florida Department of Corrections, Tallahasse.

He is currently being held without bond.

WVU Scientist Notes Improvements To Land After Surface Mining

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. — "We sometimes lose sight of the fact that surface mining often improves the environment," according to John C. Sencindiver, a soil scientist with West Virginia University's Agricultural and Forestry Experiment Station.

Sencindiver and his colleagues are studying the effects of surface mining in West Virginia. They concluded that such mining done properly can improve the land and create ponds.

"Mountain top removal, large head-of-hollow or valley fills and other mining operations are creating relatively level or gently rolling land where steep and very steep topography had been common," Sencindiver said.

The first step before mining an area is to determine its geologic and soils nature. Proper pre-planning can show which materials have the potential for producing better soils after mining than the soils originally covering the landscape, according to Sencindiver.

Many native subsoils are clayey. By mixing native soils with rock materials from the overburden, mining may improve the texture. Plant and tree roots are able to penetrate deeper after the soil is broken up.

In the Appalachian states, steep slopes are common and the soils generally are low in fertility because of the leaching effects of weathering. Sencindiver said that calcium, magnesium, potassium and phosphorus are often found in higher amounts in unweathered rock.

Mining brings these essential minerals to the surface where weathering slowly releases plant nutrients, thereby increasing soil fertility.

Placement nearer the surface of rocks with higher concentrations of nutrients results in lower fertilizer requirements and quicker vegetation establishment on the mined area.

In addition to improving the slope and fertilization, surface mining can create ponds for water sources and recreation. Huge rocks and boulders can be better positioned to improve the landscape.

Sencindiver points out that very little of the acid mine drainage in West Virginia comes from surface mines. WVU studies have shown that not more than 15 percent of the acid mine drainage (ph of 4 or less) is caused by surface-mined land.

A higher percentage of acid water comes from mine waste, coal cleaning and processing, or seepage from underground mine openings. Much of the surface mining now results in near neutral or alkaline water.

Sencindiver said soil surveys are essential. They consist of soil maps along with interpretations and guidelines on how soils respond to different uses and treatments.

Until recently, he said, minesoils have all been grouped together into categories such as "miscellaneous land type" or "strip mine," which do not adequately describe their properties.

Sencindiver and other researchers in the WVU Agricultural and Forestry Experiment Station have devised a minesoil classification system that has proven to have wide application on both midwestern and Appalachian sites.

This system is primarily based on rock types such as shale, sandstone, limestone and others. The rock types indicate future soil particle size, rates of soil development and contribution of minerals to soil chemical properties. They also indicate other characteristics such as drainage and compaction traits.

For example, weathering of fine-grained mudstones — a soft stone with a high moisture retention ability — will produce abundant silt and clay-sized particles. These soils tend to compact more readily than sandy soils formed from the weathering of sandstones, thereby holding water for longer periods.

Sencindiver admits that one of the greatest problems affecting the surface mining industry is communications. Overburden data are available which would enable excellent reclamation in most cases but handling recommendations are frequently not followed. He believes there should be stronger efforts by both the regulatory agencies and the industry to apply research results for better reclamation.

State Bankruptcy Filings Increase During Past Year

BALTIMORE (UPI) - Statistics show the number of bankruptcy filings in Maryland has nearly doubled in the past year, an increase that has caused a backlog of cases waiting to be heard in the state's U.S. Bankruptcy Court.

Federal records report 7,495 individuals and businesses filed for bankruptcy in Maryland between June 1980 and June 1981. That figure compares with 3,803 for the same period in 1979-80 and 2,137 in 1978-79.

Officials attribute the upswing in bankruptcy filings to the Bankruptcy Reform Act of 1979, which made it easier for people to file for bankruptcy and allowed them to keep more of their assets.

Along with the increased number of filings has come lengthy waiting times for bankruptcy hearings.

Gary Goldstein, an attorney specializing in bankruptcy cases, said that when he asked for a hearing last week he was given a July 20, 1982, hearing date.

In the Sunday editions of the News American, Goldstein and other lawyers attributed the lengthy waiting time to a shortage in federal bankruptcy judges.

Maryland currently has only one bankruptcy judge, following the resignation of one judge two months ago. A new judge is expected to take office in January, but Judge Harvey M. Lebowitz, Maryland's current judge, is resigning effective in February.

In an effort to deal with the case load, the U.S. Bankruptcy Court has assigned two part-time judicial volunteers to Maryland. But one of those volunteers, U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Roger Whelan, said more needs to be done to keep Maryland from being swamped with unheard bankruptcy cases.

"I know the caseload gives headaches . . . they probably need at least four judges in Maryland", said Whelan.

A Thanksgiving Message

Today, the traditional day of counting blessings taken for granted throughout the year, we give our thanks for the blessings we enjoy as citizens of a free democracy.

We are grateful for the freedoms which we often take for granted ... the right to choose our religious faith ... to elect those who govern and the obligations of the governed to guide ... to criticize and even condemn those who misuse their official responsibilities.

As a nation and a people, we're grateful for the beautifully rich soil we are blessed with and the means to produce food to feed not only ourselves and our allies, but also the hungry throughout the world.

We send our wishes, hopes and prayers that next year, on this day and everyday, we can be thankful for the blessings showered on those less fortunate ... the presence of the dignity of man among the poor ... the return of love, decency and morality into the hearts of the powerful ... the enlightening of the minds of those who oppress ... and the returning of peace to this currently troubled world.

On this day of family unity, as we relax from the food and drink which has filled our bodies, we offer a prayer to the God of every faith for unity, love and blessings in the world, such as those felt within our homes this day.

Snyder Trial

the events of the trial) at this point, as he has not yet presented his case."

Arthur Tronokas, a tax lawyer from Georgia representing Snyder, said the government "called a series of individuals (about 20), most from the Oakland area and a lot of them, quite frankly, who were intimidated by IRS agents both before and after testimony. The government has attempted to intimidate them to influence their testimony." Snyder said all of the prosecution's witnesses from the Garrett County area ended up being good character witnesses for him.

Tronokas also referred to an impeachment effort by Ms. Trimble, saying she "told the court that, because of the possible testimony of some witnesses from Garrett County the government may have to impeach them because of their hostility toward the government." Snyder said some government witnesses from the Garrett County area testified to "IRS harassment." Tronokas said, "Judge Ramsey informed the prosecution that 'They are your witnesses but also his friends, and they indicated their friendship in their testimony.'"

Tronokas said, "The case is going well, but it's an uphill battle when you're fighting the U.S. government and the IRS with one lawyer and one man." He added that "The government has really put it to him (Snyder). Next week will be our last and final strike for democracy."

Other witnesses called by the government, according to Snyder, included a representative from the IRS center in Philadelphia, Pa., who testified to returns that Snyder filed and taxes paid from 1965 through 1980, and a former IRS employee subpoenaed from Cumberland, who had computed Snyder's tax liability for the years 1971 and 1972, which led to a February, 1980 seizure of property at Snyder's home and place of business.

Tronokas said the witness from Cumberland testified that he made an assessment of some $33,000 for the year 1971 without allowing Snyder any deductions or expenses, including expenses for materials in his shop. The defense attorney added that assessment should have been somewhere in the area of $890.

Snyder said the government "brought on people we've dealt with over the years," including the head of the International Mint Corporation out of Utah, who reportedly testified to Snyder's purchasing silver coins. Snyder said the prosecution also called a representative from an insurance company in Ohio, who testified to Snyder's purchasing insurance for an airplane.

Snyder added that "The leader of the raid (held in February at Snyder's residence) testified that this was the only raid he has conducted during which he has used U.S. Marshals with machine guns."

Tronokas said "The real heat of the battle started yesterday, with a Special Agent on the stand," and Snyder added that the presentation of his case next week will involve at least half a dozen Garrett Countians.

Snyder has apparently not paid federal taxes for the past 10 years, claiming he is not opposed to paying taxes, but feels he was "mistreated" by the IRS. The trial is the culmination of 10 years of encounters, investigations, liens and court proceedings between Snyder and the IRS, since the Oakland man reportedly began filing tax returns and withholding information in 1971.

According to Russell T. Baker, Jr., U.S. Attorney for the District of Maryland, each count of tax evasion carries a maximum penalty of five years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine. Failure to file tax returns carries a maximum penalty of one year imprisonment and a $10,000 fine for each return not filed, and the maximum penalty for concealment of assets is three years imprisonment and a $5,000 fine.

In commenting on the trial this week, Snyder said "The battle's getting hot, and the IRS, they're squirming."

Drivers Facing Higher Charges For Insurance

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Drivers insured by private companies next year will have to pay more for coverage to bail out the financially troubled Maryland Automobile Insurance Fund, officials said Friday.

An additional 2.2 percent charge on insurance premiums is necessary to collect $14.9 million to pay off claims against drivers insured by MAIF, said state insurance commissioner Edward J. Birrane, Jr.

The charge will add about $11 next year to the bill paid by the typical Baltimore driver with a minimum-coverage policy costing $500 and about $8 to the suburban motorist with a $350 premium.

The exact charge will vary among insurance companies, Birrane said. Although the firms could decide not to pass the charge along to customers, almost all probably will, he added.

Arthur L. Forbus, MAIF executive director, explained the fund needs the money because it expects to pay more next year in claims from past accidents than it will get in premium payments from its dwindling group of policyholders.

MAIF was granted permission in April to charge its 60,000 policy holders an average of 3.1 percent more for car insurance. But Forbus said officials are reluctant to raise policy rates to cover deficits because customers may not be able to afford insurance.

"If we have rates that were totally adequate, we would increase the number of uninsured motorists on the road. People would drive without insurance," Forbus said. "We have to maintain rates that are affordable."

The extra charge to motorists is being made under a 1976 law that requires the 380 insurance companies who offer car insurance in Maryland to make up any cash shortfall in MAIF, which insures motorists who have difficulty getting private insurance because of a bad driving record.

The charges were levied twice before. In 1977, private companies hiked premiums to pay $7.5 million to MAIF and this year, private firms increased rates to pay $9 million.

The fund is particularly strapped now because claims it must pay are inflated by high medical and auto repair costs while the number of policyholders paying premiums is declining by nearly 25 percent each year.

Forbus said MAIF is losing policyholders because private companies have started insuring many more high-risk drivers, and other motorists are dropping insurance and second cars as the economy worsens.

"We've had a tremendous loss of business," he said. The fund expects to collect only about $40 million in premiums and to pay about $55 million in claims, agents' commissions and expenses.

Synfuels Project

firm, joined the efforts to build the coal-conversion plant in Western Maryland this fall.

The limited distribution prospectus will list alternative methods to produce and market methanol and will suggest advantages for several large corporations to begin operation in a local plant by 1990. Bechtol will publish the book within 13 weeks, Meyer said.

The synfuels plant is estimated to create 3,000 jobs during peak construction, 600 permanent jobs in-plant during production, 1,500 additional miners added to coal company payrolls and about 1,200 expected to be additionally employed in restaurants, motels and other related businesses.

The primary site for the $1.5 billion synfuels plant is the Black Oak area, a 900-acre tract in Maryland and West Virginia, 12 miles south of Cumberland on the North Branch of the Potomac River.

The proposed site is owned by Potomac Edison, a part of the Allegheny Power Systems, one of 18 major corporations which are now involved to varying degrees with the project. Coal companies, utility companies and related industries are taking increasing interest in the WESTMAR project.

Black Oak was selected as the primary site based on its centralized proximity to coal mines in the tri-state area, the abundant supply of water, the presence of the Chessie System's Western Maryland Railroad, and the plentiful supply of skilled laborers in Western Maryland.

The facility would convert 10,000 tons of coal into 45,000 barrels of methanol daily during the first phase of production with those figures increasing to 70,000 barrels of methanol from 20,000 tons of coal in the second phase.

Methanol can be used more cheaply than oil to produce electricity, a key attraction to utility companies.

The local price of coal will allow a WESTMAR plant to produce electricity at a cost of less than $.0.04 KWH, methanol for less than 70 cents per gallon.

"While other fuels are rising in price at about 3½ percent annually, coal is rising at 1½ percent per year," Meyer adds.

Coal reserves within a 50-mile radius of the proposed site have been estimated to be over eight billion tons.

The project is entering the feasibility study stage whereby investors will be identified. The study will be tailored to obtain the answers needed most by investors to determine if they should continue with the project.

Determining product mix, conducting product tests, and identifying the market for the products are a few of the points of extensive study which is expected to take a year to complete.

Approximately $400,000 will have been expended in the project by February. Funding has been through Appalachian Regional Commission grants through the Tri-County Council, the project organizer that last year authorized a pre-feasibility study by Stone and Webster Engineering Corporation of Boston, Mass.

Upon completion of the $95,000 study S & W concluded that "Western Maryland has the necessary attributes to be a commercial success and thus deserves further investigation." The study was completed last March.

While advancing with the feasibility study, WESTMAR will also be applying to the U.S. Synfuels Corporation (USSC) to further enhance the project by protecting potential investors with loan and price guarantees. The USSC was formed by Congress last year to minimize investors' risks in an effort to spur nationwide construction of synfuels plants as alternate energy sources.

Views On Dental Health
By Ted Reeder, D.D.S.

So you are wearing an upper or lower denture, or both. Does this mean that you have no reason to visit your dentist? Not if you expect to maintain your oral health and comfort.

The mouth, gums, and ridges are constantly changing and often cause dentures to fit improperly, even if no discomfort is noted.

Several general health conditions may influence the proper function of dentures. These may be vitamin deficiency, loss of weight, diabetes, blood pressure changes and others.

Ill-fitting dentures may cause several serious problems such as inflammation, destruction of the supporting bony ridges, and in some cases, the prolonged denture irritation may stimulate the development of tumors.

A check up every one or two years, is a good habit that pays dividends in a healthy mouth and better fitting dentures.

One facet of the rich, varied career of Gordon K. "Sandy" Douglass is captured on canvas in one of several paintings on display at the Ruth Enlow Library, Oakland, through December 10. The exhibit offers a retrospective on Douglass' professional painting in the 1930's, prior to beginning a venture in boat building, racing and design. Now retired from the Douglass Boat Co., Deer Park, he remains active in yachting and racing the Flying Scot and Highlander, two designs still active in world class competition.

The early years of Gordon K. "Sandy" Douglass, Oakland, are reflected in an exhibit of paintings from the 1930's. Douglass, a graduate of the Collegiate School and Dartmouth (1926) painted for a time with the Art Students' League in New York City. His interest in art included several commercial art ventures, like the painting of Ginger Rogers, above, done on speculation for a movie magazine of the time. A family background in boat building and racing (his father was commodore of the American Canoe Association) led Douglass to forsake his art studies during the depression years to build sailing canoes. After entering the boat design and construction business in partnership, Douglass developed the Thistle boat class of his own design, one of three world class designs credited to the Oakland resident.

District Court Cases Heard

Assault and battery charges, as well as theft and destruction of property charges, were heard in district court by Judge Lewis Jones and visiting Judge Miller Bowen, Allegany County, during the last two weeks.

Kevin J. Herman, 18, Deer Park, was found guilty on charges of theft lodged against him by the Garrett County Sheriff's Department.

According to the file, gasoline was stolen by Herman and Terry Wayne Sharpless, 20, also of Deer Park. Several trucks owned by C. W. Wright Construction Company, Frederick, were parked on the lot of the P. G. Arnold Service Station, Deer Park, when the pair entered the area at approximately 11:30 p.m.

Pre-sentence investigations have been ordered for both men.

Roger Basinger, 24, Accident, was found guilty of theft charges lodged against him by Theodore House, Grantsville. The complainant stated that Basinger removed animal traps from an outdoor building on his property, valued at $100.

A pre-sentence investigation was ordered.

An Oakland man, David Liller, 20, was fined $25, and ordered to spend 60 days in jail, which was suspended, for disorderly conduct in the Fireside Lounge, Second St., Oakland. The court directed Liller to accept alcohol counseling and treatment, and to avoid entering the Fireside establishment. He was placed on 12-months supervised probation on that charge.

Liller was also found guilty on charges of disturbing the peace in the rail yard of the B&O station area. The defendant was fined $50 plus costs in the incident.

William Thomas McCleary, 26, Salisbury, Pa., was found guilty of battery against Richard Berkley, Meyersdale, Pa., stemming from an incident in the Cavern Tavern, Grantsville.

According to the complainant, he was physically attacked in the tavern restroom. During the fracas, his glasses were broken and he was struck about the head and shoulders.

The court levied a fine of $50 plus restitution for the glasses in the amount of $55.

Two Mt. Lake Park women were engaged in a dispute over an argument between their children, according to a complaint filed by Nancy Ruff.

According to the complainant, her ten-year-old daughter was physically abused by Linda Lou Stemple, 34, as the incident took place. A picture in the case history indicated a patch of hair missing from the child's scalp.

A verdict of guilty was handed down by the court and a pre-sentence investigation was ordered.

John H. Snyder, 39, Oakland, was sentenced to 30 days in jail by Judge Jones for public drunkenness on September 27. The charges were filed against him by Gary Shope, Oakland Police Department.

A McHenry man, Raymond Ferguson, Jr., 21, was sentenced to three months in jail, and ordered to pay a $150 fine plus court costs on charges of assault and indecent exposure filed against him by Debra Bittinger, 18, Friendsville.

Ms. Bittinger and a friend were walking along Rt. 42 near Friendsville last July 9 when Ferguson stopped his car and asked for directions. Ms. Bittinger reported the defendant was not properly clothed, and attempted to pull her into his vehicle.

The jail term was suspended, and the defendant was ordered to serve 18-months supervised probation.

Karl William Wilson, Oakland, was found guilty on four charges of public intoxication and disturbing the peace at the Agway Feed Store, Oakland. He was sentenced to 60 days in jail with credit for 46 days served.

Not guilty verdicts were handed down to Ronald Beeghly, Oakland, theft, trespassing and destruction of property; Milton DeWitt, Oakland, battery, and Betty Jenkins, Markleysburg, Pa., battery.

Cases declared nolle prosequi by the state's attorney included Theodore M. Lewis; Kevin Jeffrey Herman; Michael Gerald Casteel; Mary Lou Casteel; and Daniel Brewer. Cases placed on the stet docket included Timothy Franklin Armstrong and Raymond Arthur Ferguson, Jr.

Two Men Arrested For Drunk Driving

Maryland State Police, Garrett County detachment, arrested two persons last week for driving while under the influence of alcohol or drugs. They included Robert Allen Sharpless, 20, Deer Park, and Randolph Montgomery, 21, Covington, Va.

The arresting officers were Tfc. Chester Miller and Tfc. J.W. Michael.

Local DAR Group Welcomes Speaker

The Youghiogheny Glades Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, met last week at the home of Mrs. Robert Ruckart, Oakland. Dean Robert Trantham, Garrett Community College, was the guest speaker.

The program, titled "Our Country" consisted of patriotic medleys of music made popular during the Civil War era to the present. He told of the history of the songs and the events of our country during that particular period.

Included in the collection were "Battle Hymn of the Republic," "Dixie," and "When Johnny Comes Marching Home."

The World War I era featured music by George M. Cohan, and included "You're A Grand Old Flag," and "Over There." Partly because of the changing role of women and their employment during World War II, music such as "Rosie the Riveter," "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition" and "A Wing and a Prayer" were also popular through the wartime period.

A final tribute to Irving Berlin closed the program, with rememberance of "This is the Army" and "God Bless America."

Mrs. Edward Kovach, Regent, conducted the business meeting and gave the national defense report. Mrs. James Quinet led the group prayer, and Mrs. Paul Calderwood read a Thanksgiving message by the president general, National Society DAR.

Two new members were presented by the Regent and greeted by the group. They were Mrs. William Naylor and Mrs. Robert C. Zeller, Terra Alta, W. Va. Hostesses were Mrs. Harley Dawson, Mrs. Paul Calderwood, Mrs. James Hutchinson, Mrs. Wayne Hamilton and Mrs. Ruckert.

until the system is operating smoothly. Stewart added that a 12-man crew of county residents was hired to clean garbage off the grounds of the dumpster sites.

Stewart noted that a permanent local phone number will soon be available for citizens to call to ask questions about operation of the system.

In other business, Dr. William Pope, county health officer, discussed the possibility of continuing to house the environmental health section of the Garrett County Health Department in the old part of the county courthouse.

Gary Mullich, building manager, pointed out that original plans for the courthouse were to house all county offices which issue permits in one section of the courthouse, including environmental health.

Pope stated that plans for renovation of a section of Garrett County Memorial Hospital to house the health department were near completion and indicated he needed to settle the matter of where environmental health would be located. He added that federal cuts could reduce the health department drastically, thereby reducing the amount of space its services would require.

The commissioners agreed that the environmental health section should remain in its current location at the courthouse.

Jack Turney, attorney for the county, noted that Garrett County received $570 in an out-of-court settlement between the Maryland Attorney General's office and several meterological firms charged with price fixing. Turney noted that the county was named as one of the parties in a class action suit brought against the meterological firms several years ago.

Gary Mullich noted that construction of the Animal Health Lab, located next to the Animal Shelter, should be completed by the end of November.

Seven residents of Bloomington and Oakland attorney Dwight Stover attended the public hearing for a proposed alley abandonment at 2 p.m. Stover represented those opposing the proposed abandonment and raised questions about ownership of the alley and whether the commissioners were actually in a position to abandon the alley. The commissioners stated they would further discuss the matter before reaching a decision.

James Lupis, assistant superintendent of administrative services, told the commissioners that according to a contract between the county, Board of Education and the late Albert Richter for the purchase of the new Accident School site, an access road will have to be provided the new owner of the adjoining property. He stated the road would be 30 feet wide and several hundred yards long.

Anna McNallie, senior planner, requested the commissioners' final approval on the county transit development program.

The commissioners appointed Chairman Ernest Gregg to represent them on the Garrett County School Transportation Advisory Committee.

Bausch & Lomb

plant has been in the process of reducing its work force over the past few weeks.

"While the majority of these reductions will be completed by November 27, the minimal number of remaining reductions will occur and be completed by December 11," Good said in a statement released to the press on Monday. "Beyond December 11, it is planned to closely manage our attrition in an effort to minimize the necessity of additional involuntary reductions."

Good also said in his statement that "There are no plans to close the Oakland plant as a result of this decision. On the contrary, plans are presently underway for the addition of a lens edging operation, which will continue as scheduled and provide jobs for those employees who will be displaced by the elimination of our ophthalmic business. In addition, this operation will also support an already strong and relatively stable sunglass manufacturing department."

Before the layoffs, the Oakland plant employed 540 employees, 250 of them were in the ophthalmic division. The total number of employees to be affected by the reduction is not expected to exceed 110.

"At the present time," Good stated, "we are accepting voluntary layoffs from our employees. Those employees who are affected will qualify for extended medical and life insurance benefits, accrued and unused occasional pay, vacation pay, including 1982 vacation, severance pay, and pay in lieu of notice, and special reinstatement benefits."

Good added, "Our management sincerely regrets this unfortunate situation and recognized that work force reductions can never be viewed as a positive action. However, we feel this will position the Oakland plant to be a stronger operation in the future and help to make the transition to a sunglass-oriented facility."

County commissioner Ernest Gregg, in speaking for the county board of commissioners, said, "We note a great deal of regret that this is the second major employing agency which has drastically curtailed employment in Garrett County. It has an impact on our employment and economy in general."

The commissioners pointed out that the September unemployment rate, at 14.4 percent, was the highest it has ever been for that month. Tom Jones, county development director, said that August and September are traditionally the two months of the year with the lowest unemployment rates for the county.

The commissioners added that even though the unemployment rate traditionally rises during the winter months, the Bausch & Lomb layoffs will have an impact on the rate.

Early reports of the Bausch & Lomb announcement apparently confused the public. Tom Jones said he received a call from the office of Maryland Governor Harry Hughes after a story appeared in the Thursday issue of the Wall Street Journal. The governor's aides stated they thought the Oakland plant was to completely shut down.

Bausch & Lomb is recording a charge of $25.3 million or $2.15 per share against 1981 fourth quarter net income to establish a reserve attributable to discontinuing the company's ophthalmic business. Future financial reports will reflect the reclassification of the ophthalmic products business as a discontinued operation. Most measures of the company's past financial results will be favorably affected by this action, which will also provide a more meaningful representation of the company's continuing growth businesses.

Sales of ophthalmic products for the first nine months of 1981 were $54.7 million, down 30 percent from $78.1 million for the prior year period. These results reflect the company's previous actions to consolidate marginal operations. Total employment in the company's ophthalmic operations number approximately 1,500 in the U.S. and 700 abroad.

Further commenting on today's announcement, Gill said, "Our continuing contact lens products, sunglass and other consumer products and instruments businesses form a strong foundation for the future growth of the company. The combined revenues for these businesses for the first nine months of 1981, when adjusted for changes in foreign currency exchange rates, increased 18 percent over prior year results. This growth was attained despite difficult economic conditions and is representative of the fine outlook for the company in the years ahead."

St. John's Church To Hold Service For Thanksgiving

A Thanksgiving service will be held at the St. John's United Church of Christ, Grantsville, on November 25 at 7:30 p.m. The Maple Grove Church of the Brethren will participate in the service.

The sermon, entitled "Five Kernels of Corn," will be delivered by the Rev. Connell T. Chaney, pastor at St. John's.

Soloist Ronald Durst will sing "The Lighthouse," and St. John's choir will sing "All Things Bright and Beautiful."

The scripture will be read by the Rev. Steven Wingate, pastor at Maple Grove.

The service is open to the community.

Accident Water, Sewer Extension Bids Received

Wendell Keaton, Municipal Administrator, announced the results of a bid opening at the Garrett County Planning Office on Friday for water and sewer line extensions to the new Accident school site.

The bids received included Alvarez Contractors, $24,018.25; Frank Arnold Construction Company, the apparent low bidder at $20,128; and Highland Park Excavation, $26,794. A decision to approve a bid will be made at the December 7 regularly scheduled Accident Town Council meeting.

Safety Council Warns

Traffic Accidents Could Take Large Toll

CHICAGO (UPI) — Traffic accidents on the nation's roadways could kill between 480 and 580 people over the four-day Thanksgiving holiday that begins tonight, the National Safety Council predicts.

In addition, 21,000 to 25,000 people may suffer disabling injuries in traffic accidents during the holiday period, the council said Tuesday.

The holiday officially begins at 6:00 p.m. local time tonight and ends at midnight Sunday.

Warning of another kind of Thanksgiving holiday danger, Dr. Hymie Kavin, acting director of the Division of Gastroenterology at Michael Reese Hospital in Chicago says large turkey dinners with all the trimmings can present a host of problems to people who overeat.

The most serious trouble overeaters face is heart trouble, usually experienced by middle-aged men whose coronary arteries are blocked, Kavin said. But heartburn, caused by the backing up of stomach acid from overeating, afflicts more people, he said.

Kavin said holiday eaters should eat only until they are pleasantly full, avoid fluids while eating, go easy on oily foods, eat slowly and resist a nap, which could cause increased heartburn.

Too many table scraps can also make the family pet ill, the Animal Welfare League of Chicago said.

Poultry bones should also be avoided because they are soft and can stick in a cat or dog's throat, lead to an upset stomach or puncture the animal's digestive tract.

"Rat Rub Out"

Large Rat Population Plagues Baltimore City Despite Program

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The city's rat population — estimated to be one for every urban dweller — may soar unless citizens pitch in to ease the impact of federal budget cuts, the head of the Rat Rub Out program said Tuesday.

Donna Johnson said the future of the rat fighting program will be in doubt when a $300,000 grant from the Center for Disease Control runs out on Nov. 30. Rat Rub Out's federal funding will be part of the state Department of Health and Mental Hygiene's block grant, which is expected to be at least 25 percent below last year's level.

"It's not just that rats are filthy and live on filth. They have a direct impact on our pocketbooks," said Ms. Johnson in explaining why the city needs to continue the massive rat prevention and extermination program it launched 11 years ago.

Twenty-three people people in Baltimore were bitten by rats last year and Rat Rub Out recieved more than 50,000 complaints.

"Wherever rats live, they touch all of us every day directly or indirectly. They carry disease and a certain number of people are bitten by rats each year. They contaminate millions and millions of dollars worth of food every year," Ms. Johnson said.

"Rats are also costly to us because there are a large number of fires caused by rats gnawing on electrical wire," she said.

Rat Rub Out's latest budget reductions follow cuts in the CETA program, which last summer trimmed 15 workers from the staff. That forced the program to stop its door-to-door inspection and clean-up campaigns in key neighborhoods.

Ms. Johnson said the anti-rate program must compete with other city programs under the block grant system. She said Rat Rub Out is counting on community groups to pass information among their neighbors and stage local cleanups.

Railroad Car Explodes Tuesday

HAGERSTOWN, Md. (UPI) — A railroad tank car filled with combustible fumes exploded Tuesday as a repairman lit an acetylene torch at its top opening, authorities said, burning the man severely.

Lt. Robert Frick of the Hagerstown police said the tank car owned by the Du Pont Co. exploded at 1:30 p.m., seconds after the worker lit the torch. Authorities evacuated about 50 workers from the site, the repair area for the Western Maryland Railroad.

The explosion site was about one-quarter mile from a heavily populated area, Frick said.

"The car was supposed to be purged (of its contents) before being repaired," Frick said. "It was also supposed to be vented at some point, but this one was not and there was a buildup of gas."

Frick said authorities were worried that the acetylene vapors from the torch might react chemically with whatever was inside the tank car.

Second Snowfall Causes Mishaps In Western Maryland

By United Press International

Maryland's second snowfall of the season dumped two inches on some western parts of the state Tuesday and contributed to at least 70 accidents, including one in which a tractor-trailer barreled down a steep embankment, trapping its driver.

The storm hit hardest in Washington and Garrett counties, where a mixture of snow and rain turned to a sheet of ice, making roadways and bridges treacherous. State police reported fifty snow-related accidents in Washington County alone, including one that locked a 37-year-old tractor-trailer driver inside his rig for three hours.

Peter P. Schetat, 37, of Hackettstown, N.J. was heading north on Route 81, near Hagerstown, when Linda K. Richard, 31, of Hagerstown, lost control of her car in ice and snow and collided twice with Schetat's vehicle.

"He went off the right side and down the embankment, and she ran into the median strip (to the left)," said Trooper Lewis Blenard, the investigating officer.

Schetat's truck, hauling a load of lead pipe, ran down a 100-foot high embankment, the vehicle twisting in the snow. "We had a hard time seeing him because the truck was so crushed up, but he kept hollering, 'Help me, Help me,'" Blenard said.

Rescue workers finally extricated Blenard at 11:30 a.m. and rushed him to the Washington County Hospital in Hagerstown, where he remained in stable condition.

The mishap forced police to block off the northbound lanes of the interstate for more than four hours until rescue equipment cleared the scene.

Ms. Richards was charged with speed too great for the conditions and released pending a court appearance, police said.

In Cumberland, Sgt. Tom Ruppert of the state police barrack there, said, "Cars and trucks are slipping and sliding all over the place." But Ruppert said less than an inch of snow accumulated.

Eight snow-related accidents were reported in Allegany and Garrett counties.

Snow emergency plans took effect at 8 a.m. and remained in effect at 4 p.m. in Garrett, Allegany and Washington counties. Under the plan, motorists driving along selected, well-traveled routes were required to have either radial or snowtires, or chains.

Elsehwere in Maryland, light snow fell in Baltimore and areas to the north but did not accumulate.

Redistricting Plan Under Fire

Legislators Complain About New District Boundaries

ANNAPOLIS (UPI) — Legislators from nearly every corner of the state lined up Tuesday to complain about a plan to change the boundary lines of most of Maryland's 47 legislative districts.

Democrats complained about a proposed new northern Baltimore and Carroll County district that would be heavily Republican.

Harford County senators and delegates complained their county had been split north to south instead of east to west as they had wished.

The lone delegate from mountainous Garrett County complained the five-member task force that drew up the reapportionment plans had attached the wrong two Allegany County voting precincts to his Western Maryland district.

Officials from Rockville said they did not want to share a district with Gaithersburg, and Gaithersburg officials said the same about Rockville.

A Prince George's County senator said he objected to the plan because it split Laurel among two legislative districts.

Several of those who testified at the public hearing held by the Governor's Advisory Commission on Reapportionment accused the task force of "gerrymandering" — drawing district lines so that they favored or hurt specific incumbents or political parties.

"The map looks blatantly gerrymandered," said one state senator from Baltimore County.

"The plan for Montgomery County seems to be done in the spirit of gerrymandering," said the mayor of one of the county's small municipalities. "The lines look like they were drawn by a drunk with the hiccups."

Sen. Edward Mason, an Allegany County Republican, was about the only lawmaker who spoke who had no complaint about his own district.

"You didn't change my plan at all," he said, but joked, "I may be in trouble."

The commission listened for several hours, but took no immediate action. It plans to make some minor alterations to the plan based on the public hearing testimony and then submit it to Gov. Harry Hughes.

The commission plans to hold a second public hearing Dec. 1 to discuss the proposed new state legislative districts for Baltimore as well as the new congressional reapportionment plan for the entire state.

Overcrowding May Persist Despite New State Prison, Crawford Warns

ANNAPOLIS (UPI) — The chairman of a legislative panel that studied Maryland prisons warns that a planned new prison may not be large enough to ease "outrageous" overcrowded conditions.

Sen. Victor L. Crawford, D-Montgomery, told the Legislative Policy Committee Tuesday that the plan by Gov. Harry Hughes to build a 720-bed prison in Hagerstown and house 320 more inmates in basement dormitories provides only "a minimum figure" of new beds.

The proposal provides 1,040 new beds, but "I think that's low. We may need closer to 1,500," Crawford said.

The senator headed a committee who studied the prison system last summer. He was reporting conclusions the committee reached last month.

The group found overcrowding and idleness have created "outrageous" conditiony in prisons, Crawford said. The committee also recommended an end to the practice of housing two inmates in cells built for one.

"It's a matter of humanity for the inmates and the guards," Crawford said. "We have problems with homosexuality. We have problems with prisoners attacking each other. We have problems with guards.

"Most of the state's prison cells are a little smaller that a bathroom in your house. To force two people to live there, in antiquated facilities, is wrong," he added.

The state's current plans for dealing with prison overcrowding depend on continuing the practice of housing two prisoners in cells designed for one.

Crawford's comments received little sympathy from some lawmakers on the policy committee.

"I really don't understand what's wrong with double-celling. You haven't convinced me," said Sen. Margaret C. Schweinhaut, D-Montgomery.

Delegate Daniel J. Minnich, D-Baltimore County, agreed.

"I went out to Rosewood (a state hospital for the mentally retarded) and they've got four or five kids in one room," he said. "There's no way in the world I could vote for your recommendations when we haven't even taken care of the little kids who haven't done anything wrong."

Crawford's committee also recommended reviving the defunct Prison Farm, increasing programs to aid inmates with alcohol and drug problems, and requiring inmates in medium and maximum security prisons to wear uniforms.

Prince George's Co.

Massage Parlors Under Scrutiny

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. (UPI) — The Prince George's County Council approved Tuesday a ban on cross-sexual massages at massage parlors.

Councilman Frank Casula, the bill's co-sponsor, said the measure is designed to crack down on massage parlors that are fronts for houses of prostitution.

Massage parlor operators and the county Chamber of Commerce opposed the bill on grounds it would hurt legitimate businesses that are not involved in prostitution.

The bill also sets up standards for the regulation and licensing of massage parlors and "massage technicians."

The bill was defeated on the first vote, but after its effective date was changed from immediately to next March, it passed on a 6-4 vote.

American Lifestyle

Club's Sex Barriers Fall To Descendent Of Founder

PORTLAND, Maine (UPI) — Maureen Dow says her great-great-grandfather-in-law would see women of independent political persuasion downing a beer at the prestigious Portland Club.

The club was founded nearly a century ago for "male members of the Republican Party" by Fred Dow, a prominent GOP figure in Maine.

Dow's father, Neal, is regarded as the "father of American prohibition." So it was natural when the club adopted its bylaws in 1886 that Fred Dow would write: "Without a dissenting voice, a rule was adopted excluding intoxicating liquors and any game that could savor of gambling."

Club members, who voted 141-9 as recently as 1957 to keep Democrats and independents out, finally opened up their political ranks in 1971. But the vote to allow women came only this year.

Maureen Dow, 30, a registered independent and Neal Dow's great-grea'-granddaughter-in-law, became one of the club's first women members this month.

"I think he'd roll over in his grave if he knew I was here," she said with a smile as she relaxed with a beer on a plush couch at the club's headquarters — a 175-year-old building on the National Register of Historic Places.

"They were pretty straight," she added, glancing up at the stern portraits of Neal and Fred hanging on the wall. "I'm sure they would have ordered me to leave."

Neal Dow, a Portland mayor, authored the "Maine Law" in 1851 — "An act for the suppression of drinking-houses and tippling shops" — which served as the model for prohibition statutes throughout the country.

Maine — a center of rum trade with the West Indies in Dow's youth — was "dry" until 1934.

A poster tribute to Neal Dow that adorns Maureen Dow's home proclaims: "Drunkenness, pauperism and crime have greatly diminished — and industry, thrift and happiness are taking their places."

Maureen is married to another Neal Dow, who also likes a beer now and then.

"Whenever we say our name people always ask, 'Do you drink?'" she said. "I say 'Yes.' I laugh."

The Portland Club lacks a liquor license, so functions are strictly BYOB at its State Street headquarters.

"The membership felt that in order to have a good cross-section of the business and professional community that we had to have women," said club president Thomas Whyte.

"It just blows me away that the great-grandaughter-in-law of the founder is one of the first women members," he said.

The club, which has grown to about 200 members with the admission of women, began around the time Thomas Honan, an Irish potato farmer, emigrated to America.

"My husband and I laugh that if my grandfather and his grandfather had known about this marriage they would have died," she said. "The backgrounds are so different, these staunch Quaker Republicans and this Irish-Catholic family."

Maryland Turkey Farmers Produce 100,000 Gobblers

Maryland's seven turkey farms will sell about 100,000 of the big birds this year, a spokesman for the state agriculture department said, with holiday buyers paying as much as $1.20 per pound for the most fresh and tender gobblers.

Turkey farms in Maryland produce birds largely for "fresh," or unfrozen, sales.

Fresh birds bought at places like Schramm's Turkey Farms in Pasadena and Maple Lawn Farms in Fulton cost much more than the frozen birds purchased at Maryland grocery stores. But growers insist the enhanced taste justifies the higher price.

"Those ones that people freeze and leave in the freezer the whole year just don't have any taste when people cook them," said Evelyn Schramm, who has helped run the family turkey farm for 35 years.

Turkey lovers travel from as far away as Virginia and Pennsylvania to purchase Schramm turkeys, such are their taste, Mrs. Schramm said. "Most of our people are regular customers, although we have had a lot of new ones this year. One man came from Washington (D.C.) this Sunday and picked up seven birds.

Other Maryland turkey farms are: Hillside Farms in Thurmont; Clauss Farms in Pasadena; Gadow Farms in Preston; Willard Farms in Lantz and the Ellwood Glofelty 5 Farms in Accident.

Reflecting a national trend, turkey production in Maryland is up this year, said Tony Evans, a spokesman for the state agriculture department.

From an all-time high of 118,000, turkey production fell to 86,000 last year in Maryland, Evans said. In 1976, 90,000 turkeys were produced and 91,000 in each of 1977 and 1978.

By far the largest number of turkeys consumed in the state this Thanksgiving will come not from Maryland but from Pennsylvania and Minnesota, Evans said.

A spot survey by United Press International of Maryland food stores showed prices for frozen turkeys ranging from 52 cents per pound to 89 cents per pound, depending on the size (bigger turkeys cost less per pound) and quality (Butterballs cost more than most other types).

Fresh turkeys will cost as much as $1.20 per pound.

A national survey showed prices of frozen turkeys ranging from 45 cents per pound at one Pittsburgh supermarket chain to $1.19 per pound at one Mississippi outlet.

Maryland State Lottery

Gamblers Come From All Walks Of Life

BALTIMORE (UPI) — An informal survey Tuesday showed gamblers who play the instant-winner lottery are a diverse group, not just the poor as state officials had feared.

Thomas R. Skarzynski, lottery public information officer, mailed a 16-question form to 1,000 instant-lottery players who had won $50 or more. He receiced 276 responses.

"The broadest generalization that could be made about who is the typical instant game player is ... female, between the ages of 18 and 40. She has completed high school. Her estimated total family income is between $10,000 and $14,000.

"She is married, has no children and is employed, as she perceives it, in a professional-technical field or as a craftsman-mechanic-laborer," he said.

The instant lottery game, which began Sept. 15, has enjoyed successful sales. Gov. Harry Hughes and other lawmakers claimed the game appealed to poor people because they could collect their winnings at the time of the ticket purchase.

Hughes reduced the number of tickets to be sold in the game, saying he was concerned people who could least afford the game were playing it.

Skarzynski said the lottery commission conducted the poll to answer criticism the game would attract only low-income people.

He acknowledged the survey is not scientific.

"There isn't any way of knowing whether (the poll results are valid for every single person who plays the lottery," he noted.

Sidney Hollander, a professional pollster in Baltimore, agreed. He said the "most obvious flaw is that results are biased in terms of the people who are interested in replying."

Slightly more than half the respondents were female and 53 percent said they were 40 or younger.

By income, Skarzynski explained under three broad rankings, estimated income "worked out to a perfect bell-shaped curve for middle income groups."

Respondents making below $10,000 annually totaled 26.7 percent, 48.3 percent reported yearly family income of between $10,000 and $24,999, and 25 percent said they made more than $25,000 per year. Skarzynski said 15 people did not report their income.

He labeled as "significant" the 48.3 percent of the respondents who do not have children.

"We thought that was significant because they have more discretionary dollars that can be used for entertainment."

Although most of the responses came from the Baltimore metropolitan area, residents in all parts of the state answered the survey. Skarzynski noted some responses came from as far away as New York, North Carolina.

Mechanism For Increasing Trout Populations Developed At WVU

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. — More trout may become available to fishermen as the result of a water-powered mechanism that feeds limestone into streams to neutralize their acidity, which was developed at West Virginia University.

The mechanism was designed by Hasan T. Gencsoy, WVU professor of mechanical and aerospace engineering, and one of his graduate students, Greg Clites of Cumberland, for the West Virginia Department of Natural Resources.

Gencsoy said the challenge was to design a self-feeding mechanism, powered by water, that would change feed rates with stream flow.

It became Clites' senior design project, then a prototype was built for testing by Peter E. Zurbuch and his staff at the State Department of Natural Resources, who had pioneered in treating acid streams with limestone 20 years ago.

No serious problems have been found in testing the prototype, which now will be refined by Gencsoy and his graduate students.

The new feed mechanism permits a constant amount of limestone to be added continuously to the stream for the first time and will cut reloading in half, from twice to once a week, when a larger hopper is installed.

Hughes To Request Boost In Funding For Mental Health

ANNAPOLIS (UPI) — Governor Harry Hughes this week will request a "dramatic" boost in funding for Maryland's mental health programs for fiscal 1983, his aides said Sunday.

The governor's office would not confirm reports of mental health advocates who say Hughes will announce a $700,000 budget increase for the Mental Hygiene Administration. But a Hughes spokesman said the governor's request "should meet with the approval of those whose concern the governor shares for mentally ill."

Activist groups such as the Maryland Mental Health Association launched a major lobbying effort following the state's announcement of a plan to cut the state's mental hospital population by 10 percent over the next two years.

The association did not oppose the reduction, but feared the decreased patient population would lead to cuts in funding for all mental health programs. The group wanted the money saved by trimming the state hospital population to be transferred to community care programs.

Dr. Alep Karahasan, director of the Mental Hygiene Administration, said if the agency receives a $700,000 increase it will all be spent on community-based mental health programs.

DiSimone Attends Registers' Session

The Garrett County Register of Wills, Joe DiSimone, attended a seminar in Annapolis on Thursday, November 19. The meeting was a continuation of the September state Registers of Wills Conference held in Ocean City to discuss complete uniformity in the Maryland probate system in regard to procedure and forms.

Bonnie Travieso, assistant attorney general, was present at the session, and took part in the round-table discussion concerning problems arising from different interpretation of the Maryland estates and trusts laws.

New changes in the probate law were discussed, as well as new legislation which will be introduced at the next session.

Persons with questions about estates and trust laws in Maryland are asked to contact DiSimone at his courthouse office, 334-2113.

VA Compensation Amounts Higher As Of This Month

Approximately 2.3 million veterans, along with 240,000 surviving spouses and about 83,000 children of deceased veterans, will receive larger Veterans Administration compensation amounts beginning this month.

The increase and other improvements in veterans benefits are the result of a law signed by President Reagan October 17, according to VA regional director, Milford J. Clayton.

An average 11.2 percent increase in VA compensation rates for service disabled veterans, and dependence and indemnity compensation rates for surviving spouses and children of veterans will be added to the payments, Clayton said.

Although the increased amounts will not be reflected in the regular November checks, Clayton advised they will be provided by means of supplemental checks to be issued shortly after the first of the month. The full amount of the increase will be included in the single monthly check, beginning in December.

The rate boost means an increase from $54 to $58 per month for a veteran with a disability rated at 10 percent. A veteran with a 50 percent disability will receive $328 a month, up from $291, and a veteran with a 100 percent disability will receive $1,130 a month, up from the current $1,016.

The legislation also increases the annual allowance made to certain veterans whose artificial limbs cause wear on their clothing. It goes from $274 to $305.

VA's assistance allowance toward the purchase of a specially adapted automobile or other eligible vehicle by certain handicapped veterans was increased by the new legislation to $4,400 from $3,800.

VA may now make these payments to certain veterans suffering from service-connected ankylosis of one or both knees when specially adapted vehicles are deemed by VA to be necessary in meeting state drivers license requirements.

In another area, the legislation increases to $35,000 the maximum amount of Servicemen's Group Life Insurance and Veterans' Group Life Insurance that may be purchased by eligible veterans.

The legislation also permits VA to guarantee, for the first time, graduated-payment home mortgage loans, and it increases to $32,500 the assistance the agency may provide to certain disabled veterans for adapting their residences to, for example, the requirements of wheelchair-bound individuals.

VA may furnish a headstone or marker to commemorate veterans whose remains have not been recovered or identified, were buried at sea, were donated to science, or cremated and the ashes scattered without burial of any portion.

Clayton emphasized that full details of all changes in the compensation regulations and eligibility requirements are available by contacting any VA regional office.

EXTENDING YOUR INVESTMENT

Most modern families now agree that home ownership is the first sound investment in land. And now that more than half of the families own their own homes, many see the wisdom of extending their holdings and realizing a good return from property they own and rent to others.

The value of property keeps pace with the economy, and for many years the trend has been up . . . up . . . up. Historically, real estate values have always increased faster than the cost of living during inflation and decreased slower in recessions. It's an ideal inflation hedge. Judicious investment in income property offers safety, stability, and opportunity for income, profit and tax savings.

But buying income property on your own is risky. It pays to ask your REALTOR about property as an investment. You incur no obligation . . . but you will gain information of practical value to you and your family.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone one of our offices:

The Allis-Chalmers 6060 with 63.80 PTO HP* has the best torque rise at 35%.

With a rating of 35% torque rise, the 6060 outperforms the Deutz, Deere, IH, MF, Fiat and Case tractors. The 6060 has the best torque rise in its class. And very good fuel economy, too.

*Manufacturer's maximum observed PTO horsepower at rated engine speed

Best balance of torque and fuel economy.

The 6080 and 6060 tractors deliver the best of both worlds: High torque rise and low fuel usage.

It's the kind of balance that comes from an Allis-Chalmers four-cylinder, direct-injection diesel engine. Turbocharged in the 6060's, turbocharged and intercooled in the 6080's. Transfer this high-performance power into pull with a 12-speed transmission in the 6080's, and an 8-speed in the 6060's. Each is synchronized for easy shifting with the right speed to take on any job. For dependability, there are large planetary final drives, wet disc brakes, mechanical differential lock, and a big capacity, open-center hydraulic system.

See your Allis-Chalmers dealer for the complete facts and figures on how the two-wheel drive or four-wheel drive 6080 and 6060 tractors can outperform the competition.

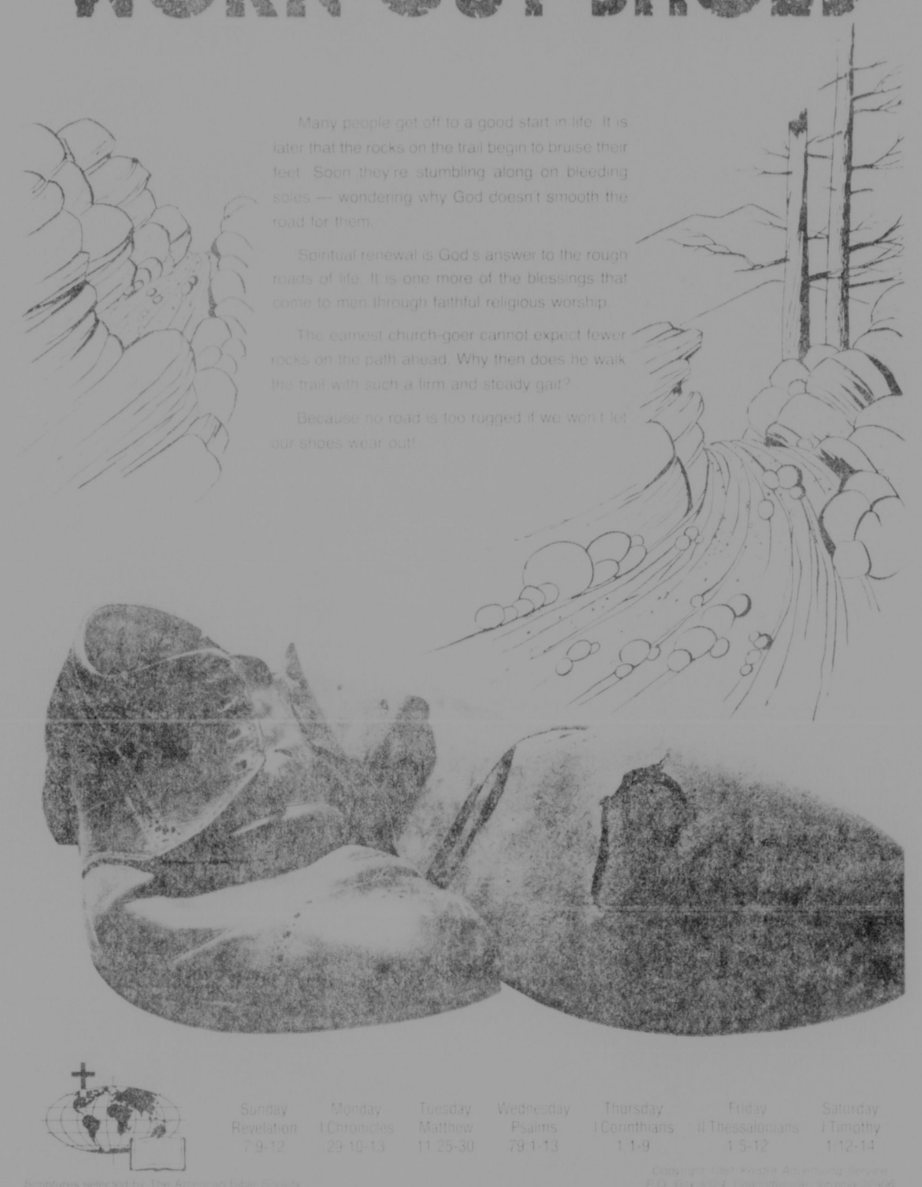
WORN OUT SHOES



Many people get off to a good start in life. It is later that the rocks on the trail begin to bruise their feet. Soon they're stumbling along on bleeding soles — wondering why God doesn't smooth the road for them.

Spiritual renewal is God's answer to the rough roads of life. It is one more of the blessings that come to men through faithful religious worship.

The earnest church-goer cannot expect fewer rocks on the path ahead. Why then does he walk the trail with such a firm and steady gait?

Because no road is too rugged if we won't let our shoes wear out!

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

BORN AGAIN . . . TO LOVE
November 29, 1981

Background Scripture:
I John 4

Devotional Reading:
I Timothy 6:11-21

There is a lot of controversy about what it means to be "born again," a term that seems to be but one more way that followers of Jesus Christ separate themselves from one another—and from him! The term, of course, comes from John 3: 3 and the story about Nicodemus. Jesus tells the pharisee that one must be "born anew" (or "born from above") if he is to see the kingdom of God.

What does this term mean? What is John trying to say to us by including it in his gospel? Unfortunately, Christians cannot agree on their answers. But, if we read all of John's gospel and his epistles as well, it becomes apparent that the purpose of the "new birth," as well as the evidence for it, is love.

Love and Know God

John follows the story of Nicodemus with the well-known assurance that "God so loved the world that he gave his only son . . ." And throughout his gospel and epistles he stresses over and over that, as Christ has loved us, so we must love one another. "New birth" is mentioned but a few times in the fourth gospel, whereas love is its theme. But in John's first epistle, he brings the two concepts together: "Beloved, let us love one another; for love is of God, and he who loves is born of God and knows God" (I John 4: 7). In other words, whatever else the "new birth" entails, the mark of it, the purpose of it, is to love one another.

As Christians we may like each other, at best, or tolerate each other and discipline our combative and hostile impulses. But "love one another"? Is it possible, Lord? Is that what you really want from us? And if it is, can we do it?

Isn't that what Jesus was all about? To show us—not just to tell us—to demonstrate to us that it is not beyond our human capacity to love one another the same way that Christ loved us. "In this is love, not that we have loved God but that he loved us and sent his son to be the expiation of our sins" (4: 10). The love that took Jesus to his cross was a gift that was given him by God. And that same gift can be given to us, if we really want it.

God and Our Brother

What blocks the gift of love, is our hate. For hate is not just something that happens in us, not just a feeling that takes us over, but it is something that we hold onto because we enjoy it. Hate is not a disease against which there is no defense, but the serpent we invite into our lives and hold onto. So, "If any one says, 'I love God,' and hates his brother, he is a liar; for he who does not love his brother whom he has seen, cannot love God whom he has not seen" (4:20). If we continue to hate it is because we choose to hate rather than love.

All of us are called by God to be "born anew" and the purpose of that rebirth is to love.

HOW TO KNOW A MEDICAL QUACK

Quacks not only take your money, but also steal some of the precious time when early diagnosis and treatment of a disease can prevent much later danger.

Any person who guarantees a quick cure, uses a secret machine or formula, advertises testimonials of his cures, tells you surgery or x-rays do more harm than good, or claims the medical profession is persecuting him is a quack. The more he tells you that the physicians are afraid of his competition, the more certain you can be of his quackery. Beware of such fakers. Voltaire said, "The quack was born when the first knave met the first fool."

State Forests Valuable To County

by Michael R. Gregory
Forest Naturalist
Maryland Forest Service

Despite the effects of tight budgets, inflation, and declining manpower resources, Potomac, Garrett, and Savage River State Forests continued to provide a wide range of services and opportunities to the people of Garrett County during 1981. Managed under a concept known as multiple use the forests remain an important source of wood fiber, protected watersheds, wildlife habitat, and recreation for the county.

The forests' total income for the year amounted to more than $150,000. Twenty-five percent of this income, over $37,000, will be returned to the county for use as the local government deems necessary. A total of 1,420 acres were harvested on the forests, while 428 acres of forest land were thinned. This acreage prodeuced over 2,000,000 board feet of sawtimber and over 448,000 cubic feet of pulpwood. Additionally, the state forests provided area residents with over 176,000 cubic feet of firewood. For the energy conscious that 176,000 cubic feet of wood represents the heating potential of 495,000 gallons of #2 fuel oil.

Through cooperative efforts between the Maryland Wildlife Administration and the Maryland Forest Service 89 acres of state forest land were treated to provide more suitable habitat for various wildlife species. In addition, over 5,000 shrubs were planted on the forests to increase the availability of food and cover for the areas wildlife populations.

As always, the forest served as a haven for recreationists seeking enjoyment in the out of doors. Estimates from the three state forests and adjacent state parks indicate that these areas served 108,845 sightseers, 6,396 campers, 11,174 fishermen, 9,288 hunters, 3,506 snowmobilers and 1,672 cross-country skiers.

Outlooks for the forthcoming year appear even brighter with the establishment of more trails, scenic vistas, and campsites being planned in 1982.

The 70,000 acres of state forest land in Garrett County serve as a valuable resource for this county and its residents. The harvesting of timber from these lands provides jobs for a number of area residents and supplies raw material to numerous mills in the region. The recreational opportunities on the forest attract thousands of people to the region. These recreationists in turn utilize local businesses as a source of food, fuel, and lodging, adding greatly to the local economy.

Perhaps most important, however, is the fact that these forest lands add greatly to the quality of life here in Garrett County. By providing us with clean air, pure water, and scenic beauty few people can argue that these lands greatly enhance our lives.

Benefit Dance For Rescue Squad Slated

Maryland State Tree Is Target Of Gypsy Moth

Maryland's state tree, the white oak, may be an endangered species as far as ornamental planting is concerned, according to a University of Maryland researcher.

"White oak is the preferred food plant of the gypsy moth," explains John Davidson, Extension entomologist at the University of Maryland. "While gypsy moths will eat over 300 kinds of trees and shrubs, white oak is usually the first to go.

"Unfortunately, oak trees are among the most widely planted ornamental species," continues Davidson. "Many suburban communities have grown stands of white and other oaks that are particularly attractive to gypsy moths.

"The problem is so severe that our new Extension publications will no longer recommend the use of oak, particularly white oak, as a tree for home plantings," says the University entomologist.

In Maryland, the first infestation of an area usually occurs when newly-hatched caterpillers drift with the wind and land on taller, mature trees. They feed in the crowns of the trees until they are larger, and it is usually at this stage that homeowners notice the problem. Control measures at that point are generally ineffective, suggests Davidson.

The pest was introduced into Massachusetts from Europe in 1869, but it did not spread rapidly until the late 1960's. The first extensive defoliation of Maryland trees (about 8000) acres) occurred in the northeastern counties in 1981. Infestations are now reported throughout the state.

In view of this, Davidson suggests planting tree varieties which gypsy moth caterpillers will not eat. Despite the wide range of acceptable food plants, the insects avoid tulip poplar, sycamore, ash, catalpa, dogwood, hackberry, honey locust, horse chestnut, persimmon, walnut, osage orange and mulberry among deciduous species, and holly, arborvitae, holly and juniper in the evergreen category. Homeowners should consult their county Extension agent for information on which of these species grow well in their areas, according to Davidson.

"While oaks are the gypsy moth's first choice as food, they also feed readily on alder, apple, birch, boxelder, hawthorn, larch, linden, mountain ash, Lombardy poplar, black spruce, sumac and willows," says Davidson. "They also appear to be quite fond of roses and some other deciduous shrubs," he continues.

For gardeners who still choose to use oak in ornamental plantings, Davidson issues a warning to expect trouble in the next few years. "The problem will show up first in areas close to woods and forested land," he notes, "but will eventually spread to urban communities as well."

At the very least, Davidson recommends planting no more than 10 to 20 percent oak in any given area, and to keep the trees separated from each other by barriers of species that are not attacked by gypsy moth.

The Extension entomologist still expects white oak to be hit hard in Maryland.

"Gypsy moth may do to white oak what Dutch elm disease did to residential elm plaintings," Davidson predicts.

Grant Restoration Applications Sought

The Maryland Historical Trust is now accepting applications for State Capital Grants to assist in the acquisition, stabilization, restoration and rehabilitation of historic properties throughout the state. Grants are available for up to 50 percent of the cost of government-sponsored projects, up to 75 percent for private individuals, and up to 100 percent for non-profit corporations and individuals.

Applications are due no later than February 1, 1982, for monies which will be available 17 months later, on July 1, 1983. For further information, or to receive application materials, persons may contact the Technical Preservation Services section of the Trust, at 269-2213.

Bergen's biography; Bennett's favorites

By Cindy Adams

NEW YORK — Candy Bergen is doing her biography... Tony Bennett says his favorite music names are Duke Ellington and Count Basie... While staying at a New York hotel, Richard Harris had the chef cook him special Pritikin diet meals... Israel's Foreign Minister, Abba Eban, was here raising $8 million for a historical documentary of his people. Narrated by Eban, "Civilization and the Jew" will be an 11-hour special for PBS in 1983... Paul McCartney is buying a recording studio in Tucson, Ariz.

Paul McCartney

Said tennis great Arthur Ashe: "There's a great deal of guilt that any black person has who comes from ordinary surroundings and ends up with a lot of money."

Dick Clark

"American Bandstand" is celebrating its 30th anniversary this year and emcee Dick Clark had this to say: "I don't know how to dance"... Mexico's first lady must have heard you don't drink our water or something because she was seen around town with a large entourage and a small lunch pail. Her emergency rations included half-and-half milk, sugar and cereal... The "Candida" cast is crazy about star Joanne Woodward. She took them all out to eat after the show and they, in turn, cook up homemade goodies for her. She told me that one member of the cast, Ron Bishop, brought a pot of pasta to their apartment. They love her. Me, too.

IN FOCUS

New national show for Regis Philbin

Regis Philbin, Emmy award-winning host of a morning TV show in Los Angeles for the past six years, will move to NBC Monday, Nov. 30, to headline a new, human-interest daytime series featuring interviews with Americans from all walks of life, in and out of show business.

"This show is going to be informal and informative," said Philbin. "Above all, I believe in having fun. And that goes for the way I treat my guests and my audience, too.

"We can have a good time and still learn something about each other and about what's going on. I'll visit with anybody who is interesting — an actor, a politician, a sports hero, a mother — anybody who has something to say. But I believe in going behind the words to find out what makes people tick."

Earl D. Greenburg, vice president of daytime programs, West Coast, NBC Entertainment, said the half-hour series will be produced live some days and on tape on others, with the taped productions planned for broadcast on a one-day delay.

A regular associate will share the stage with Philbin and his guests. "Anything in this country that interests people will be a potential topic for Regis," Greenburg said.

Sarah Purcell will co-host during the first week of "The Regis Philbin Show."

Sarah Purcell, star of NBC's "Real People," will be reunited with Regis Philbin during the premiere week of "The Regis Philbin Show." Between 1975 and 1978, Purcell co-starred with Philbin on "AM Los Angeles."

Philbin said: "Working again with Sarah as we did for more than three years is most exciting for me — and will be for the viewers, too. This is a most professional and talented lady and her success on 'Real People' is making her a major talent."

Added Purcell, "I'm really looking forward to working with Regis again. I went from 'AM Los Angeles' to my work on 'People' for George Schlatter and much of what I do on 'Real People' was learned with Regis. We're going to have a ball!"

Philbin hosted "AM Los Angeles" on KABC until this month. He won an Emmy award for hosting "AM Los Angles" in 1979. Before that he was with KHJ-TV in California, heading a three-hour live show, "Tempo," for three years. In addition, Philbin was associated with the late-night "Joey Bishop Show" on ABC. His introduction to national television was via "The Regis Philbin Show," presented by Westinghouse Broadcasting.

A native New Yorker, Philbin started in broadcasting as an NBC page in New York City. He is an alumnus of Notre Dame University and served in the U.S. Navy.

TV PEOPLE

Pat O'Brien plays a role on 'WKRP'

William Joseph Patrick O'Brien is 82 years old. Sixty-two of those years have been spent in show business as Pat O'Brien, during which he has amassed credits that include over 110 feature films, numerous television and stage roles and millions of fans.

O'Brien now will make a guest appearance on "WKRP in Cincinnati," Wednesday, Dec. 2 on CBS. And at least one member of that cast will not be a stranger to him.

Eight years ago, series star Loni Anderson and O'Brien met and appeared together in stock in Minneapolis. Miss Anderson credits O'Brien with motivating her to come to Hollywood to pursue her acting career.

O'Brien says: "I didn't motivate her to come to Hollywood. She came on her own volition. She was a fine actress then. Everytime you get someone that comes from the theater with a good, solid background, you've got something going for you. I refuse to take any credit for Miss Anderson's success, although she's been my darling all these years."

"Don't you listen to him," protests Miss Anderson. "He's had a tremendous influence on my career and has been very supportive of me. I love Pat dearly."

When Miss Anderson received her script for the show and learned that the character of Col. H. Buchanan, her dear, old friend, had to be cast, she knew there was only one person to play the role — her real friend, Pat O'Brien.

O'Brien, who has played Irish cops, priests, sergeants and football coaches, and who stars in the feature film "Ragtime" with longtime friend James Cagney, recently got together with another longtime friend — President Ronald Reagan.

"My wife and I were invited to have dinner with the president and the Cagneys at the White House. Afterwards we screened 'Ragtime.' "

Reagan and O'Brien were also together this past May 18, when both received honorary Doctor of Law degrees at the Notre Dame commencement.

Says O'Brien of the president: "We were both at Warners 41 years ago. (In 1940, O'Brien and Reagan starred in "Knute Rockne — All American.") We did one other picture together, called "Cowboy from Brooklyn." He hasn't changed, still the same guy. When we correspond, he never signs 'president.' He just signs 'Ronnie.' Now that's class," says the silver-haired, blue-eyed O'Brien.

When asked what advice he would give to young people entering show business today, O'Brien says:

"First of all, you have to be dedicated if you want to stay in this profession. You've got to be able to get up off the deck and start over again.

"Of course, it's very difficult for me to suggest anything, or give advice, because there are no apprenticeships anymore," he says. "We all played in stock companies. You did four things simultaneously. You were studying a play, forgetting a play, rehearsing a play and doing a play. Those days are gone.

"... I guess you just have to pray a lot!"

STARVIEW

Actors, world leaders: shy as the rest of us

By Ruth Thompson

All actors are extroverts, right? Wrong, wrong, wrong.

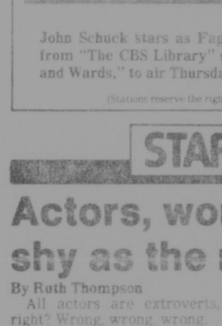
Recently, actors have been admitting their shyness — Gabe Kaplan, of "Welcome Back, Kotter" fame and now the star of NBC's "Lewis & Clark," is one such actor; and glorious looking Morgan Fairchild, of "Flamingo Road," is another. "When I was in the fifth grade," she says, "my mother enrolled me in acting classes to help me over the shyness."

Why do the shy go for acting?

We posed the question to Dorothy Sarnoff, author of "Make the Most of Your Best" (Doubleday), and a self-confessed former shy person. She says the condition stayed with her even after she realized great success — first as an opera singer; then in such musicals as "The King and I," with Yul Brynner; and later as a supper club success.

Dorothy, stunning and vibrant, says she felt "ugly looking" as a child. As an opera and stage star she came to life in a role. Offstage, she was still different.

A study indicates that the great majority of Americans are shy. Dorothy Sarnoff says that sounds right to her — but it isn't only Americans. And having to communicate is not a challenge that happens only to actors.



Dorothy Sarnoff

How did Dorothy get into the "communicating" field?

Sixteen years ago she told her husband there were no new credits she craved as a singer. Almost instantly, fate — or luck — showed her an alternative.

She had agreed to sing at a charity fund-raising luncheon in New York but her accompanist was grounded by a snowstorm in Boston. So Dorothy said, "If I can't sing, let me talk to you..." One woman in the audience was so impressed that she said Dorothy's spoken words carried more impact than any song could. She asked Dorothy: "Would you teach my husband how to speak?"

So Dorothy did — and founded "Speech Dynamics," now a subsidiary of Ogilvy and Mather.

She is now on a long-term training agreement with the U.S. State Department. She will not say whom she is coaching now, save that this is her fourth regime. Public figures need help in making speeches, it seems.

Says Dorothy: "My father was a doctor. I, too, look at the people who come to me as individuals. I treat them as he did his patients."

In the last presidential election, six candidates sought her counsel. Most of them had gotten past basic "shyness," but maybe not deep nervousness. Some had "overcompensated."

In "Make the Most of Your Best" she tells of her efforts to help Prime Minister Begin of Israel re-style his television image prior to Camp David, and also of her work on a State of the Union speech for Jimmy Carter.

"Get to me before it's crisis time," is her message, though.

ASK ME ABOUT TV

By Val Carew

FIRST AID — I have written this question to other question and answer columns and have never gotten an answer. Can you help me? On "WKRP in Cincinnati" the character of Les, ever since the show began, has worn a bandage someplace. I can't believe other people who watch the show haven't been curious. At any rate, can you give me an answer? — Elizabeth Bouley, Grand Forks, N.D.

Sure can. When the first show was being shot, Richard Sanders, who plays Les Nessman, was injured, in between taping the dress rehearsal and the "on air" show. He had to wear a bandage and he decided it would be funny to always have his character wearing a bandage someplace. It makes him appear accident prone without having to use dialogue to get that fact over.

Richard Sanders

OLDIE BUT GOODIE — I'm writing to request information about whether or not an old movie called "Juke Girl" might be shown on TV or in movie theaters again. I think it was made in the '30s. It starred Ronald Reagan and Ann Sheridan. — Lena Blua, Lindsey, Calif.

Not likely. The film was released in May of 1942, not the '30s, but it is still very old. Prints don't last forever, so it may be impossible to show it. The hope, of course, would be that a print still exists and because the president was in it, there might be a revival. But don't hold your breath for it. More recent films that he made do exist.

Sophia Loren

SOPHIA AND GREECE — Recently, I saw the movie "Boy on a Dolphin," which starred Sophia Loren and Alan Ladd and was filmed in Greece. Was this based on a novel? — Norman Willey, Farmington, N.H.

Yes, a novel by the same name written by David Divine. A local bookstore should be able to check to see if the book is still in print.

(Do you have a question about TV? Write Val Carew at 200 Park Avenue, Room 602, New York, NY 10166.)

MAUREEN TEEFY STARS as an urban teen-ager who must pay the consequences of shoplifting in "Portrait of a Teen-age Shoplifter," to air Tuesday, Dec. 1 on CBS.

FRIDAY

Gordon Feesler (George Dzundza), wife Gretchen (Susan Tyrrell) and son, Terry (Sam Whipple), are characters of the new series "Open All Night," to air Friday, Nov. 27 on ABC.

(Stations reserve the right to make last-minute changes.)

Hill Street Blues

THE STORY OF DANIEL BOONE (c.), his son, James, and his wife, Rebecca, is told in "Daniel Boone," a presentation of "Famous Classic Tales," to air Friday, Nov. 27 on CBS.

SOAP OPERA WEEK

Taylor ends 'GH' role, but who will be next?

By Nancy M. Reichardt

NEW YORK — It's all over except for the memories, but Elizabeth Taylor's appearance as Helena Cassadine on "General Hospital" was a delightful addition to the show — a show that already has some of daytime's most talented actors.

Anthony Geary and Elizabeth Taylor on "General Hospital."

Now that Ms. Taylor has left the soap set, we can't help but wonder who'll be next, since this past summer season has seen the likes of Dina Merrill, Henny Youngman, Celeste Holm, Minnie Pearl and Zsa Zsa Gabor, to name but a few.

Terry Davis, who left her "Edge of Night" role of April Scott to take on the real-life role of mom, is proud as can be of her daughter, Sarah Elizabeth, who was born on Aug. 29.

Changes around the "As the World Turns" set include the addition of Tom King as the show's new head writer. Since his scripts have begun airing, we've seen the disappearance of several characters from the show, including Aki Aleong and Kitty Mei Mei Chen as Dr. and Mrs. Sam Yee; Peter Brouwer as Brad Hollister and Debbie McLeod as Connie Wilson.

New additions to the cast include Marshall Watson as Ernie Woods, Robin Thomas as Matt Butler, Elaine Princi as Miranda Marlow. The mother/daughter team of Cynthia and Karen Haines is portrayed by Linda Dano (ex-Gretel Cummings on "One Life to Live") and Kathy McNeil.

Chris Rich (Sandy Alexander on "Another World") is busy off the soap trying to move his off-Broadway hit, "Young Bucks," up to Broadway. The play features Chris and his former on-screen half-brother, Richard Bekins (ex-Jamie Frame). A drama teacher at Cornell University at the age of 24, Chris worked as an actor in repertory theater prior to joining "AW."

TV TATTLE

Nightly business

Television's first regularly scheduled newscast devoted entirely to coverage of financial and economic news was launched throughout the nation last month. "The Nightly Business Report" will be transmitted live by satellite each weekday evening to 126 public television stations. (Local times may vary; check listings.)

The series, being produced by WPBT, Miami, will have two full-time bureaus — in New York and Washington — as well as frequent contributions from news units associated with PBS stations in the nation's major centers of business activity. Six renowned financial experts have been enlisted to provide commentary and analysis: Alfred Kahn, Arthur Laffer, Charles Schultze, Alan Greenspan, Adam Smith and Dan Lundberg.

"The Nightly Business Report" will provide a rundown of the day's major business news and a comprehensive Wall Street report in addition to background information, analysis, commentary and in-depth profiles of businesses and business people.

'Of Mice and Men'

Robert Blake, Randy Quaid, Lew Ayres, Pat Hingle, Mitch Ryan, Ted Neeley, Cassie Yates and Whitman Mayo star in "Of Mice and Men," adapted from John Steinbeck's classic novel, on NBC Sunday, Nov. 29.

Blake, executive producer of the film, stars as George in the story, which is set in the rural South of the 1900s and focuses on the lives of two ranch hands — Lenny (Quaid), physically strong but pathetically retarded, and his lifelong friend, George, who commits himself to protecting Lenny from his innocent but often near-tragic failings.

Problems for kids

"What can the United States learn from three other industrial countries to help reverse the alarming decline in support for quality children's television here?"

Participants at a two-day seminar in New York tried to answer that question and concluded that many strong social forces at work in this country are against the overall best interests of children.

According to Dr. Edward L. Palmer, vice president, research, for the Children's Television Workshop, sponsors of the conference agreed that "youngsters, too, often are 'done in' by the consequences of actions taken for larger social and political purposes, with the resulting impact ranging from the quality of their education and child care to the quality and availability of appropriate television fare."

Cicely Tyson

Teacher's story

Cicely Tyson stars as the Chicago schoolteacher who gained national recognition when she abandoned the traditional school system and worked teaching miracles with students labeled as "unteachable," in "The Marva Collins Story," a "Hallmark Hall of Fame" presentation to air Tuesday, Dec. 1 on CBS.

Ed Asner, star of "Lou Grant," introduces the special and summarizes Mrs. Collins' stunning achievements with black children in a Chicago ghetto. In 1979, CBS's "60 Minutes" produced a segment on Mrs. Collins, then a teacher working in one of Chicago's toughest neighborhoods who, after 14 years in the public school system, became disillusioned, quit and opened her own school.

Vets With Debts Being Sought By Administration

The Veterans Administration has announced that the state of Maryland has approximately 1200 cases of delinquent debts by veterans under immediate review in which legal action will be taken unless the debts are paid.

VA Administrator Robert P. Nimmo, in announcing the agency's accelerated program of debt collection, said, "Our plans are to substantially reduce the number of outstanding debts owed to the government by veterans, and I am instructing our various state district counsels to pursue an aggressive program of debt collection."

Edward J. McGarrity, the VA's district counsel for the state, said that new cases of uncollected debts are being referred to his office on an average of 100 cases each month.

His office will bring suit against approximately 30 Maryland veterans this month.

McGarrity said the VA is "more serious than ever" in seeking to recover debts owed by veterans. He added that his collection activities "are part of a nationwide effort to recover all debts owed by veterans and non-veterans alike."

Debts as a result of VA programs are detected by the VA's Central Accounts Receivable Section in St. Paul, Minnesota. That office sends notification to the indebted veterans. If the veteran fails to resolve the indebtedness, his case is then sent to the appropriate VA district counsel for legal action.

Due to increased authority to proceed directly with a lawsuit and expanded technical capability, legal action for even small amounts has become cost-effective, according to McGarrity.

"A veteran owing debts to the Veterans Administration must realize the seriousness of the matter," McGarrity said. "The filing of a law suit, if deemed necessary, is a part of the collection effort. It is important for veterans receiving letters from this office to answer and arrange repayment. Otherwise, legal action is almost a certainty." He said that most cases will be settled through repayment plans and default proceedings.

Final Career Workshop Slated

The Homemaker Career Opportunities Program of Garrett Community College will hold its final career workshop in Series 3 of "Job Finding Skills" on Wednesday, December 2. This free workshop entitled "Interviewing Techniques" will be conducted by Ms. Mary Rush, assistant personnel director of Bausch & Lomb.

Ms. Rush will be discussing with participants in the workshop techniques to help them handle themselves well during the job interview, as well as qualities she looks for in individuals she interviews for positions in her place of employment.

The public is invited to attend this workshop to be conducted December 2 at the Oakland Center of Garrett Community College in Room 306 from 10 a.m. until noon. For more information persons may contact Barbara Frey, director of the Homemaker Career Opportunities Program, at 334-9184.

Beverly Byron Wants Energy Tax Credits Retained

Rep. Beverly B. Byron (D-Md.) has joined with several of her colleagues in the House of Representatives in cosponsoring a resolution expressing the sense of Congress that the tax credit for solar and renewable energy sources should be retained through 1983.

"Although American conservation efforts have reduced oil importation by 17 percent since last year, the United States still imports more than five million barrels of petroleum each day," Rep. Byron said.

"I believe that these tax credits should be maintained because they provide an incentive for further conservation of those sources we depend on, and they display our continued aim to broaden and diversify the different domestic forms of energy our country uses," she explained.

Napoleon was a well-known insomniac and had to get by on three or four hours of sleep a night.

Conversations on Carpeting

LEARN ABOUT COLOR

You probably know that the colors you choose to decorate with can make or break your room but how much do you really know about color? If you're like the average person, probably very little.

Color plays many important roles in decorating. It sets the entire mood of a room and reflects your individual personality. But it does much more than that. Color can shorten distances in a large room, it can bring together the furnishings in a room, correct awkward proportions, and warm up or cool down a room.

Since carpet provides the largest area of color in a room, a knowledge of color is vital in selecting just the right carpeting. In the next week or two we'll be discussing a few facts about color, how to use it in decorating your home and how to choose a carpet color you'll be happy with.

If you'd like to hear more about color right away, stop in and talk with one of our decorating experts. Our staff at both shops will be happy to assist yuou with all your decorating needs.

Each week we will tell you more about carpeting for your home. Watch for these columns.

For a very personalized appointment with Butch or Carolyn call today at 334-9598, who will give you the best in price, quality, service and selection.

For all your home furnishings needs shop RODERICK Furniture featuring the area's most fashionable selection of quality home furnishings, carpeting and accessories. Buy with confidence that you are getting the "best for less."

Goldstein Keeping Close Watch On State Revenues

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein says he is watching state income and sales taxes — the two largest sources of general fund revenue — especially closely in preparation for the December 11 meeting of the Maryland Board of Revenue Estimates with Governor Harry Hughes.

In speeches to business and civic groups recently, Goldstein notes that, while sales and income tax revenues are well ahead of last year's levels through October, 1981, high interest rates, increased unemployment and the new tax free savings certificates could all affect revenue growth.

Addressing the Charles County Chamber of Commerce in Indian Head on November 17 Goldstein stated that state and local income tax revenue for the first three months of Fiscal Year 1982 amounts to $534.5 million, up 11.1% over the $481.0 collected during the same period of the previous year. However, he cautioned that increased unemployment and the popularity of the new all savers certificates could slow the rate of growth significantly.

In an address for the Retail Merchants Association of Baltimore meeting on November 20, Goldstein stated that, while sales tax revenues for the first three months of Fiscal Year 1982 amount to $199.2 million, a growth of 9.5% over the same period last year, high interest rates may be having an effect.

"Most of our major categories of sales tax collections are showing increases," he told the merchants, "but the important building and contractors category posted a decline in October, 1981 for the first time since February, 1981. The construction sector of our economy has a ripple effect on other sectors of the economy."

Goldstein noted that consumer-related categories of sales tax collections are still showing increases. Taxable food and beverage category revenues amount to $44.9 million for the three month period, an increase of 10.4%; general merchandise purchases produced sales tax revenues of $38.2 million, up 10.5%; the furniture, fixtures and appliances category produced $17.4 million, an increase of 9.8%; and the apparel category yielded $11.0 million in revenue, up 14.8%.

The Comptroller noted that falling retail sales around the country could affect sales tax collections, if consumer confidence does not hold up through the holiday buying season.

"Reaganomics is a double-edged sword that is affecting both state revenues and the federal funds that are a part of Maryland's state budget," Goldstein said to the Annapolis Chapter of Hadassah on November 18, noting that Reaganomics creates an increased need for charitable work since government social programs are suffering from budget cutbacks. "Unfortunately the effects of the economy and the new tax program on charitable contributions is still unknown," he said.

Additional Funds For Rehabilitation Released By CDA

The Community Development Administration (CDA), a division of the Department of Economic and Community Development, has released an additional $3 million in rehabilitation funds through the Maryland Housing Rehabilitation Program (MHRP). Since its inception in 1977, MHRP has become one of CDA's most popular programs, lending a total of $16 million in rehabilitation funds. Demand for MHRP funds has never been higher than in the last year when the absence of mortgage funds has generated increased need for home rehabilitation funds, according to the CDA.

The program, administered through participating subdivisions throughout the state, will make 20-year loans to qualified borrowers at 11.5 percent, significantly below the current market interest rate. The funds were made available through the sale of State general obligation bonds. Previously MHRP had been lending rehabilitation funds at nine percent.

The Maryland Housing Rehabilitation Program provides loans at below-market interest rates for the repair and renovation of single-family homes, rental properties with up to 20 units, and commercial properties to upgrade the state's existing housing stock. Through the program, owners of single-family homes can receive up to $25,000 while owners of commercial properties are eligible to receive up to $50,000 per unit to rehabilitate their properties. Owners of rental units can receive up to $25,000 for the first unit and $15,000 for each additional unit. The maximum loan available to any sponsor is $200,000.

Since the program began in 1977, more than 870 loans, totaling $16 million, have been made to preserve Maryland's existing housing stock.

For an application persons may contact the Garrett County Housing Office at 334-4443.

Record Sales, Earnings Reported By Westvaco

Westvaco Corporation, a major producer of paper, packaging and specialty chemicals, issued its year-end sales and earnings report for the company's 1981 fiscal year which ended October 31, reporting a fourth consecutive year for record sales, earnings, and dividends.

The company's sales for the fiscal year ended October 31 were $1.6 billion, a new record, representing a gain of 10.0%, compared with sales last year. Earnings for the year reached an all-time high of $100.8 million, equal to $3.95 a share, compared with $86.9 million, or $3.43 a share, the previous earnings record set in 1980. The new records follow a 3-for-2 stock split and a dividend increase in mid-year.

This dividend action represents the ninth consecutive annual increase and the 15th increase in the past 18 years.

Liller-Howard Couple Wed In Ohio

Wedding vows were exchanged by Lisa L. Liller and Mark A. Howard on October 2 at the Alma Methodist Church, Waverly, Ohio. The 6:30 p.m. candlelight ceremony was performed by Rev. Raymond Daniel.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irven Liller, Waverly, formerly of Mt. Lake Park, and the groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Ossie Howard, also of Waverly.

The bride and her father arrived at the church in a horse drawn buggy.

The bride's formal length gown was of white Matte Jersey and Venise lace. The bodice was of Matte Jersey with a net yoke trimmed with Venise lace and seed pearls with an attached wedding ring band collar. Her gown had long bishop sleeves with matching net and lace insets. The softly flared skirt formed a Cathedral train edged with matching lace. The bride's walking length veil of lace trimmed illusion featured a crown of seed pearls on lace.

She carried a silk cascade bouquet of burgundy and pink roses, pink carnations and baby's breath, surrounded by pink and white rose buds with burgundy and white lace streamers.

The honor attendant, Amy Ferguson, wore a formal length dress of burgundy crepe do Chine with lace bodice and attached wedding ring band collar. She carried a pink silk rose with baby's breath and pink streamers.

Gidgett Lawson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Lawson, Waverly, was the flower girl.

The best man was Jeff Howard. Guests were seated by Jim and John Howard, brothers of the groom. Chad Lawson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Lawson, was the ring bearer.

Dawn Ferguson, Columbus, Ohio, attended the guest book.

A reception followed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Darst, Waverly. Mrs. Darst is a sister of the bride.

After a honeymoon in southern Ohio, the couple established residence at 1742 AUS, Rt. 23, Waverly.

Cross, Mills To Wed In May

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cross, Poolesville, announce the engagement of their daughter, Diana Lynn, to Christopher Mills, son of James and Betty Mills, Damascus.

A wedding date is set for May 1, 1982, at St. Mary's Shrine in Barnesville.

Mrs. Cross is the daughter of the late William and Hazel B. Nazelrod, who were residents of Garrett County.

Bridal Shower Held Thursday

A bridal shower to honor Miss Connie Lewis was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lewis on Thursday, November 19.

Miss Lewis will become the bride of Willis Glotfelty, III, on December 5.

Those in attendance included Mrs. Bonnie Lewis and children; Mrs. Janice Lewis and daughter; Mrs. Mary Lewis; Mrs. Juanita Lewis; Mrs. Violet Lewis; Miss Patty Lewis; Miss Donna Lewis; Mrs. Angela Cuppett; Mrs. Mona Murphy and son; Mrs. Brenda Murphy and son; Mrs. Angela Mikles; Mrs. Bonnie Coddington and daughter; Mrs. Pauline Upole; Mrs. Velma Beckman; Mrs. Floyd Durst; Mrs. Donna Teter; Mrs. Nancy Ison; Mrs. Donna Heginbotham; Mrs. Louis Markovich; Mrs. Deloris Murphy; Mrs. Paul Arnold; and Miss Monica Beckman.

King-Whittemore Wedding Planned

Wedding vows between Lesa Ann King and Davie Clark Whittemore, both of Las Vegas, Nev., will be exchanged December 19 at the First Presbyterian Church in Las Vegas. Miss King is the daughter of Robert and Kathryn King, Las Vegas, and a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.B. Mumma, Oakland. Mr. Whittemore is a son of Dr. Robert and Leslie Whittemore, also of Las Vegas.

Miss King is presently a student at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas, and Mr. Whittemore is a graduate of the University of Nevada, Reno, and of the Arizona State University College of Law. He is employed by Lionel, Sawyer and Collins law firm in Las Vegas.

Lewis-Glotfelty Couple To Wed

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Lewis, Mt. Lake Park, announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Connie Darlene, to Willis Glotfelty II, also of Mt. Lake Park.

The ceremony will be held Saturday, December 5, at 2 p.m. at the Loch Lynn Church of God.

The families invite all friends and relatives to attend the ceremony and the reception which will follow in the church fellowship hall.

Notice of Correction

The Friendsville VFW Ladies' Auxiliary donation of $50 was omitted from last week's Friendsville Halloween party ad. We regret the error.

ENERGY TIP: Wet clothes do not keep you warm, therefore you should keep jackets, coats, and snowsuits as dry as possible. Shake snow off clothing often because body heat will melt the snow and get your clothes wet and make you cold. Water-repellent clothing will help keep your inside clothing dry and keep you warm.

CLEANING GLASSWARE

Do you have a problem keeping your glassware clean and bright? If so, the difficulty may be minerals in the water. The condition is usually more noticeable on expensive pieces of glass but may exist on everyday articles. Some hints in solving this problem follow:

*To remove lime deposits from the bottoms of pitchers or bottles, put tea leaves on the stained surface and fill the container with a vinegar solution.

*For surface decoloration on decanters, rub the glass with half a lemon or wash it with vinegar; then partially fill it with uncooked rice and vinegar and shake vigorously.

*To remove hard-water deposits from designs and etchings, soak the glassware in a solution of one part muriatic acid, which can be obtained from a drug store, and four parts water. Handle the acid with rubber gloves. After soaking the glass in the solution, rinse it thoroughly and dry.

*Vinegar cruets can be cleaned by rinsing with diluted ammonia before their regular washings.

*Chlorine bleach helps remove stains from flower vases.

*To brighten glass coffee makers, use a teaspoon of baking soda in the rinse water.

Although glass gets dingy, it is seldom permanently stained. The hard surface resists stains and the discolorations can be removed with patient treatment and the right materials.

FOOD NOTES

After a delicious Thanksgiving dinner, we still have all the leftovers to look forward to. Remember: as soon as possible after serving, refrigerate the leftover turkey. Remove stuffing from neck and body cavities, then wrap and refrigerate. This will help you get the most from your turkey, safely. Here is a good recipe I think you might enjoy trying:

TURKEY NEWBERG

- 1/3 c. butter
- 1/4 c. flour
- 2 c. milk
- 3/4 c. shredded cheddar cheese
- 1 T. chopped pimiento
- 1 t. salt
- 1/2 c. toasted slivered almonds
- 1/2 c. sliced mushrooms
- 1 1/2 c. cooked turkey or sliced chicken
- 1/4 c. cooking sherry
- 1 t. minced onion
- 1/4 t. pepper
- 1/4 t. garlic salt

Melt butter and saute mushrooms for 2 minutes in chafing dish. Stir in flour until smooth. Add milk, stirring constantly. Add chicken or turkey and all other ingredients except almonds. Top with almonds just before serving. Serve with or over rice or patty shells.

BEWARE OF PINEAPPLE FROM ZUCCHINI RECIPE

This past summer a Pineapple from Zucchini recipe was used by several Garrett Countians. This recipe was canned in a boiling hot water bath. This method is not safe because zucchini is a low acid vegetable and needs to be pressure canned. Tests are now being done to determine proper pressure canning times, but in the meantime it is recommended that this pineapple zucchini not be used—bacteria could have grown causing it to be unsafe. This recipe can be frozen, but it must be frozen as soon as it is prepared. If the zucchini pineapple has been setting on your shelf, please discard it.

A tested recipe (by the Iowa Cooperative Extension Service) will be published next summer. If you have any questions, please call 334-2145.

Americans consume more than four pounds of potato chips, per person, each year.

September Gasoline Consumption Down 1%

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein reports that gasoline consumption in the state totaled 158,877,044 gallons during September, 1981, a drop of nearly one percent from the 160,200,331 gallons used in September, 1980.

"Motor fuel tax collections for the month of October, 1981, which are based on September sales, totaled $16,752,721. That's 3.2% less than the $17,311,105 received for the same month last year," Goldstein said.

For the first four months of Fiscal Yearl 1982, motor fuel tax revenue totals $65,268,301, or 2.8% more than the $63,491,163 collected for the identical period of the previous fiscal year.

un-endangered species

Many people believe that most all of our wild animals face a bleak and uncertain future. Actually, the news about wildlife is not all bad. Far from it. Over the years, our state wildlife agencies have restored to healthy and abundant numbers many species such as elk, white-tail deer, wood duck, pronghorn antelope, to name just a few, that were thought to be on the brink of extinction only some 75 years ago. Most all the money for these efforts has come from America's sportsmen.

GRANTSVILLE NEWS

The Maple Grove Women's Fellowship met Tuesday evening at the home of Norma Bowser. Jessie Miller had devotions on "Sharing and Caring." Other topics were shared by Gayle Wingate, Rose Lee Folk, Norma Bowser, Doris Bowser, and Margaret Chaney.

Nancy Durst, president, presided over the business meeting. There were 13 members in attendance. Plans were made for the Senior Citizen Dinner on Sunday.

The project for Sherri Folk to go to Haiti was voted upon. Food for the refugees will be the Christmas project. Fruit baskets will be made by Margaret Chaney and Alice Younkin for six shut-ins.

Margaret Chaney installed the new officers for 1982. They are Nancy Durst, president; Norma Bowser, vice president; Doris Bowser, secretary; and Linda Stanton, treasurer. Margaret read Matthew 5, and each was given a candle.

The next meeting will be on December 15 at the church. Each member is to bring something for the project, a poem, and something for refreshments.

Those present were Jessie Miller, Rose Lee Folk, Ruth Dietle, Linda Stanton, Doris Atwood, Doris Bowser, Nancy Durst, Gayle Wingate, Ora Younkin, Leafie Ohler, Margaret Chaney, Alice Younkin, and the hostess, Norma Bowser.

The Jennings United Methodist Church will sponsor a family service entitled the "New Song," featuring Don and Daisy Townson, Pittsburgh, Pa., on Sunday, November 29, at 7:30 p.m. Mrs. Townson is the former Daisy Beiler. The public is invited. A free will offering will be lifted. The Rev. K. Almond is the pastor.

A dedication service was held at the Maple Grove Church on Sunday for Michael David Folk, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Blaine Folk, by the pastor, Steven Wingate.

Mrs. Phyllis Bender and Mrs. Alice Younkin attended a Heart Fund meeting at the Deer Park Fire Hall on Thursday evening.

Mrs. Verna Folk remains a patient in the Memorial Hospital, Cumberland.

Walter Younkin accompanied Wendell Keaton to a Tri-County Council meeting at the Alt Ghan Country Club on Thursday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bender and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Younkin attended the Woodmen dinner for Lodge 68 at the Bittinger Community Building.

Kevin Beachy, from Wyoming, is spending a two-week visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Luther Beachy, and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bender, Harold Butler, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Buckel, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Younkin attended a banquet and installation service for Camp 1 at Hagerstown on Saturday evening.

There will be a joint Thanksgiving service at the United Church of Christ on Wednesday, November 25, at 7:30 p.m., with the Maple Grove Church.

Brownie Troop 5566 and Girl Scout Troop 5109 entertained the residents of the Goodwill Mennonite Home with Halloween songs and poems on October 31. The girls were dressed in costume and passed out treats after the program.

Rosella Miner and Marsha Twist are leaders of the Juniors, and Debbie Stanton and Karen Hutzel are leaders for the Brownies. The Brownies had their Investiture on November 17.

Mrs. Leafie Ohler spent last week with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Collins, in Baltimore. She returned home with another son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Hollie Atwood and son, Barry.

SWANTON

Orval L. Teets was recently honored at a surprise reception on his retirement from the Chessie System railroad. Teets served with the transportation division for 40 years. He plans to spend much of his retirement hunting, fishing, gardening, singing with "The Brotherhood Four and Peggy," and traveling with his wife, Mareva. The couple resides on Green Glade Road and has two daughters, Linda Fleming and Christina Teets, and four grandchildren. Teets is a member of the Otterbein United Methodist Church, where he serves as church school superintendent, choir member and administrative board member.

Accident Drawing Winners Announced

The Accident Fire Company and Town View Village have announced the winners in a drawing held at the Thanksgiving/Christmas Bazaar, Accident, on Saturday.

First prize, a quilt, went to Edward Kovach of McHenry. Sylvia VanSickle, Friendsville, won second prize, a bushel of groceries, and third prize, a gold neck chain, was won by Mrs. Joe Guistino, Accident.

CAC Community Food, Nutrition Personnel Honored

Garrett County Community Action Committee's Community Food and Nutrition Program, under the direction of Mrs. Patricia Callis, held an appreciation dinner November 18 at the McHenry Fire Hall honoring the volunteers who have worked during the past year with the program.

Representing the Accident Food Bank were Mr. and Mrs. Edward George, Ms. Mary Zinken, Raymond George and George Miller.

Volunteers from the Gorman Hot Meal Site were Mrs. Esther Stoner, Ms. Goldie Phillips, Paul Henline, Mrs. Katie Henline, Ms. Theresa Wilkins, Ms. Vera Dignan, Ms. Marion Wilkins, Mrs. Evelrn Steyer, Keith Steyer, Ms. Mary Grubb, Mrs. Elva Mae Butts, Mrs. Gertrude Schaffer and Mrs. Pauline Marple.

Mrs. Joyce Brenneman, Mrs. Sylvia Beitzel, Donald Sealing and Roy Beitzel represented the Bittinger Food Pantry.

John Gutherie, Crellin, was honored as a volunteer gardening advisor for the gardening project.

Other guests attending included Dick Paugh, C.A.C.'s Board president; Duane Yoder, executive director; Mary Jane Gnegy, administrative assistant; Bill Peake, Equal Opportunity director; Don Beitzel, personnel director; and the staff of the Community Food and Nutrition Program, which includes Pat Callis, director; Linda Green, assistant director; Verna Speicher and Ray Teets, nutrition aides; Judy Locke, S.O.S. aide; and Vernon "Bud" Strawser, medical transportation driver.

Volunteer appreciation certificates were presented to all the volunteers. A plaque was presented by Mrs. Callis to Mrs. Esther Stoner for her dedication to the Senior Citizens in the Gorman Area.

Winners of the door prizes were Ms. Vera Dignan, Gorman, and Roy Beitzel, Bittinger.

Mrs. Gnegy led them in group singing.

Bradley Manor

Cecil Patterson, director of Community Services, and an architectural engineer will visit Bradley Manor in the next few weeks to conduct an engineering study. They plan to inspect each room in every apartment.

Annette Lantz is a patient in Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Thanks . . .

The entire Boy Scout Program of Garrett County wishes to thank the First National Bank of Oakland for the donation of ½ a baby beef. Because of the bank's support, we were able to raise $2,000. The winners of our drawings were:

1st Prize: Willis V. Smith, ½ Baby Beef
2nd Prize: Wm. W. Pope, M.D., Binoculars
3rd Prize: K.A. Steyer, Digital Clock Radio.

Blue Cross, Blue Shield Predicts $16 Million Loss Next Year

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Maryland will lose $16 million next year unless the state approves rate hikes affecting 214,000 Maryland residents, a spokesman for the insurer said Friday.

The proposed increases would range from 8 percent to 48.8 percent for individual subscribers to Maryland's largest health insurance program effective January 1. About 119,000 people over 65 years of age would be the hardest hit.

Nicholas G. Greaves, a spokesman for Blue Cross and Blue Shield, said a rejection of the rate hike would mean that people covered under group policies would pay higher premiums to cover the loss in the non-group plan. "And we just can't continue to subsidize (the non-group plan) that way," he said.

The biggest increase—48.8 percent—would be for 25,000 people over 65 who have the "preferred" policy, Greaves said. Under that plan, Blue Cross and Blue Shield, which insures 2.9 million people, pays deductibles upon admissions to the hospital, certain charges for prolonged hospital stays and prescription drugs.

Greaves' remarks came during a public hearing in Baltimore in which scores of elderly residents argued against the proposed increases.

"The elderly are being squeezed, and they are finding that what comes first is food and heat," testified Betty Hamburger. "They will drop these (insurance) policies and take their chances."

Baltimore Comptroller Hyman Pressman challenged the argument by noting that Blue Cross increased its payroll 27 percent during 1980 and that Blue Shield boosted its payroll 21 percent. Greaves confirmed those figures but added that the two firms added 75 new employees during 1980 "to handle increased memberships and increased claims."

Pressman said: "I think this increase is excessive. We want Blue Cross and Blue Shield to survive, but we'd also like people who don't have group policies to have an opportunity to be covered."

Richard F. Kirchner, chief of planning and research for the Maryland State Office on Aging, asked Blue Cross and Blue Shield to consider altering some of its coverage plans to lower premium costs. "If no change is made . . . thousands of Maryland senior citizens will simply drop these policies . . ."Kirchner said.

But Maryland Insurance Commissioner Edward J. Birrane, Jr., said federal laws make it impossible to make such alterations. "It's either a Cadillac or nothing," he said.

Blue Cross and Blue Shield contends it needs the higher rates because of rising medical costs and increased use of benefits. Recently enacted federal laws also require the insurers to cover increasing "co-insurance amounts," or the difference between what certain federal insurance programs pay and what medical care actually costs, Greaves said.

Under the existing rate structure, Blue Cross and Blue Shield lost $15.1 million on its non-group programs in 1980 and 1981, Greaves said, a loss that cannot continue to be incurred.

The next meeting will be held on December 2.

ARMED SERVICES REVIEW

Second Lt. Deborah C. Slane, daughter of Thelma M. Slane of Grantsville, has graduated from the U.S. Air Force medical service officers orientation course at Sheppard Air Force Base, Texas.

Graduates at the course are instructed in the professional and administrative procedures of the Air Force.

Slane, a clinical nurse, will now serve at Andrews Air Force Base.

She is a 1980 graduate of the University of Maryland at Baltimore.

Airman Rex A. McRobie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McRobie of Route 4, Deer Park, has completed Air Force basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas.

During the six weeks at Lackland, the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations.

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits towards an associate degree in applied science through the Community College of the Air Force.

The airman will now begin on-the-job training in the transportation field at Altus Air Force Base, Okla.

He is a 1981 graduate of Southern High School.

Cigarette, Alcohol Tax Revenue Shared By Subdivisions

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein has announced that the State's 23 counties and Baltimore City have received $6,934,776 as their share of the State distilled spirits, beer and cigarette tax collections for the first quarter of Fiscal Year 1982 (July, August & September, 1981). The distribution is slightly less than the $7,263,378 distributed for the same period of Fiscal Year 1981.

The distilled spirits tax provided $1,292,160 to local governments reflecting a 1.8% decline, compared with the same period last year. Local subdivisions receive 50¢ of the $1.50 per gallon tax on distilled spirits for each gallon of distilled spirits delivered to retailers in the subdivisions. Garrett County received $6,512.50 as its share.

Local governments received $1,359,540 as their share of the state beer tax. About half of the 9¢ per gallon beer tax is sent back to local governments based on deliveries to retailers in the subdivision. The revenue received for the first quarter of the current fiscal year is about one percent higher than the amount returned to the subdivisions for the same period last year. Garrett County's share was $9,296.81.

Cigarette tax revenue totaling $4,283,067 was returned to local governments, about 8% less than the amount shared for the identical period last year. Of the 13¢ per pack cigarette tax, 3¢ is shared with the 23 counties and Baltimore City, based on population. Garrett County received $26,315.13.

For the first quarter of Fiscal Year 1982, alcohol and tobacco tax revenue from all sources totaled $23,979,076. While this is slightly less than the $26,499,735 collected during the first three months of Fiscal Year 1981, the prior year figures include an inventory tax collected when the cigarette tax increase went into effect July 1, 1980.

Glade Mennonite Church will have their Thanksgiving eve service at 7:30 p.m.

Cherry Glade Mennonite Church will have a special Thanksgiving service on Thursday at 10 a.m. The Rev. Kenneth Zehr will be the speaker. There will be a representative from the House of Hope and the quilt made by 29 area churches will be on display. Canned goods and grocery staples will be brought to the church to be distributed to needy families.

Pastor David Rockwood and his family will be spending Thanksgiving in Gettysburg, Pa. They will leave on Thursday and return on Friday afternoon.

Attends Convention

Mr. and Mrs. Harley Brenneman went by bus to Louisville, Ky., last week to attend a Dairymen's Inc. Convention.

WOW Supper

On Friday evening some 80 members of the Woodmen of the World met in the firehall in Bittinger for a covered dish supper. Joseph R. Buckel, secretary of Camp 68, introduced the jurisdictional officers present. The Camp presented the Bittinger Fire Department and Community with a public address system, which was recently installed in the hall by Robert Yaste and others. On behalf of the Firemen, Ira Yaste accepted the gift and extended his thanks. Entertainment was furnished by the choir of Emmanuel Lutheran Church, known under the name of the "Country Cut-Ups." Members of the choir, four youth members and Pastor Rockwood, put on the program. Kenneth Buckel is president of Camp 68, WOW.

Attends 60th Anniversary Celebration

Mrs. Etta Buckel, Miss Betty Buckel, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Legeer, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Buckel and two daughters were in Reisterstown on Sunday to attend the 60th wedding anniversary celebration of Joe and Althea Brenneman.

Holds Piano Recital

Martha Glotfelty held a piano recital at her home on Sunday afternoon. Due to illness and other reasons, several of her students were unable to attend.

Playing the recital were Suzanne Hall and Wendy Marsh. Suzanne played "The Lone Ranger" and the "Wood Chuck," both from books by Schaum. Wendy Marsh played "Kum Bah Yah" arranged by Jack Butler, "Sunshine on My Shoulder" by John Denver, Mike Taylor and Dick Kniss; and "Little Flowers" by Danny Lee.

Attending the recital was Rev. and Mrs. Ira E. Hall, Lana Marie Hall, Sang Run; Mrs. Phyllis Marsh, Ruth V. Wilt, and Pearl H. Wilt, Westernport. Donna Beitzel was a later visitor.

Enters Hospital

Mrs. Ida Reckner entered the Monongalia Hospital, Morgantown, W. Va. on Sunday for an operation on her hand. She expects to come home on Tuesday.

Has Birthday Party

On Friday evening a birthday party for Lucia Ruggiero was held at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Elmer Maust. There were 15 young persons present.

Birth Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Resh announce the birth of a baby daughter at Meyersdale Community Hospital. She weighed 8 lbs. 5 ozs. and was born on November 16. This is the second child for the couple, the older one being a son. The mother is the former Charlotte Brenneman.

Personal Items

Charlotte Maust, a student at Rosedale Bible Institute, Irwin, Ohio, spent the weekend with her parents, Rev. and Mrs. Elmer Maust.

Melda Bittinger and Martha Glotfelty were shopping in Uniontown on Wednesday.

SCOUTS WILL WORK IN FOOD PANTRY — Members of Cadette Troop 5027, Loch Lynn, have volunteered to work in the House of Hope Food Pantry, Oakland, for needy families. The girls will be busy bagging powdered milk (which is received in bulk quantity) into two-quart size containers for distribution. Pictured above are scout volunteers Lisa Masters, Sherri Wilt, Tammy Wolford, Loretta Smith, Heather Savage, and Mindy White. Pictured at left are scout leaders Betty Wolford and Linda White. Pictured fourth from left is Sister Susan Plews from the House of Hope.

Will Perform With Hood College Choir

Karen Edmiston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Perry B. Edmiston of Grantsville, is a member of the Hood College Choir which will sing Handel's "Messiah" this holiday season in four public concerts.

This marks the 34th year that the Hood College Choir and the U.S. Naval Academy have joined together to sing the famous Christmas oratorio. Two performances are scheduled at Hood College, Frederick, for the weekend of December 5-6; two performances at the U.S. Naval Academy will be held the weekend of December 12-13.

Ms. Edmiston, a junior at Hood, serves as librarian for the choir. She will sing first soprano in the concert.

JOHN DEERE Nothing Runs Like a Deere

Attorney General's Docket

by Stephen H. Sachs
Attorney General of Maryland

One of my proudest possessions is a 91-year-old government form which declares that my grandfather became a United States citizen on October 7, 1890 after taking an oath to give up all allegiance to "every foreign prince, potentate, state and sovereignty whatever," specifically — in his case — the Czar of Russia.

I keep it framed and hung in my office. There is something in all of us that makes us want to know where we came from.

In recent years, a growing interest in genealogy, what has popularly become known as one's "roots," has led to a tremendous growth in the number of people offering their services as professional genealogists, those individuals who research and outline family trees.

According to a pamphlet prepared by the International Genealogy Consumer Organization in Salt Lake City, Utah, the number of professional genealogists has doubled in the past five years, although there still are a relatively small number of these specialized researchers.

In part because of their small numbers, genealogists are not licensed or regulated by either state or federal agencies in the U.S., or by most foreign governments. There are, however, several professional groups that "screen" would-be genealogy professionals.

The Board of Certification for Genealogists, P.O. Box 19165, 20th Street Station, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036, assesses the qualifications of genealogists in all English-speaking countries and "certifies" them. The Genealogical Society of Utah, headquartered at 50 East North Temple Street, Salt Lake City, Utah, 84150, "accredits" researchers who have passed written and oral tests, and the Association of Genealogists and Record Agents at "Oakdene" 64, Oakleigh Park North, Whetstone, London N20 9AS, England, maintains a list of English genealogists who have long experience in the field.

In addition, the new International Genealogy Consumer Organization, at 4329 South Stafford Way, Salt Lake City, Utah, 84119, "registers" those genealogists who agree to follow an "international code of ethics" devised by the organization.

A pamphlet prepared by this new consumer group points out, however, that there is no guarantee a "certified," "accredited" or "registered" genealogist will do a better job researching your family tree than someone who doesn't have these designations.

There is a heavy concentration of genealogists in the Washington, D.C. area, so Marylanders who have an interest in seeking professional help in tracing their family trees can do some comparison shopping with relative ease. The Utah-based consumer group makes several good suggestions about having a genealogist embark on a search for your ancestors:

•Know What You Want Done

Do you want a record searcher — someone who just finds the main sources of information that may contain facts about your family — or do you want a "general" professional genealogist, who will analyze your family tree and conduct research into it? It's also wise to decide how much you want to spend on the project. Don't let the genealogist suggest a figure or know ahead of time how much you're willing to spend.

•Comparison Shop

Some genealogists advertise in telephone directories, magazines and newspapers. Historical societies, some libraries and archives also keep lists of genealogists. The Maryland Historical Society, located at 201 W. Monument Street in Baltimore, has such a list and also is a treasure trove of information itself for would-be roots searchers. Call several genealogists, explain what you want, and ask about their qualifications, experience and hourly rates, which can vary greatly. A higher price doesn't necessarily mean the quality of work will be better, the Utah consumer group notes.

•Get a Written Contract

Specify your research goals in writing and limit any payments in advance — if requested — to $150, the consumer group advises. The Board of Certification for Genealogists recommends that you not pay any money until you discuss your goals over the telephone or in person first with a qualified researcher, who usually can tell within a day whether it's possible to do the work you want. Ask for a complete progress report of the genealogist's findings — or lack of them — after the first $150 is spent, or after the equivalent of that amount is spent, if no advance payment is requested.

•Know Who Is Doing Your Research

Some genealogists hire freelance workers to do record searches and other related research. Some are very good; others might do a worse job than you could have done on your own. Ask the genealogist if someone else will do all or part of the research and ask about their qualifications.

If you're not happy with the work done by the researcher, you can seek a second opinion on its value from another genealogist. If you have serious complaints about the work and aren't able to resolve them with the genealogist, you should complain to the organization if any, that screened his work in the past, to the genealogy consumer group in Utah, or to the Better Business Bureau or our Consumer Protection Division. You can't pick your relatives or your ancestors, but you can — and should — be satisfied with the work of your genealogist.

AURORA-EGLON NEWS

A baby shower was held November 14 at the Aurora United Methodist Memorial Building to honor Mrs. Milton (Nancy) Feather. The event was planned and hosted by her mother and mother-in-law, her sister and sister-in-law: Peggy Hauser, Ruby Feather, Dianne Bachtel and Robin Feather. A specially decorated cake was made by Judy Paugh. There were games played and the hostesses served refreshments after the opening and display of gifts.

Attending were Dean Sisler, June Sisler, Judy and Charlotte Paugh, Debbie Stemple, Renee Mullenax, Loretta Snyder, Joan Reeves, Alma and Sue Snyder, Jeanette Adams, Janie, Billy and Waylon Kitzmiller, Beulah and Kathy Hardesty, Maxine Hauser, Tammy Sisler, Phyllis Adams, Pat Stemple, Connie Pearsall, Beverly Myers, Effie Wolfe, Connie Stemple, Thelma Adams, Joan Lemley, Lois Adams, Billy Jo Hauser, Julie and Sherri Adams, Peggy Hauser, Dianne Bachtel and Matthew, Ruby and Robin Feather.

The Aurora PTO met November 10 at the school with devotions being presented by the Eglon Mountaineer 4-H Club. The program was on Child Abduction with Richard Roberson and Mac McGinnis, sheriff's deputies, present to speak on this issue.

Mrs. Hayes spoke on behalf of Mr. Henline, who was unable to be present, conveying his thanks to everyone for helping with the Halloween Party and the community involvement in recent fundraising efforts. She also announced that it is hoped that the children will present a Christmas program.

The faculty meeting date has again been changed. This will mean that the school will be dismissed two hours early on the first Wednesday following the first Monday, as had been the previous aarrangement. For community classes, one GED class and one in cake decorating are being offered.

The PTO voted to contribute $300 to the East Preston Scholarship Fund. They also voted to go to a hardback year book with an increase in cost to $5.00. The Kindergarten Class had the most enrollees in the membership drive and will be awarded the prize. The attendance banner competition resulted in a three-way tie, Mrs. Haye's 2nd grade, Mrs. Harsh's 4th grade and Mr. Lofink's 5th grade.

Santa's Workshop will be open on Friday s for the children to make their purchases.

Mr. Henline was absent due to the illness of his father, Francis Henline, who is a patient in intensive care unit at the WVU Medical Center.

Staff and students representing the Preston County Educational Center were at the Aurora School on Monday and Tuesday, November 16-17, to present their annual program as a part of the eighth grade careers unit. This familiarizes the eighth grade students with the areas of study available to them at PCEC and enlightens them on possible career choices. On Friday they will visit the facilities at PCEC at Kingwood.

Bill, Sandra Hauser and their children, Wade Dale, Joe Bill and Beth Ann of Stemple Ridge were weekend visitors with his sister and brother-in-law, Bonnie and Charles Douglas, at Pittsburgh.

Persons are asked to take note of the new emergency number for calling the Preston County Sheriff. The tollfree number which had been in use has been abolished and the 329-1611 number will again be used. If this is to report a fire or other emergency, the call may be placed collect. The line for the toll free number was costing an excessive amount for the few emergency calls being received, which is why it has been changed.

Persons are asked to disregard the number presently in the telephone directory or on the red sticker which may have been placed on or near the telephone.

On November 15 the Aurora MYF met in the Memorial Building with president Sue Snyder presiding. The treasurer reported a balance of $244.22.

The group is planning a bake sale for December 5 (with alternate date of December 12) at Heck's. A Christmas party is to be held December 19 at 7 p.m. at the Snyder home. Plans for the evening include caroling at 6 p.m. with a party and a gift exchange following.

The cards picturing the church in its new stone face have not yet been received. For those who wish to purchase them, they are 20 cents each and may be purchased from one of the following members of the MYF who were in attendance: Greg Arnold, Gary Conrad, Jimmy, Teri and Toni Johnson, Gary and Jeff Lipscomb, Alan and Sue Snyder and their advisors, Connie Fint, Alma Snyder and Rev. Wycoff. Also attending the meeting were Darrell and Daniel Fint.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Lantz was the scene of the luncheon meeting of the Aurora Homemakers on Tuesday, November 17. Mrs. Lantz, the hostess, provided the luncheon and prior to that, Mrs. Pearl Stemple led devotions.

The lesson, Picking a Winner in a Nursing Home, was taught following the lunch hour with Opal Myers, leader, assisted by Julie Adams. Mrs. Myers used a poem, What Do You See? as her conclusion to the lesson.

The president, Mrs. Myers, reported on County Council, stating that there will be prizes of money for first, second and third clubs selling the most tickets for the Buckwheat Festival car raffle. The report from Achievement Day included the fact that the hostess, Mrs. Lantz, was chosen as Preston County Homemaker of the Year, was inducted as county vice president and that the club received a blue ribbon.

The club is dressing a few dolls for the Salvation Army Christmas giving and voted to provide $5.00 to fill Christmas stockings for the same effort. Each club will be responsible in its own community for an anti-litter campaign to be conducted throughout the county this year. Maxine Hauser, Pearl Stemple and Fern Jamison will serve on a committee appointed to investigate and acquire a display case for the Community Building. Members are asked to visit Mrs. Schmidt who remains a resident in an Oakland nursing home. The Aurora Pioneer 4-H Club awarded a certificate to the Aurora Homemakers in appreciation for the help that they've given them.

The next meeting will be December 15 at the Community Building at 11 a.m. with a covered dish lunch to be at noon featuring Christmas Around the World. Each member was asked to draw a paper with the name of either England, Holland, Mexico or Germany and will bring a dish typical of that country. It was decided to buy a game to donate to the school. As a special feature, Mrs. Lantz showed the rice roses she had made for her son's wedding. Winning the pig-in-the poke was Cheryl Resha.

Attending were members Martha Bolyard, Mildred Kovalck, Eva Wotring, Martha Crowe, Beverly Myers, Opal Myers, Maxine Hauser, Pearl Stemple, Vesta Stemple, Beulah Lipscomb, Fern Jamison, Julie Adams, Wilda Wilt and Anita Lantz; guests Olive Beckman, Sandra Hauser, Ethel Sypolt, Hazel Godwin, Carolyn Wotring, Cheryl Resha and five children.

Mr. Ezra Slaubaugh was able to return to his home at Eglon last week after being a surgical patient in Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Ross Lichty of Gortner area remains a patient in Garrett County Memorial Hospital where he will undergo surgery this week.

Mrs. Lucille Arnold has suffered a set-back in her recovery from a recent stroke and remains ill at her Eglon home.

Word was received here that Herbert Winters of Parkersburg is a patient in the Camden Clark Hospital there, Room 204N.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Crowe of Miami, Florida, visited last week with his mother, Mrs. Martha Crowe, in Aurora and with her mother, Mrs. Lester Wotring, at Terra Alta. Mrs. Crowe returned to their home on Friday and her son, Charlie, came to spend the hunting season with his father and grandmother.

Members of the Maple Spring Church gathered for a turkey dinner following the morning worship on November 22 and following the dinner hour, viewed a film strip, A People Called Brethren.

Dr. and Mrs. Greg Pinkerton of Aurora were in New Orleans, La., last week attending a conference and seminar of the Southern Medical Association. While they were away, Mrs. Helen Borcher, Mrs. Pinkerton's mother, stayed in Baltimore with her daughter.

Atlanta's Hartsfield International Airport terminal is the world's largest. It contains 212 million square feet of floor area.

McHenry Honored At November 13 Retirement Dinner

James A. McHenry, retired Agriculture Extension Agent in Garrett County, was honored with a retirement dinner on November 13 at the Deer Park Firehall. In attendance for the dinner were over 175 friends, family and colleagues from Garrett County, other parts of Maryland and West Virginia.

R. Thomas Thayer served as master of ceremonies for the evening with Rev. Oren Bender offering the invocation.

During the Recognition Program, McHenry was honored by the many groups he had worked with during his 30 years in Garrett County. This included presentations by Charles Mason, president, Garrett County Holstein Association; Claude Wagner, Jr., district treasurer, Soil Conservation District; Robert L. Glotfelty, president, Garrett County Agricultural Fair Board; Clark Kolb, president, Garrett County Farm Bureau; and George Bishoff, chairman, Garrett Soil Conservation District Board of Supervisors.

Dr. Craig Oliver, Director for the Maryland Cooperative Extension Service, presented McHenry with a retirement certificate from the University of Maryland. Alice E. Hevner, extension agent, gave McHenry a memory book of his past 30 years in Extension, along with some other momentoes. Mrs. Joyce Bishoff, representing the retirement planning committee presented the McHenry family with a gift of luggage.

The occasion concluded with some remarks from McHenry, who said he is enjoying his retirement at his home in Mt. Lake Park.

ASC Nominees Announced For County Election

The slates of nominees for the upcoming ASC committee election have been developed, according to Harry W. Hummel, chairperson of the Garrett County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

The candidates for each ASC community in Garrett County are as follows: John Bishoff, Merle Garletts, Leslie Guard, Harry Savage and Nevin Umbel, Community A; Cleland Beitzel, Robert H. Miller, George Shawley, Raymond Tice, and Edwin B. Warnick, Community B; J. Walter Margroff, Carl Bender, James F. Bowman, Charles A. Enlow and John Schlosnagle, Community C; Delwood Merrill, William Merrill, Harold L. McKenzie, Herbert H. Myers and Allen Warnick, Community D; Herbert Custer, William F. DeWitt, Dale Evans, Wayne O'Brien and John Wright, Community E; Richard Hesse, Charles Mason, Jr., Donald L. Moreland, Larry Tichnell and Harry E. White, Community F; Robert Dodge, Keith Stahl, William H. Knepp, Leland Mosser, and Ray Ridder, Community G.

The candidates were petitioned for by farmers, and Hummel commended producers for their participation in making nominations.

The ASC committee election will be conducted by mail from November 27 until December 7. Eligible ASC voters will receive a secret ballot in the mail with instructions on how to vote for candidates for their choice and return the ballot to the county ASCS office.

Pedigree, Pricing Workshop Slated

The Garrett County Holstein Club, in conjunction with the Garrett Extension Service, will sponsor a "Pedigree and Pricing" Workshop and Mock Sale at the Rolling Knoll Farm of Joe and Jeanette Kavanagh, located approximately five miles north of Oakland on U.S. Route 219 on Wednesday, December 9, starting at 7:30 p.m. According to Mr. Kavanagh, a member of the Maryland Holstein Association's Breed Improvement Committee, the main objective of the workshop is to sharpen skills and the ability to evaluate the true value of a dairy animal. This value, he said, should be determined by three things which can be measured or estimated: pedigree - record of ancestry; performance - production and reproduction; and individuality - type and conformation.

Kavanagh will have six cows on display. When participants arrive they will receive a sale catalog which will contain the pedigrees for six Holstein cows. Participants will be randomly assigned to one of six syndicates. Each syndicate will get together and evaluate the cattle for type, then look at the pedigrees in the catalog. Clark Yoder will conduct a mock sale with each of the six syndicates bidding on the animals. After the sale, Bentz Rhoads will entertain a discussion as to why, or why not, each cow should have sold for the amount she did.

For persons buying or selling through a private treaty, or public sale, or just appraising stock, this activity is designed to help improve merchandising skills. Persons planning to attend should call Joe Kavanagh at 387-5364 to let him know they are coming. The public lis invited.

Milk Production Up Two Percent

Milk output during October in Maryland totaled 129 million pounds, announced the Maryland Crop Reporting Service. Production remained above the 1980 level by two percent and continued the pattern of more milk produced every month this year.

Production, however, has declined from a peak of 141 million pounds reached in May, 1981. The October output was unchanged from September's.

The number of milk cows on farms has held steady at 122,000 head since June of this year. Milk per cow, however, has decreased gradually since May's 1,150 pounds. The October average was 1,060 pounds, 45 pounds above October 1980 and equal to the September 1981 total.

The October milk-feed price ratio rose above the previous year's level for the second time as the October ratio was 1.59, compared with 1.47 in October 1980 and 1.54 in September 1981. Continuing lower feed prices gave strength to the ratio, even though milk prices were unchanged from September. The October price averaged $14.00 per cwt., 30 cents per cwt. below the October 1980 price.

Soybean Crop Figures Noted

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's October crop production report shows that soybean production in Maryland could total 10,800,000 bushels this year. The 1981 forecast is slightly more than 1980's 9,360,000 bushels.

Maryland farmers are expected to harvest 360,000 acres of soybeans and realize an average crop yield of 30 bushels per harvested acre.

As the normal harvest period begins, the market price of soybeans is down. "To offer producers additional marketing flexibility for maturing 1980-crop soybean loans, we have been authorized to extend the loan maturity date," William B. Crum, Chairperson of the State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, said.

About 221,730 bushels of 1980 crop soybeans were under price support loan in the state. Of this amount, approximately 15,367 bushels are still under loan. Farmers interested in extending these loans must request the extension in writing. The ASCS official said loans that are extended will not be forfeited or delivered to the Commodity Credit Corporation until after the revised maturity date.

U.S. soybean production is forecast at 2.11 billion bushels, up one percent from last month's forecast and 18 percent more than last year's crop. With the larger supply, soybean exports are forecast at 800 million bushels for 1981-82, compared with an expected 720 million this season.

USDA officials say the soybean carryover next September could be a record 410 million bushels compared with beginning stocks of 345 million. As a result, the season-average farm price is expected to range from $6.00 to $7.50 a bushel. Soybean product prices are also likely to be lower, with meal prices ranging from $180 to $210 a ton and oil prices from 20 to 24 cents a pound.

SHS Students Attend National FFA Convention

Three Southern High School students were among those attending the National Future Farmers of America Convention in Kansas City, Mo., during the week of November 8. They were Alan Custer, Oakland, son of and Mrs. Clarence Custer, Oakland; Tom DeBerry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett DeBerry, Deer Park; and Tom Dodge, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dodge, Gortner.

The three FFA members traveled to Kansas City with the Maryland State delegation. They attended the business sessions of the convention, where various awards and degrees were presented, and toured the National Agricultural Career Show, held in conjunction with the convention, and also participated in the judging of the American Royal Livestock Show.

Record Corn Crop 95% Harvested

Maryland farmers harvested a record size corn crop and produced record yields for tobacco and sweet potatoes says the Maryland Crop Reporting Service.

Corn production remains at 60.4 million bushels, nine percent above the previous record of 56 million bushels set in 1956. Corn farmed in Maryland was 95 percent completed by November 8, about the same as last year. Acreage for harvest at 660,000 acres is at a record level, 20,000 acres above the previous record of 640,000 acres set last year.

Soybean harvest was slowed by rains late in October and by November 8 harvest was 50 percent completed compared with 59 percent last year at this time. Soybean production is forecast at 10.8 million bushels, 15 percent above last year's 9.36 million bushels and unchanged from last months estimate. Yield prospects, at 28 bushels per acre, are 6 bushels above last year.

Sweet potato yields are expected to average 175 cwt. per acre this year; a new record level. The previous record of 170 cwt. set in 1978. Sweet Potato Production for the crop totaled 238,000 cwt., 17 percent above last year and reached its highest level since the 1972 crop.

Cucumbers for pickles under contract grown in Maryland amounted to 2,400 acres, 14 percent below last year. Production, at 37,720 tons, was 13 percent above last year. An increase in the average yield to 11.50 tons per acre more than offset the decline in acres for harvest.

October temperatures averaged mostly 2-4 degrees below normal except in extreme western Maryland where temperatures averaged 1-2 degrees below normal. This was the coldest October since 1976 east of Garrett county.

Rainfall for the month was much below normal until general rains on the 29-27 brought monthly total near normal. Seedings of small grains were delayed because of the dry soils, but most of the grains are planted by November. The end of the month rains were very beneficial to those fields already planted, the service said.

More cigarettes are sold in China than anywhere else on earth, numbering more than 700 billion per year.

Observes Birthday

Mrs. Floretta Thomas celebrated her eightieth birthday on November 1 at a dinner at the Lone Star Restaurant, Route 40, where she had been taken by Mr. and Mrs. Norman Thomas.

They later returned to the Thomas home for a small party. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Dale Sines and son Scotty, and Espy Hook.

DECD Official Visits County

Ardath M. Cade, Assistant Secretary for Housing and Community Development for the Maryland Department of Economic and Community Development, was in the county November 16 visiting current and potential housing development sites.

Diana Wawzinski, county housing coordinator, stated that Ms. Cade visited Town View Village in Accident, the construction site for senior citizens' housing in Mountain Lake Park, homes involved in a housing rehabilitation program in Jennings and the Crellin-Hutton area, and a proposed site for a housing development in Mountain Lake Park.

The main purpose of Cade's visit was to see what housing development has been done in the county and to see housing development possibilities and problems.

Cade was accompanied by Katherine Schultz, program manager for the Appalachian Maryland Housing Fund, and Marjorie Koenig, Appalachian Housing Development adviser with the Western Maryland Regional Development Office.

The three met with Wawzinski, county planning director Tim Dugan, county commissioner Truman Paugh, county clerk Bob Fousek and Community Action Committee director Duane Yoder to discuss imaginative ways state housing funds could be used in the county and to discuss housing development programs available through the Community Development Administration.

Rural Development Legislation Is Backed By Byron

Rep. Beverly B. Byron (D-Md.) announced Thursday she is supporting legislation to improve and expand small business opportunity and agriculture production.

"I have become a co-sponsor of the Rural Enterprise Zone and Development Act of 1982 because the assistance it will provide will be of major, direct benefit to Allegany and Garrett Counties," Rep. Byron said. "I am enthusiastic about this legislation because its two prime objectives are improving opportunities in rural areas and strengthening small businesses.

"The goals that this legislation works toward are goals which are tremendously important to the Sixth District," she said.

The Act would amend the Consolidated Farm and Development Act to designate local units of government as Rural Enterprise Zones (REZs), qualifying them for financial and technical assistance to strengthen agricultural production and to expand small businesses. An REZ would be a rural area with fewer than 50,000 persons.

"The Rural Enterprise Zone legislation is patterned along the lines of the often discussed Kemp-Garcia proposal. This legislation develops a series of tax incentives to bring small businesses into the designated enterprise zone. By granting tax credits now, the economy will later benefit through increased revenue and productivity.

"For example, a five percent tax credit would be extended to some small businesses which hire young adults under the age of 21, improving youth unemployment. Another tax credit would be available to some businesses which offer skill development training to their employees, improving both productivity and workmanship," Rep. Byron explained.

The bill, which would go into effect January 1, 1983, has been described as "essential to the revitalization of rural America."

It's YOUR Money

By Randle A. Rodeheaver

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT YOUR INCOME TAX

Will the Internal Revenue Service compute your tax return for you?

Yes, if your income is less than $20,000 ($40,000 for joint returns) and it is from wages, annuities and pensions and you take the standard deduction instead of itemizing your deductions.

Is a non-cash prize taxable?

If it is merchandise or a trip, you must report it at the fair market value at the time you received it.

If you drive your car for business, is the cost of running it deductible?

Yes. You may calculate depreciation, etc., but an easier and approved way is to take 20 cents a mile for the first 15,000 miles and 11 cents a mile after that.

Is a dividend from life insurance taxable?

No. It is a return of premiums and not considered income. Life insurance death proceeds are not taxable as income, either.

What are some other items that are not taxable?

Social security payments, bequests or inheritances, unemployment insurance payments, scholarships, damages awarded for personal injuries.

Is the interest you pay on loans or debts deductible?

It generally is. That includes interest on mortgages, car and other installment purchases, bank or other loans, life insurance loans if the interest is paid in cash.

Is alimony taxable?

The divorced woman receiving it must declare it as income. The ex-husband paying it can deduct it even if he does not itemize his deductions.

Can you save by filing a joint return?

In most cases, yes. The tax table splits the family income in half, giving you the benefit of a lower rate. In a few cases, separate returns may be more advantageous if both people have their own incomes. Calculate your tax both ways to make sure.

County's Deer Kill Parallel To Last Year

The deer kill in Garrett County this year is running about the same as last year, which was a record kill, according to Al Bourgeois, District Wildlife manager. An unofficial count of the number of deer checked at Garrett County's six stations on Saturday (the first day of the season) is 532. Monday's unofficial count showed 201 checked, and an unofficial count for Tuesday is 90, making an unofficial total of 783.

Last year's opening day kill in Garrett County was 589, with a record 1049 harvest for the 1980 season.

Bourgeois commented that, "The weather has been pretty good this season, up until yesterday. We have a fair number of deer, and I think we'll have a good harvest this year," he said, adding that the week's kill could depend on what the weather will bring.

The largest Maryland buck known that was checked countywide as of noon yesterday weighed 196 pounds. That six-point deer was shot by Corky Wachter, McHenry, on his own property in the general area of Rock Lodge Road, Deep Creek Lake. It was checked at Walt's General Store, McHenry, and was also the largest point deer brought in at that station.

The county buck with the largest known rack checked as of noon yesterday boasted 13 points and weighed 147 pounds. It was shot by Steve Beachy, Grantsville, at Meadow Mountain, and was checked in at Buckel's Market, Grantsville. The largest pound buck checked at that station weighed 168 pounds and had a six-point rack. That deer was shot by Joe Long near Meyersdale Road.

Johnny's Bait House, Deep Creek Lake, checked a 175-pound, eight-point buck shot by Larry Frazee, Friendsville, at Snaggy Mountain. The largest point deer brought in at that station as of noon yesterday had 11 points and weighed 138 pounds. It was shot by David Glass, Deer Park, in the Dry Run area.

A 169-pound, 12-point buck was the largest checked at the Mill Run General Store, Friendsville. That deer was shot by Ron Unsell, Friendsville, in the Frazee Ridge area.

Stuart's Grocery, Swanton, checked a 12-point buck that was shot by Mindy Lee, Swanton, and a 156 and a half-pound, eight-point buck shot by Kenneth Tichnell, Swanton.

Unofficial counts of deer checked so far this season at county stations as of noon yesterday are: Stuart's Grocery, 47; Mill Run General Store, 50; Buckel's Market, 238; A.D. Naylor, Oakland, 169; Walt's General Store, 93 and Johnny's Bait House, 124.

John Marple, proprietor of Johnny's Bait House, said the NEVER WAS THERE A BETTER WAY to experience the joy and the fun of the Christmas season than through the eyes of a child. Although her three older companions seem rather disinterested, the little lady third from left can barely contain her excitement upon seeing Santa Claus as he made his annual visit to Oakland during the Christmas parade Friday evening. The jolly old gent provided lots of lap-sitting, hugs and popcorn balls to several hundred youngsters as the event marked the unofficial opening of the Christmas season, and Christmas shopping in the Oakland area.

Teachers, School Board To Begin Contract Talks

The contract between the Garrett County Teachers Association and the Garrett County Board of Education expires June 30, 1982, but both groups are preparing now for the first round of negotiations on a new contract.

Les McDaniel, G.C.T.A. president, stated his organization will have a contract proposal to present to the Board's negotiating team at the first meeting to be scheduled some time this month.

The current contract stipulates that the first meeting of negotiating teams from both parties must be held by the first working day of January 1982.

Although the G.C.T.A. proposal is not drafted, McDaniel said the group will seek a salary increase, among other things. He noted that in the past ten years, the salaries of county teachers have fallen behind the MONTE VISTA "FIGHTS FOR YOUR LIFE" — Since 1971 members of the Monte Vista 4-H Club have been fighting the wind, cold, rain, snow and ice in February to sell Heart Pins. The group was recently presented a plaque by the American Heart Association, Western Maryland Chapter, for its yearly fund-raising to benefit community programs for that agency. Pictured above with the plaque are Phyllis Trickett, left, group leader; and Angie Thomas, right, president of the Monte Vista Club. Not pictured is Reva Thomas, group leader. In 10 years the club has raised $3,622.37, and group members state their goal for this year is to begin raising that same amount in only five years time. They remind all to help in the fight against heart disease, the nation's No. 1 killer, by purchasing Heart Pins this February.

Programs For County Senior Citizens Still Going, But At Reduced Levels

Federal cuts threaten many social services including those for the elderly, says Marilyn Metheny, director for the Garrett County Commission On Aging.

Programs for senior citizens have already been curtailed this year in Garrett County, not because of federal cuts, but because of the depletion of a surplus of money created three years ago when the federal government switched its payment schedule to the Oct. 1 - Sept. 30 federal fiscal year.

The loss of the bonus meant the Commission On Aging had to cut $16,000 from its budget this year.

To cut expenses the Commission decided, after consultation with their clients, to operate each of the 12 hot meals centers in the county only two days a week.

The days the centers are open are staggered throughout the week, explained Metheny, so that a senior citizen could, conceivably obtain a meal Monday through Friday.

The Commission was able to continue to serve its homebound clients two hot meals a week plus leave with them one or two freeze-dried meals.

The Commission cut back its homecare program by reducing its staff from six to four. The reduction forced 22 patients off the program, but most of them were people who were recovering from illnesses and were able to care for themselves or who were willing to pay for the homecare services which not only included household tasks but also personal grooming.

Services to 25 other patients were reduced from every week to every other week. Metheny emphasized that assistance to patients who needed personal care was not curtailed.

The Commission also had to limit its transportation service to trips to Cumberland and Morgantown, medical centers. Trips to Baltimore, Washington, D.C., or Pittsburgh medical centers had to be eliminated, forcing senior citizens who traveled to those areas for medical treatments to make

Elderly Couple Awarded $10,000 Following Eviction From Home

An elderly Grantsville couple, Carlton Daymude, 66, and Lila Doris Daymude, 73, were awarded $10,000 last week in Garrett County Circuit Court following a lawsuit against Robert E. and Rita Joan Moore, Gaithersburg, former residents of this county.

The lawsuit came as a result of charges of a breach in an agreement between the two couples concerning a home in Grantsville the Daymudes were occupying under a life estate agreement.

According to the records, the Daymudes and the Moores entered into a lease agreement providing that a sum of $10,000 would be paid by the elderly couple, and that in return, they would be allowed to live in the home owned by the defendants for the rest of their natural lives. The agreement was signed on August 30, 1979. In June of 1980, the records indicate the Daymudes were told they had to vacate the house, as the owners had now relocated to another part of the state and wished to either rent or sell the house.

Under a veil of threat, according to court records, the couple was forced to move from the residence.

Information further indicates that while the Daymudes lived in the Moore home with them, they also jointly loaned more than $6,000 to the young couple, who were unemployed at the time. The Daymudes were seeking to regain that amount of cash during the court proceedings, as well.

A portion of the $16,000 in question was to be used for a three-room addition to the

Penelec Requests County Takeover Of Access Road

Officials from the Pennsylvania Electric Company last week asked the Garrett County Commissioners to take over and maintain about 650 feet of the Stocklager Road, Deep Creek Lake, which leads to Penelec Acres. The request was made to assure access to that property owned by that company and used for summer homes for employees, because, through the transfer of some 15 acres of buffer strip in that area (at the breast of the dam) to the Department of Natural Resources, Penelec will be giving up right-of-way on their private road along the buffer strip which also leads to Penelec Acres and has been an alternative route in the past.

The transfer of property will be made by the end of December, and is part of a DNR recreational management development plan and an agreement between DNR and

Area Residents' Morning Darkened By Power Outage

Mt. Lake Park, Loch Lynn and even some Oakland residents were temporarily halted in their preparations for school and work this morning when an unexplained power outage affected the area.

Between 7:22 and 8:02 a.m., county school buses were dropping students off to dark rooms at Southern High, Bennett Road Elementary, Broad Ford Elementary, Southern Middle, and Loch Lynn Elementary schools.

Gerald Cramer, area line superintendent in the Oakland office is Potomac Edison Company, stated the cause of the power outage has not yet been determined, but crews were surveying power lines this morning to try to find the cause.

Cramer said the first call to report the outage came from First Federal Savings Loan Association at Mid Towns Plaza at 7:22 a.m.

Foremen immediately went out to survey the lines to try to detect the cause, while a crew went to the Oak Park substation, located at the east end of Broadford Lake along Broadford Road, where they were able to restore service to the area at 8:02 a.m.

The area affected by the outage included Mt. Lake Park, the concentrated area of Loch Lynn, along Route 135 east to the Shady Acres residential development, and west into Oakland to Wagoner's Phillips 66 service station. Cramer noted that Hausch & Lomb, Inc., was not affected because it is served through another line.

Cramer said that although causes of power outages are not always determined, his crews would continue to attempt to find the cause of this morning's outage. He added that the problem was along the power lines and was not due to a transformer failure.

Board Reports Status of County's Capital Projects

Courthouse renovation and the county solid waste system were among items discussed by the Board of Garrett County Commissioners Tuesday.

Circuit Court Judge Fred Thayer met with the commissioners to inquire about plans to renovate the old county courthouse, including the courtroom.

The commissioners stated they intend to include the renovation project with other capital expenditures in a capital improvements program package to be funded by a general obligation bond.

The commissioners stated they plan to meet with members of the Western Maryland delegation in the next two weeks to propose legislation to be introduced during the 1982 Maryland General Assembly session. A bill to allow the issuance of the county bond will be requested.

Plans for the courthouse renovation, estimated to cost $1.2 million, includes new electrical lines, a new plumbing system and other repairs on the interior and exterior of the building.

Rusty Stewart, operation manager for the Winchester District of Browning-Ferris Industries, presented photographs of dumpster sites in the county and introduced the new resident manager John Watts, Sang Run. Stewart also presented a schedule for trash pick-up at the various sites and stated that he had scheduled a regular Sunday trash pick-up at the Kings Run Road and Bumble Bee Road sites.

Stewart noted that a local B.F.I. office phone number is scheduled to be connected on December 15. That number will be 826-6866.

In other business, the commissioners approved the awarding of the 1979-80 HUD Block Grant audit to McLaughlin, Reineke & Associates, Oakland, at a bid price of $25 an hour, not to exceed a total price of $1250.

Wendell Beitzel, Garrett County Sanitary District administrator, approached the commissioners about a possible

Police Seeking Robbery Suspect, Vehicle Thief

The Lucas Amoco station, Kitzmiller, was the scene of a daylight robbery Saturday morning, according to Tfc. J. W. Michael, Maryland State Police.

Millie Lucas, owner of the establishment, was approached by a man who demanded all the money, which she relinquished. The amount was not revealed.

Police are seeking a man described as a white male, wearing blue jeans and a black, waist-length jacket. He had a black toboggan pulled over his face.

Tfc. Michael is continuing the investigation.

In addition to the robbery, Tfc. Michael is investigating the recovery of a 1980 Chevy Luv pickup truck on North Hill Road, near Deer Park.

The truck was reported stolen from Bell Brothers Auto Dealers, Rt. 219 S., Oakland, sometime between 11 p.m. Friday and 8 a.m. Saturday.

The vehicle had been completely stripped, including the dashboard, and the doors. According to police, all that remained was enough to be loaded onto the back of another pickup.

The investigation is continuing.

AN ALBINO DEER, one of mother nature's oddities, was harvested Saturday near Keysers Ridge by Carl Holtschneider of Sand Flat. The pure white animal, which was a four point and weighed 110 pounds, was one of 532 bucks killed in Garrett County the first day of deer season.

Architects Begin Engineering Study At Bradley Manor Housing Complex

A team of architectural engineers is inspecting apartments at Bradley Manor this week as part of an engineering and cost study expected to show the extent of repairs needed at the deteriorating complex as well as to provide a cost estimate for those repairs.

The three-member team is with the firm Frank Gant Architects, Severna Park, which is contracted by Oakland Associates to perform the study.

The study, funded by HUD, is the next step before HUD decides what action should be taken to solve physical and social problems at Bradley Manor. Oakland Associates, owner of the complex, has put Bradley Manor on sale, but HUD officials have said a transfer of ownership must meet their approval.

Frank Gant, project director, stated his team, which will also include a structural engineer later this week, is inspecting everything at the 16-year-old housing complex for low to moderate-income families. Not only are the units under inspection, but also the site work, grading, and sewer system.

Gant was not willing to give a preliminary analysis of rehabilitation needed at Bradley Manor, but he promised his firm wanted to give "the best possible recommendations and to insure that the people were housed comfortably."

The architects will compile a detailed report including conditions of the complex, recommendations and procedural plans for rehabilitation, and estimates for the cost of repairs.

Gant said his firm has a 30-day deadline to complete the survey, analyze the information, and submit the report.

Gant's firm has conducted similar surveys for rehabilitation of 75 to 100-year-old apartment buildings in the Baltimore area. He noted his firm has never conducted a survey on as young a complex as Bradley Manor.

If the architects' recommendations are approved and if money is available, Gant said his firm would have another 60 days to draft a construction document. If money is found for the project, work could begin in the spring of 1982.

Defense Presents Case In Federal Tax Trial, Snyder Takes The Stand

by Kathy Railey

Defense attorney Arthur Tromokas of Georgia is in his third day of presenting the case of James Dwight Snyder, Oakland, against the Internal Revenue Service in Baltimore Federal District Court. Snyder's case is expected to be completed by tomorrow, at which time closing arguments will be presented and the eight-woman, four-man jury will convene to determine a verdict.

Snyder has pled not guilty to three counts of willful failure to file federal income taxes from 1973 through 1975, three counts of concealment of assets for the same years and concealment of assets for 1980. The trial, which began November 16, is presided by Federal District Judge Norman Ramsey. The IRS is represented by Elizabeth Trimble, Assistant U.S. Attorney for the District of Maryland.

The trial is the culmination of 10 years of encounters, investigations, liens and court proceedings between Snyder and the IRS, since the Oakland man reportedly began filing tax returns and withholding information in 1971. He has apparently not paid federal taxes during that time, claiming he is not opposed to paying taxes, but feels he was "mistreated" by the IRS in previous years.

The prosecution's case, which was completed last Wednesday, dealt primarily with showing assets through property Snyder acquired, and money loaned by Snyder along with testimony to show "that loans were put underground," according to Ms. Trimble. The prosecuting attorney again declined comment on specific aspects of the trial, as it is still in progress.

W. Wayne Graham Appointed WOW Field Manager

W. Wayne Graham, a native of Crellin, will become field manager of the Woodmen of the World Life Insurance Society in Omaha, Neb., on December 1.

Woodmen President Nick T. Newberry announced that, in his new position, Graham will have charge of all of the Society's field work operations in the United States.

Graham is a son of Spencer Graham, of Oakland. He attended Southern High School and was graduated from the West Virginia Wesleyan College in Buckhannon, W. Va., before joining the Woodmen Field Force in 1958. He was promoted to district manager for the Society in 1959, to area manager in 1965, and served as state manager of West Virginia and West Maryland from 1966 until 1975, when he was made assistant field manager. At that time, he moved to Omaha to accept his new position.

Graham has also held the title of assistant vice president with the Woodmen since 1976, and was named as associate field manager and field division office manager in 1980. He is a past president of the West Virginia Fraternal Congress and a past president of the Fraternal Field Managers' Association.

He is married to the former Freda Louise Cooper, of Oakland. They have two children, Jennifer and Jeff, who are attending the University of Nebraska at Lincoln.

Bloomington Water System Currently Under Construction

Construction on the Bloomington Water System began around November 10 and should be completed by late summer, 1982, according to George Mason of Western Maryland Associates, project engineer. Planning for the project began about 1979 by members of the Bloomington Improvement Association, Inc., owners of the present water system.

A preliminary engineering study was completed by Western Maryland Associates in late 1979, accomplished with money advanced by the Garrett County Commission at a cost between $4,000 and $5,000. The results of that study indicated that the town needed to replace its present water system and take water out of Savage River and treat it in a new water treatment plant, Mason explained. He said Bloomington has previously been obtaining water from the town of Westernport.

The new system, which will replace the old system, will serve just the community of Bloomington, about 125 users, most residential. It will be owned and operated by the Bloomington Improvement Association, Inc., which holds as its membership anyone who owns property in Bloomington and uses water.

After the preliminary engineering report, Western Maryland Associates was authorized to design a system and the association obtained financial commitments from Farmers Home Administration. The design was completed in mid-1980, and the project went to bid in April of this year.

Mason explained that construction bids came in over the amount of money available, and the town had to negotiate with the contractors to reduce the project cost to the amount the association had labeled to raise.

He added that all three contractors stayed with the project even after bid bonds expired.

A total estimate project cost is $698,000, $693,000 of which is federal funding. Mason said a substantial portion of the funding is in the form of a grant from FmHA.

Construction contracts for the project were awarded to Salerno Brothers, Inc. of Shinnston, W. Va., to build the pipeline section at an estimated cost of $279,668; to Construction, Inc. of Youngstown, Ohio, to construct the treatment plant and raw water pump station at an estimated cost of $232,358, and to Mattingly Construction Company of Cumberland, to build two steel storage tanks to hold 65,000 gallons of water each, at an estimated cost of $66,354.

Interim financing for the project was obtained through Garrett National Bank, and loans will be paid back through user costs. Estimated user costs for residential customers will be a minimum of $11.80 per month, Mason said.

State Police Busy With Recent Thefts

Maryland State Police, McHenry detachment, are investigating several breaking and enterings and property thefts which occurred during the Thanksgiving weekend.

Unknown culprits entered Walton's Trailer Park, near McHenry, and removed two snowmobiles and trailer from inside a shed near the trailer belonging to Dorothy A. Lewis, Munhall, Pa.

The trailer was a 1975 Northland, and the snowmobiles were a 1977 Arctic Cat Pantera and a 1978 Arctic Cat El Tigre.

The snowmobiles were apparently loaded up and transported from the area, according to Tfc. Gary Berkebile, investigating officer.

The camping trailers of two Frostburg residents were broken into while they were parked in Little Meadows Campground, east of Grantsville.

The victims, John E. Hopkins and John L. Rafferty, had parked at the campground, located near the Chestnut Ridge Road. The doors of the vehicles were pried open with a metal bar, and a variety of items were removed. Included were fishing tackle, an alarm clock, a television, a radio, a floor heater, and several sleeping bags.

Tfc. Ron Georg is investigating.

The W. H. Fratz gasoline station, Rt. 219, Accident, was the scene of a breaking and entering and theft discovered Saturday morning at 8 a.m.

Approximately $70 in cash was stolen from the establishment.

The culprits entered the building via a window, according to Tfc. Carl Skidmore.

Anyone having information concerning any of these crimes is asked to call Garrett County Crime Solvers at 334-3111, or Maryland State Police at 387-5511.

It's YOUR Money

By Randle A. Rodeheaver

SAVE MONEY BY CHECKING YOUR BILLS

Just because a smart computer printed your bill doesn't mean that it's correct. The machines may not make mistakes, but the people who OPERATE them do. Here are some things to look for:

TELEPHONE BILLS: keep a record of all toll calls. Check the time on long-distance calls. When you get a wrong number, notify the operator at once; otherwise you may be billed for a call to some distant point. Watch your next bill to make sure the call hasn't been charged. If you make a nighttime or weekend long-distance call, see that you're billed at the reduced rate.

GAS AND ELECTRIC BILLS: Compare them with the same months for last year or the year before. Energy usage should generally be about the same. If there's a noticeable difference, ask the company to investigate. The meter may have been misread, or it may be out of order.

DEPARTMENT STORE BILLS: Go over the arithmetic on each charge slip before you sign it, even if it's computed on a cash register. An error here can go uncorrected. At the end of the month, compare the slips with the monthly statement. See that you receive credit for payments and returned merchandise.

SUPERMARKET CASH REGISTER TAPES: Note the price of the first item rung up, to help you spot any items from the previous sale that may appear on your tape. Check the number of items you buy against the number on the tape. See that you are not charged regular prices for sale items. Try to verify each price as it is rung up. If you can't, use a pocket calculator to add up your purchases as you take them down from the shelf. Then compare your total with the cash register's.

Rights and Survival . . .

Few things agitate a reporter more than being told he or she will not be given information on a particular issue or will be barred from an important meeting involving government officials. This is particularly true of media personnel in the United States, where freedom of the press and freedom of information are so highly regarded. Not only reporters, but also the American public in general, does not like to not know what's going on, especially when it involves government officials. We elect them, we pay their salaries, we have a right to know what they're doing.

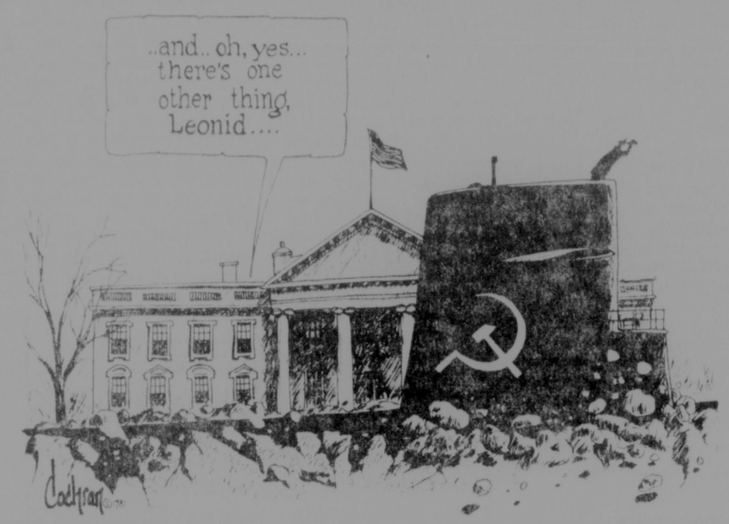
Occasionally, however, there is an exception to this alleged right to know.

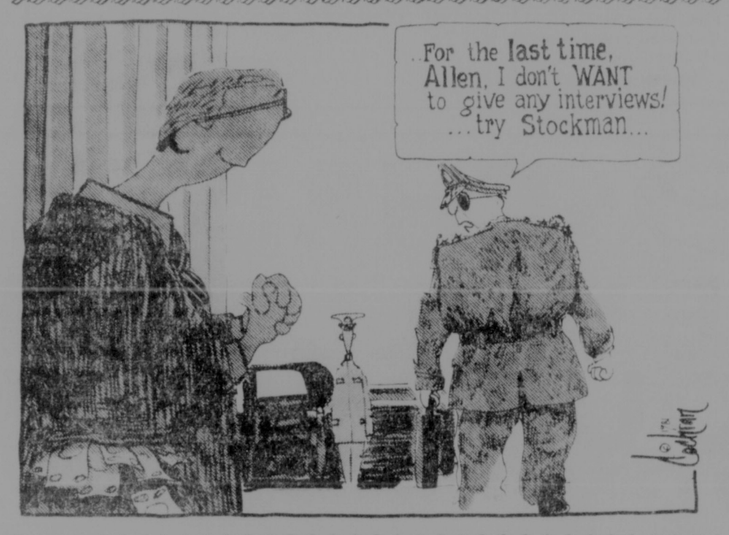
There are private meetings going on presently in Geneva, Switzerland, the importance of which cannot be overemphasized. We refer to the nuclear arms limitation talks occurring between U.S. and Soviet negotiators. The press has been barred from covering what is being said at those meetings, a move with which we are inclined to agree.

To say that these talks will have a bearing on our national security is a gross understatement. These talks may well have a bearing on the very survival of mankind. The extent of nuclear power which already exists and the level of destruction possible is staggering to the mind.

We do know that the talks are going on, which is in and of itself a positive sign. We know who the negotiators are and we know generally the positions of both sides. We will undoubtedly be made aware of the results of the talks.

This, in our opinion, is all we, the public, need to know. The actual words which are exchanged and wheeling and dealing which may be going on is of such a highly sensitive and volatile nature, that the slightest inaccuracy by a reporter, the slightest misinterpretation, even an error in punctuation by a newswriter, could conceivably cause the talks to break off. And we, the world, cannot afford for that to happen.





It's Nearly Time . . .

by Carol Kapel

How disgusting. I just passed the office outgoing mail container and saw a bundle of Christmas cards already addressed, stamped, and ready to be mailed. I don't even have last year's gifts wrapped yet, and some smart-aleck co-worker is sending 1981 greetings this very day.

My holiday intentions are always great. I make my list of recipient persons in mid-July; I mail threatening letters to catalog producers who fail to get my books to me on time; I ask for early "want" lists; and then I wait.

I wait until the town employees put up the Christmas street decorations—I wait until the stores are gaily bedecked with glittering tinsel and artificial trees—I wait until school Christmas plays are over, and Christmas Club checks are long forgotten.

I tell myself there's plenty of time. I cease to speak with persons who begin each conversation with "Do you have your Christmas shopping done?" I tell the children that ordering Christmas cookies from a church bazaar is a charitable thing to do. I spray the house with pine-scented air freshener, and I wait.

Somehow, though, on Christmas morning, it's all there. The gifts are bought and wrapped, the tree is up and decorated, the cards have been sent, and mounds of goodies are on the table. I never can figure it out.

In the meantime, has anyone seen the mistletoe?

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

I wish to call attention to the exhibit of paintings by one of our distinguished citizens, Gordon K. (Sandy) Douglass, on view for another week in the Ruth Enlow Library.

These paintings and the story of how they came to be, could, I think, be an inspiration to many young people of today who face a worsening economic situation not unlike that which Sandy faced in the thirties. The paintings represent one of the several avenues explored by this talented person before he settled upon his life work. Portraiture and commercial art may seem a far cry from the designing, building and sailing of boats but the work in the art of the years 1933-1938 was not a dead end. Sandy did not go back to square one. He had developed considerable craftsmanship, a development you can see as you look at the exhibit, which carried over into quality sailboat design and execution.

Another venture in those years was the selling of fine modern art prints to the public schools of New Jersey for which he wrote his own advertizing. This was invaluable later, for he developed an unusual style in advertizing his designs in National and International Sailing Magazines which drew the attention of many by its originality.

In finally choosing boat design and building as his life work Sandy has given pleasure to many. There is no finer way to live.

His designs, Thistle, numbering 3,721 boats today and The Flying Scot, whose latest number is 3,686, are dynamically growing sailboat classes. This means that a lot of people enjoy their lives a little more because of Sandy Douglass.

To round out the record, what is not known to many is that Sandy was an Olympics athlete and the winner of national championships in two different sports, a record equalled by few.

Sincerely yours,
Mary Douglass

Dear Editor:

Gordon K. ("Sandy") Douglass never ceases to be absolutely amazing! Mr. Douglass has received international acclaim in the art of sailing and sailboat design. Among other achievements he is an accomplished musicologist. Now we discover upon examination of the retrospective exhibit of pastel and oil portraits currently on display at the Ruth Enlow Library in Oakland that Mr. Douglass is a superior artist with exceptional talent.

I was disappointed that the account of the Douglass exhibit in The Republican did not include a critique of his remarkable ability in portraiture nor mention the professionalism of his work.

Garrett County should be proud of this illustrious citizen and give Mr. Douglass the credit he justly deserves for all of his many accomplishments.

Sincerely,
Aza Stanton

Editor:

I don't write letters for publication very often, but my sense of humanity and strong feelings concerning the recent Uphold family tragedy compel me to write a letter this time.

I've read the editorials and articles concerning procedures that Theodore Uphold had to go through and I feel that more human consideration should have been given to him. Perhaps, more consideration would have lessened this tragedy.

I wonder about shopping in a store where such incidents as these can occur.

I feel that senior citizens, as well as youngsters, may, at times, have some difficulties in shopping and that some extra consideration can be proper and should be given.

Sincerely,
Brenda J. Thorn
Oakland

Editor Sincell:

One page in The Republican last week was very appalling to me. So will you please print this letter?

We are all guilty of having the "if onlies," which plays a big part in everyone's life, but most importantly in one's death or the destiny of one's body in the resurrection. May God forbid, that I should judge or say this one is going to spend eternity in Hell or Heaven.

Please folks, don't stand before God and have Him say to you, "if only." May anyone who needs comfort look up these Scriptures: Ecclesiastes 3:3 and 1 Peter 5:8. In Calvary's love we go on 'til the Prince of Peace returns.

home, to be occupied by the four while they shared the structure. When Moore later gained employment in Gaithersburg, they moved from the dwelling.

The Daymude testimony stated that Mrs. Moore demanded cash for all transactions concerning the addition, and then wrote her personal checks to the contractor. According to further statements, while the four lived together, the groceries, utility bills, auto insurance and maintenance were absorbed by the elderly couple, as well as money for taxes and fuel for the dwelling. Several lists of numerous withdrawals from the savings account of the Daymude family were introduced into the file.

On July 23, 1980, the Moores ordered the couple, by telephone, to vacate the home, and on July 27, made a personal visit to the home, demanding the same.

The couple reported they were threatened and told their possessions would be put in the street if they did not leave on their own. The Moores allegedly said the utilities would be turned off, and, in fact, the telephone was disconnected. As a result, the Daymudes moved into a small apartment in the Keyser's Ridge area, where they currently reside.

Judge Thayer entered a judgment of $10,000 in favor of the Daymudes last week and charged the Moores with interest and court costs, as well.

James Sherbin represented the Daymude couple.

Penelec

Penelec. That deeded portion of the buffer strip is expected to be developed into a state park.

The request by Penelec to the commissioners was initiated as part of negotiations for sewer right-of-ways and easement from Penelec to the Garrett County Sanitary Commission for the Deep Creek Sewerage Project. Present at the meeting, in addition to the commissioners, were Tim Atherton, attorney representing Penelec; Jack Alison, Property Management; Tom Elston, manager of Generation Administration; Ralph Weeks, local representative from the Penelec Power Plant, Deep Creek Lake, and Wendell Beitzel, Garrett County Sanitary District administrator.

The width of the road is 50 feet and Atherton told the commissioners that daily snow removal would not be necessary, as the homes at Penelec acres are primarily summer cottages. Drainage would be needed and the Penelec officials noted they are mostly interested in summer use maintenance.

The commissioners estimated it would take about $2,500 to put the road in condition to be able to maintain it. No decision has been reached by the commissioners, as the board first wants to discuss the request with Ken Metheny, interim administrator of the Garrett County Roads Department. The remainder of the Stockslager Road is owned and maintained by the county.

dealt considerably with the surprise seizure, during which Snyder's property was secured and items from his cabinet shop and residence were taken. Tronokas said the defense feels "It wasn't necessary to bring 32 men with machine guns, rifles, knives and other weapons to seize property from a man, his wife and two small children." The seizure brought Snyder's case national publicity through newspaper articles and magazine and talk show interviews.

About 18 witnesses from the Oakland and Terra Alta, W. Va. areas were called to testify by the prosecution last week, and about half a dozen testified on behalf of the defense Monday. Tronokas said that, "People in Baltimore have gotten a flavor of what Garrett County is like. One of the messages I think this jury has gotten is that people in Garrett County don't appreciate raids by the IRS and they're up in arms, even though they may not have disputed previous encounters (between Snyder and the IRS)."

Tronokas estimated that so far in the trial some 370 exhibits have been presented to the court, a pile of information about two feet deep.

Snyder said that, "There have been an awful lot of things that came out on the IRS that I don't think people were aware of." He added that, "One special agent was caught up in numerous lies."

If found guilty, Snyder faces a maximum penalty of five years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine for each count of tax evasion; a maximum of one year imprisonment and a $10,000 fine for each return not filed, and a maximum of three years imprisonment and a $5,000 fine for concealment of assets.

consumer price index by 25 percent.

Both the board and the G.C.T.A hope to have an approved contract by the first of March to incorporate any changes caused by the new contract into the Board's FY 1982-83 budget request to the county.

Lewis Domenick, director of personnel and head of the Board's negotiating team, said the Board would not have a counterproposal at the first meeting, but it does have a few changes to the current contract to propose.

The G.C.T.A., which has negotiated contracts with the Board since 1968, has conducted a survey with teachers to determine what terms they want included in the contract. During November, McDaniel conducted several workshops to inform the teachers of the negotiating procedures.

Representing the Board in the negotiations, besides Domenick, will be James Lupis, assistant superintendent of administrative services; Robert Rodeheaver, instructional supervisor; and Wayne Johnson, principal at Broad Ford Elementary School.

Representing G.C.T.A., besides McDaniel, will be Cheryl Henderson, Dorris "Buz" Updyke, Lowell Leitzel, Terry Wolfe and Bill Freyman.

American (Hokum) Pie

by Harry Fox

Lake Wobegon, Minn.—

The residents of this small (pop. 500) backwoods town in the great American heartland take things pretty easy, despite their recent popularity. No nationwide radio show can go to their heads, no sir, not while the Powdermilk Biscuit plant keeps turning out fresh boxes of their tender product "that gives shy people the power to get up and do what needs to be done." It's another Saturday night, and all across the country folks are pulling their chairs a little closer to the Atwater Kent and listening for the Public Broadcasting System's celebration of the mundane to begin.

The emotions are all real. Only the facts have been changed to shelter the gullible. Search the prairie sod in vain, but you'll not find a trace of the sheltered community of Lake Wobegon. For seven years it has existed in the scripts of one Garrison Keillor, disk jockey turned host of this weekly slice of down-home pie.

"Prairie Home Companion" comes to life each week, complete with sponsors (including the legendary Powdermilk Biscuit) and eccentric townspeople to lend a dash of warm prairie humor to the guest musicians featured in this old-fashioned radio variety show.

"Companion" is radio as it exists in the memory of an older generation, save that what now seems gently humorous used to be the norm. Writer Keillor seized on the unique device of an imaginary world to frame his assortment of featured artists.

It is difficult to compare to any other program. It is a little like "Hee Haw" without the laugh tracks. The raucous humor of the TV series is replaced by a gentle blend of hokum. The jokes are not overly sweet, but are whipped like light cream, without the sledgehammer techniques that TV viewers have resigned to suffer in silence.

The backwards boy from Minnesota has done good. His pastiche of artistry and real life has been picked up on PBS radio stations throughout the nation, and listeners are coming back for more. Too bad that Powdermilk Biscuits are not found on the shelves of any store. They'd probably be selling like crazy.

Hokum it may be, but "Prairie Home Companion" is a true-to-life slice of American pie. It airs locally on the stations of West Virginia Public Broadcasting, and on WQED-FM radio, Pittsburgh.

Deer Kill

Tfc. Carl Skidmore is investigating.

Charles Dickens On Christmas

These lines from the pen of the great Charles Dickens are an expression of one man's attitude and thoughts about Christmas:

"I have always thought of Christmas time, when it has come round . . . as a good time; a kind, forgiving time; charitable and pleasant: the only time I know of, in the long calendar of the year, when men and women seem by one consent to open their shut-up hearts freely, and to think of people below them as if they were really fellow passengers to the grave, and not another race of creatures bound on other journeys. And therefore . . . though it has never put a scrap of gold or silver in my pocket, I believe that it has done me good; and I say, God bless it!"

ENERGY TIP—Always wear a hat to keep your feet warm because if your head is being cooled too fast, the blood flow to other body parts will be reduced to keep up with the rapid temperature drain at the head, and the extremities will begin to feel cold.

CHRISTMAS GIFT WRAPPING IDEAS

Wrapping Christmas gifts can be fun and even inexpensive if you carefully plan. The following ideas will help you have some beautifully creative gifts under the tree this year.

*Decorate brown paper from paper bags or white shelving paper and paint or stamp Christmas designs on it, or create sculpture from the paper for the top of the package.

*Use an attractive and appropriate magazine picture to wrap a small package.

*Wrap the cover of a box separately for easy opening and for possible reuse.

*Cut out fancy letters from magazines and spell out the recipient's name on a package wrapped in plain paper.

*Use appropriate leftover wallpaper or fabric remnants as gift wraps.

*Wrap gifts in newspaper and tie them with bright yarn or cord.

*Wrap awkwardly shaped gifts in tissue and tie or put them into brown bags which have been decorated.

*Use last year's Christmas cards for package tags by cutting out pretty motifs, punching holes, and writing the message on the back.

*Crochet a chain to use as a tie. Use a length of yarn four times the finished length needed to tie the gift. Braid several yarns together for thicker tie. Leftover yarn can also be used in a variety of ways.

FOOD NOTES

Interested in good snack or dessert that is light and fun to make? Try Funnel cakes!

FUNNEL CAKES

2 eggs, beaten
2 cups sifted flour
1½ cups milk
1 tesp. baking powder
¼ tsp. salt
2 Tblsp. sugar
2 cups cooking oil (peanut oil preferred—doesn't have to be quite that much)
1 tsp. vanilla extract
Sifted powdered sugar

Combine eggs and milk with flour, baking powder, sugar and salt. Heat oil to 360°. Pour about ¼ to ⅓ cup through a funnel into oil. Fry about 3 minutes and then turn. As oil gets hotter doesn't take quite as long. Have to watch.

Drain. Sprinkle on powdered sugar.

3M SAFETY

Choral Society Will Present Christmas Show

The Garrett Choral Society will present "Sounds of Christmas" at Southern High School on Saturday, December 12, at 8 p.m. and Sunday, December 13, at 3 p.m.

The production will include a contemporary Christmas cantata by Ralph Carmichael entitled, "'Specially For Shepherds," several Christmas carols by Alfred Burt, and some Irving Berlin traditional carols.

Featured soloists will be Kathryn Sincell, Don Sincell, Dave Callis, Mike Manthos, Lowell Leitzel, Leroy Raines, Margaret Dean and Dianne Dean. Accompaning the group will be Patty McLaughlin, pianist. The production is under the direction of Nancy Learey.

Tickets will be available at Englander's Pharmacy, Oakland, and from members of the Choral Society.

Citizen Assists Police in Arrest

Maryland State Police report that Michael Scott Sigsbee, 18, McHenry, was arrested Sunday and charged with the breaking and entering of the Garrett County District 6 Election House, Sang Run, featured two weeks ago in The Republican as a possible historic site.

Tfc. L.N. Smith reports the arrest came about as the result of citizen involvement, and the department commends a Friendsville resident who co-operated with the state police investigation.

The doorway to the building was apparently kicked open, and damages amounting to $150 was estimated by the investigating officer.

Tax-saving IRAs for everyone!

New tax law adds new advantages for you!

One of the best tax saving plans provided by the new tax law is the expanded Individual Retirement Account (IRA). Beginning January 1, 1982, the door will be open to many persons who were not eligible before, and contribution amounts have been raised.

You should consider setting up an IRA plan in January, if you don't already have one. Here's why.

• You can have an IRA, even though you may already be covered under a company pension or profit sharing plan. Before, if you were a participant in such a plan, you were not allowed to have an IRA of your own. But, beginning January 1, 1982, you can set up your own IRA and make deposits to it totaling up to $2,000 per year.

• The annual IRA contribution has been raised to $2,000, up from $1,500. To a person in a 30% tax bracket, a $2,000 deposit into an IRA would save $600 in taxes. The chart below shows the annual tax savings possible for four different tax brackets:

Tax Bracket	Your Annual Contribution	Your Annual Real Cost	Your Annual Tax Savings
20%	$2,000	$1,600	$ 400
30%	2,000	1,400	600
40%	2,000	1,200	800
50%	2,000	1,000	1,000

If a husband and wife both work and each deposited $2,000, the joint savings would be doubled.

• The compounding of interest, tax sheltered in the IRA can really add up. Let's assume you would make the maximum deposit of $2,000 per year, and that you would receive an average rate of interest of 12% annually on your funds. Here's how your IRA would grow over the years:

After	Your Contributions	Total Value of your IRA
5 years	$10,000	$ 14,226
10 years	20,000	39,298
15 years	30,000	83,490
20 years	40,000	161,376
25 years	50,000	298,640
30 years	60,000	540,548
35 years	70,000	966,926

Again, if a husband and wife both work and each deposited $2,000, the total value of your IRA would be doubled.

• "Spousal" IRA limits are boosted to $2,250. If you have a non-working spouse, you'll be allowed to contribute $2,250 annually, and the funds no longer have to be evenly divided between spouses. You could put in up to $2,000 for the benefit of your non-working spouse, and a divorced spouse could deposit up to $1,125 a year from alimony.

• IRA funds are insured at First National. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation insures all deposits, including IRAs, at The First National Bank of Oakland.

• Two easy steps to getting your IRA started at First National. Because we realize that most people can't afford to deposit large sums all at one time, First National has made it easier for you to get your retirement plan started.

Step One: We can set up a special "IRA Passbook Account" for you. This account will permit you to make deposits in any amount as often as you wish. The IRA Passbook Account earns 5¼% per year, compounded and tax deferred. It lets you accumulate funds until you have enough to get an "IRA Certificate of Deposit."

Step 2: Once you have accumulated $500, you may get one of our "IRA Certificates of Deposit*" which yield a much higher rate of return. There are several different IRA Certificates to choose from—all require a $500 minimum deposit, but the months to maturity and the interest rates are different. When, at some point in the future, you have accumulated $10,000 of deposits and maturing certificates, you may wish to convert to our "IRA Money Market Certificate of Deposit." This six-month instrument has a fixed rate which is tied to 6-month Treasury Bill rates, and it allows you to reinvest every six months.

Contact any First National office for the current rates, and more specific information about IRA Certificates of Deposit.

BATTLING A BRUSH FIRE just off the Glendale Road about one-half mile west of Rt. 495 on Sunday were members of the Deep Creek Volunteer Fire Department and the Department of Natural Resources. Firefighters were called at 11:56 a.m., and remained on the scene for about two hours. Pictured above is Jim Glotfelty of the Deep Creek VFD. The photo was taken by Jeff Fratz, who waded in knee-deep mud to get this shot. Fratz also took a photo which appeared in last week's edition of The Republican of an automobile accident on U.S. Rt. 219.

Holiday Traffic Contributes To Area Mishaps

The Thanksgiving holiday brought numerous accidents to the district, with several reported to be weather related.

First Sgt. H. W. Graham reported an accident involving a loaded school bus and an empty coal truck last Wednesday morning along Shallmar Road, near Kitzmiller. No one was reported injured.

The bus was driven by Wilford Chadderton, Kitzmiller, and the truck by Vernon Aronhalt, Elk Garden, W. Va. Aronhalt was charged with failing to control the speed of his vehicle to avoid a collision.

Larry Eugene Gibbons, Honey Grove, Pa., was charged with driving while intoxicated, failing to keep right of center, and negligent driving following a Tuesday night accident on U.S. Rt. 40, near the Lower New Germany Road.

Gibbons was eastbound on Rt. 40, according to Tfc. Carl Skidmore, when he crossed the center line, and hit a ditch on the westbound side of the roadway. The car then crossed to the eastbound shoulder and hit a guardrail. There were no injuries.

A single-vehicle accident on Thursday morning near Keyser's Ridge slightly injured three persons, who were taken to Sacred Heart Hospital by Northern Rescue Squad.

Police say Linda Mapp, 32, her daughter, Gail Mapp, four years old and 22-year-old Ibon Salvdhin, all of Ft. Knox, Ky., were treated and released following the accident.

Police say the vehicle was eastbound when it ran off the roadway and overturned.

A Swanton man was treated and released from Garrett County Memorial Hospital following a single-vehicle accident on the Walnut Bottom road, approximately two miles south of Rt. 135.

Tfc. Chester Miller, Maryland State Police, said Albert Paugh was operating a van when he apparently swerved the vehicle into a ditch, struck an embankment, and crossed back onto the highway, overturning.

The accident occurred just before 5 p.m. Southern Rescue Squad and the Deer Park Fire Department were at the scene.

Paugh was charged on counts of driving while intoxicated, negligent driving, operating a vehicle with improper tires, driving an unregistered vehicle and driving without insurance. He was reportedly also charged by the Garrett County Sheriff's Department with destruction of property at the county jail when he allegedly destroyed several light fixtures there.

Police Launch Assault, Damage Investigations

Maryland State Police Cpl. Ronald Lewis reports a destruction of property complaint filed Tuesday concerning the damaging of vehicle windows in a 1972 Jeep Commando on that morning, belonging to Matthew Joseph Kastantin, Gaithersburg.

According to the report, the victim had parked his vehicle along U.S. Rt. 40, one mile west of Keyser's Ridge, and had entered the woods to hunt on his property. Upon returning to the Jeep, he discovered the windows had been shot out by unknown culprits, apparently with a high-powered firearm. The investigation is continuing.

Prior to the destruction of property report, Kastantin summoned police in connection with an assault complaint he wished to file against David Loy Wilt, Grantsville.

According to Kastantin, he was involved in a discussion with Wilt and several other members of a hunting party who attempted to enter his private land to hunt earlier in the day. Kastantin claimed he explained to the party that the land was private and no public hunting was permitted.

Wilt allegedly became abusive and threatened physical harm to the complainant, which prompted the call to police.

Trial has been set for January 18, 1982.

Huskies, Rams To Open Friday

Both Garrett County high school varsity basketball teams will open their 1981-82 seasons this Friday evening.

The Northern Huskies, under coach Harv Speicher, will travel to Valley to face the always tough Black Knights. The Huskies finished at 12-11 last season.

Coach Tom Bosley's Rams, coming off a 17-6 season, will open at Beall.

Lakers Will Face Catamounts Tonight

The Garrett Community College Lakers will take their 2-0 record to Keyser this evening to meet the 2-0 Catamounts of Potomac State in an 8 p.m. contest.

Both teams won their two games in the Garrett Preview Tournament, held November 20-21. Coach Randy Hess's Lakers defeated Penn State-Altoona, 95-82, and Cecil, 58-48, while the Catamounts stopped Cecil, 67-66, and Altoona, 94-84.

Ryscavage Earns Spot On West Point Team

Jeff Ryscavage, a freshman at West Point and former basketball standout at Southern High School, has been named to the varsity team of that U.S. military institution.

Reportedly, because of injuries to two starting players, Ryscavage may be moved up to the starting lineup this week.

Ryscavage is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Jerome Ryscavage, Oakland.

Ski Club Holds Kick-off Party

The Wisp Ski Club held it annual kick-off party Sunday evening at Point View Inn, Deep Creek Lake. Approximately 50 members and guests were present. Ruth Umbel, Ski Club president, was hostess for the event.

It was noted that the group has sponsored trips and social and racing events since 1976, and that one of its achievements was the development of a racing program at the Wisp Ski area. Jerry Geisler, who has been racing coordinator for the club since its formation, has been appointed racing director at the Wisp.

Jon Umbel, son of Ms. Umbel, began racing at the Wisp and last season he made the Eastern Junior Olympic Ski Team. He is currently training at Stratton Mountain in Vermont.

In addition to the club's annual trip to Sno Shoe and other social functions, the club plans to sponsor a Wisp Cup Race, a Bill Ravenscroft Memorial and the Winterfest races for the Deep Creek Lions Club.

Membership is open and anyone wanting further information may contact Ruth Umbel at 387-5555 or Geni Livengood at 387-5931.

Women's Bowling Association Meets

The November meeting of the board of directors of the Western Maryland Women's Bowling Association was held November 22 at Par Matt Lanes in Oakland.

The results of the first Maryland State Scholarship Fund Tournament held the week of October 26 were announced. The results from Western Maryland were: The Bowler, LaVale, sold 804 games with $402.00 going to the Scholarship Fund; White Oak Lanes sold 384 with $192.00 for the fund; North Garrett Lanes sold 245 with $122.50 for the fund; Mineral Lanes, Keyser, W. Va., sold 226 with $113.00 for the fund; and Sherwood Lanes, Frostburg, 52 with $26.00 for the Fund. The total sold was 1,711 with $855.50 going to the Scholarship Fund from Western Maryland.

Persons interested in bowling in the seventeenth Annual Maryland State Championship Tournament must have their entries submitted by February, 11, 1982. The tournament will be held the first four weekends in May 1982. The Team Event, consisting of four-women teams, will be held at Crofton Bowling Center, Crofton, and the Doubles and Singles Events will be rolled at Fair Lanes-Southdale, Pasadena. Entry forms may be found at all the area bowling centers. Send entries to Miriam Oland, Secretary, Md. State Women's Bowling Assoc., P.O. Box 76, Middletown, Md., Zip Code 21769.

The 1982 WIBC Championship Tournament being held in St. Louis, Missouri, has been extended eight days. The final date for team competition will be May 31, 1982 unless the schedule is extended again. As of October 23, 1981 there were already 5,226 five-women teams entered. The deadline for the tournament is January 8, 1982.

There will not be a U.M.W.B.A. meeting in December.

Eight County High School Gridders Named To '81 HFC All-Star Team

Ron Bosley, of the Southern High Rams, was one of four repeaters named to the 1981 All-Highland Football Conference Team this week and one of eight Garrett County high school gridders receiving the distinction.

Bosley, a 6-2, 185-pound junior, led the league in rushing and scoring, recording 619 yards on 124 carries and 76 points.

The other repeaters named to the team were Randy Clark and Carl Schurg of Beall and Kevin Malick of Hampshire.

Clark was named an offensive back this year after being honored on defense as a junior. The 5-9, 165-pound senior rushed for 581 yards on 107 carries and also led the league in punting with a 34.4-yard average.

Schurg was named to the first team defensive lineman position. He is a 6-2, 210-pound senior.

Malick repeats as a quarterback on the squad, sharing honors this year with Beall's Dwayne Snyder. Malick led the HFC in passing with 367 yards in four games. Snyder averaged 5.9 yards per pass attempt.

The other Southern High players named to the conference team were wide receiver Dave Scott, a 6-0, 170-pound junior; interior lineman Andrew Orr, a 5-10, 170-pound senior; defensive Paul Harvey, a 5-9, 150-pound junior; and defensive back Matt Scheffel, a 6-1, 170-pound senior. Harvey also finished with the best offensive rushing yardage in the league, picking up an average of 10.5 yards per carry.

Northern High players named to the squad included offensive lineman Mike Robinson, 6-1, 235-pound senior; running back Robb Carr, a 5-10, 160-pound junior; and linebacker Stan Eggleston, a 5-9, 195-pound senior.

The Huskies led the league in pass defense, yielding an average of only 147 yards per contest, while the Rams led in rushing offense with 1,332 yards.

Beall, unbeaten in five HFC contests and winner of the Class C Region I title, placed seven players on the All-Conference team and Mountaineer coach Jerry Calhoun was named "Coach of the Year" for the fifth time.

Hampshire had six players named to the team and Bruce and Valley, two each.

The annual all-star dinner will be held Sunday, December 13, at Beall High School. Tickets are available from conference coaches.

Senior Citizens

other travel arrangements.

By cutting down their staff and reducing services, the Commission is able to continue a more modest program for senior citizens and yet continue to serve those whose needs are greatest, according to Metheny.

Two services which the Commission operates at a minimal cost are referral services to help senior citizens contact agencies which can meet their needs and recreational activities which are generally held on the days the hot meals are served in the centers.

The Commission On Aging serves 50 percent of the senior citizens in Garrett County and Marilyn Metheny, for one, would like to see it stay that way. She points out that the Commission's programs "fill the gaps" in services to senior citizens not filled by social agencies which have a larger clientele or which have stricter qualifications to be included in a program.

For the Commission's programs to remain intact, Metheny indicated federal funds and community support will need to continue.

"We are heavily dependent on volunteers," Metheny said. Actually, much of the program runs on volunteer help. Volunteers help run the hot meals centers, they help provide transportation, they help with home meal delivery and with referral services.

The program always needs more volunteers, says Metheny.

Federal funding is Metheny's greatest concern. Even though programs for senior citizens were not heavily affected in the first round of federal cuts by the Reagan administration, Metheny notes that proposed changes in the procedure for distributing the funds could adversely affect senior citizens in rural areas.

Metheny stated that the Reagan administration is considering allocating money to each state in block grants thereby allowing each state to determine how to distribute the funds. Metheny said this procedure, especially if no guidelines for allocation were provided, would be disadvantageous to areas with little political influence.

The Commission On Aging, as a federally-funded agency, is prohibited from lobbying for legislation to help senior citizens. "The key is for senior citizens to make their voices heard," said Metheny. She noted that senior citizens are the largest single voting block in the country and, if organized, could influence federal legislation.

Persons wishing more information about the Commission's programs or how to become volunteer or how to write letters to politicians should contact the Garrett County Commission On Aging at 334-3314.

A BIT OF GARRETT COUNTY is being shipped out this week to eventually be displayed with Christmas ornaments in homes throughout the state. These photos of the Christmas tree shipping process were taken at the Pineview Tree Farm, Oakland, owned by Dr. F.D. Custer. The pines, cut and wrapped, are en route to the Baltimore and Washington, D.C. areas. Custer owns close to 90 acres of trees, and this year he will ship out about 6,000. Elsewhere in the county, E. Marshall Stacy, Swanton, is busily preparing several thousand trees on his Pinetum Farm to be sold by himself and his wife, Cindy, at retail lots in Silver Spring and Columbia. The Stacy farm boasts about 200 acres of pine trees, and some will be shipped wholesale elsewhere in the state, with the first shipments going out this week. Trees from the Dr. James Feaster farm, Crellin-Underwood Road, will be shipped this Saturday to various towns in West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Maryland. The Feaster property is managed by Jay Rice, Oakland, who said that farm will sell between 1,500 and 2,000 trees this year. The Feaster property includes about 70 acres in trees.

The Garrett County Sheriff's Department is seeking information leading to the arrest and indictment of the person or persons responsible for the breaking and entering and theft of the Estavieve Soreno residence located in Hutton.

Special investigator Van Evans reports: Sometime between 5 p.m. and 8:30 p.m., on February 21, 1980, unknown persons forced their way into the Soreno home. Stolen from the residence was $4000 to $5000 in silver certificates and nearly $4000 in silver coins. The culprits apparently made their exit through a rear door into a wooded area. Tracks indicated the thieves came out of the woods from Rt. 39.

All leads in this investigation have been exhausted and Crime Solvers is seeking the help of the public. Anyone with information about this crime is asked to call Crime Solvers at 334-3111. The caller does not have to give a name, and no court appearance is necessary. If the tip leads to the arrest and indictment of the person or persons responsible, the caller may be eligible for a reward of up to $1000.

Crime Solvers also pays cash rewards for information leading to the capture of wanted persons in other unsolved crimes. All information is kept strictly confidential, and callers may remain anonymous. Any information about the Crime Solvers program may be obtained by calling 334-3111.

The Armed Services Vocational Aptitude Test will be given December 15, to all interested juniors and seniors. This vocational aptitude test is given by the Department of Defense to provide information on the tested students' potential and personal aptitudes. It also provides information on the best possible occupational field for the student after completion of high school.

Students are tested in various fields, ranging from word knowledge to automotive information.

Students are asked to sign up for the test in their English class. No fee will be charged.

Lobby Decorated

The main lobby of the high school is being decorated by a committee appointed by the Student Council. Becki Tackett was named chairperson. The committee is decorating the lobby in keeping with the Christmas spirit. The purpose of this project is to remind students to bring in food, toys, etc., for the charity drive being held for the House of Hope in Oakland.

Newspaper Sues On Threshold Issue

Attorney Holds 'Selfishness' Motive For Closed Meetings On Budget

ANNAPOLIS (UPI) — The political selfishness of individual lawmakers was the only reason the General Assembly permitted some meetings on the state budget to be held in secret, a Baltimore News American attorney said Tuesday.

Lawyer Theodore Sherbow asked the Court of Appeals to uphold an Anne Arundel County judge's ruling that Senate-House conference committee meetings on the budget must be open to the press and public.

"Locking the door was an attempt to infulate each legislator for selfish reasons and was a political act," Sherbow told the seven members of the state's highest court.

But Attorney General Stephen Sachs said the court should overturn the ruling in August by Circuit Judge Nat W. Hopper because it violated the principle of separation of powers between the legislative and judicial branches of government.

Sachs said the "threshold issue" was constitutionality and for the court to ignore that was to "trespass" into the legal domain of the General Assembly.

The issue arose last April when three senators and three delegates were appointed to iron out differences between House and Senate versions of the budget. When the six legislators decided to meet in private, which as been the custom in recent years, the News-American sued.

Hopper held a brief hearing and ordered the meeting opened, but the issue was moot because the committee had completed its work. A full hearing was held last summer and Hopper ordered that future conference committee meetings on the budget be held in public.

Sherbow, quoting from a different section of the state constitution than Sachs, said the constitution since at least 1851 had required an "open door" policy regarding meetings unless they "ought to be secret."

"The only problem arises when there has to be something that is secret," he said. "But what they (the framers of the constitution) had in mind is something like, 'The British are coming up the Chesapeake.'"

He said there was no justification for closed conference committee meetings on the budget because public business was being discussed and because the rest of the budget-making process had been conducted publicly.

Sherbow also said the state open meeting law also requires that the conference committee meetings be opened.

Sachs noted that even the meetings of the American constitutional convention in Philadelphia were held behind closed doors.

"Secrecy is not altogether and all the time the evil that is often suggested," the attorney general said.

Police Board Suspends Officer After Acquittal In Shooting Death

MILLERSVILLE, Md. (UPI) — An Anne Arundel County police trial board recommended a 15-day suspension without pay for an officer who was acquitted of charges in the shooting death of a Glen Burnie man, police said Tuesday.

A five-member board considering departmental charges against Officer Frederick W. Roth found hs had violated regulations on firearm safety and improperly displayed an off-duty weapon. The board found Roth innocent of improper use of deadly force and dismissed a charge of conduct unbecoming an officer.

On Sept. 23, a county circuit jury acquitted Roth of murder in the April 6 shooting of Russell W. Kramer, 25.

Testimony showed the early-morning incident occurred along a Glen Burnie roadside after Roth had spent much of the evening drinking beer and socializing with his friends. Roth testified at his trial that his revolver accidentally discharged as he tried to stop a fight between a friend of his and the victim.

Chief Maxwell V. Frye Jr. has 30 days in which to decide whether to follow the trial board's recommendation or to increase or decrease the suspension time.

Gov. Hughes Defends Road Tax Hike; Study Of Truck Costs Questioned

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI) — Gov. Harry Hughes and transportation officials Tuesday questioned the validity of a University of Maryland study that shows truck drivers pay more than their fair share of taxes to use Maryland roads.

Members of an oversite committee meeting in College Park said they were so surprised at the findings a final report has been delayed until statistics can be verified.

"Anything's possible, but I think it's highly improbable that these figures are correct," said Delegate Stewart Bainum Jr., D-Montgomery.

Hughes had planned to use the report to defend his proposed truck-tax increase.

Hughes' proposal, part of a larger transportation funding plan that also includes a general wholesale gasoline tax increase, would raise about $15 million annually by increasing the current road tax on truckers according to vehicle weight.

Studies conducted by the federal government and other states indicate truckers are not taxed in proportion to the burden their vehicles put on state roads and bridges.

The University of Maryland study, the first conducted in the state, suggests just the opposite.

"The preliminary report is at significant variance with similar studies made around the country on the same subject," Hughes said. "It takes some serious re-checking."

Other officials expressed concern over the report's findings.

Hal Kassoff, director of planning for the State Highway Administration, said the University of Maryland contractors put most of the final calculations for the four-month study together over the weekend in time for the committee meeting.

The committee also raised questions about the contractor's decision to combine federal state money to determine the total tax contributions.

The report showed tractor-trailers are paying about 10 percent of the highway costs, but account for about 8 percent of road and bridge use.

By comparison, automobiles accounted for 68 percent of the wear on state highways and bridges, while car owners pay for only about 59 percent of the cost, the study showed.

"Single-unit" trucks, which account for about 8 percent of state road use, are contributing about 16 percent of the revenue used to pay for Maryland's highways.

Hughes stressed he has not changed his mind about a need for a truck tax.

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — One woman died and 42 people were injured Tuesday in the rush hour crash of a commuter bus that ran off a wet road and through the wall of a building.

The Allegheny County morgue withheld identification of the victim pending notification of relatives.

Accidents Take 3 Lives, Tie Up Traffic

By United Press International

At least three people died Monday in scores of morning traffic accidents across Maryland as rain temporarily turned to an icy glaze on roads and highways, state police said.

The biggest tieup occurred after state police sealed off a 10-mile stretch of Interstate 95 for over six hours to allow emergency teams to remove a cargo of dangerous chemicals from an overturned tractor-trailer.

The truck, bearing containers of formic acid, a phosphoric substance and carbon peroxide, hit a patch of ice and flipped over about 8 a.m. in Cecil County.

The driver was not injured in the mishap and authorities were able to remove the containers without any leakage, police said.

In an unrelated accident on Interstate 95 near the Harford-Baltimore county lines, a woman in her mid 30s and a boy about 7, both of Asian descent, were killed when their automobile spun out of control and struck another tractor-trailer.

Authorities said the victims had not been identified. The driver of the auto, also of Asian descent, and the truck driver, were treated for injuries at area hospitals.

Meanwhile, state police said Valerie Puckett, 19, of Darlington, was killed after she lost control of her auto on State Route 136 near Darlington and collided with an oncoming pickup truck.

In Harford County, two school buses loaded with children on their way to classes collided on a county road. At least 12 children, some of them handicapped, were treated for minor injuries at a local hospital and released.

The National Weather Service issued a travelers advisory in the morning, but state police said roads and highways across the state were safe again by midday as temperatures rose above the freezing point.

Bathtub Mishap Takes Woman's Life

TOWSON, Md. (UPI) — A woman who slipped in a bathroom struck her head on a soap container and died, Baltimore County police said Tuesday.

Cpl. Donald Shinnamon said Carol Sinibaldi, 28, was at her parents' home when the mishap occurred. An investigation showed Ms. Sinibaldi slipped, and her chin struck a metal soap container.

Miss Sinibaldi had last been seen Saturday before her brother discovered her body Monday night in the bathtub. Police found body powder on the floor just outside the tub and some of the same powder on the woman's shoes, Shinnamon said.

Dr. Margarita Korell, an assistant state medical examiner, said she was awaiting the outcome of laboratory tests on Miss Sinibaldi's body fluids before ruling on the cause of death.

Police said they have ruled out foul play in the mishap.

Contempt Of Court Draws 16 Years

BALTIMORE (UPI) — A man sentenced to 16 years in prison for contempt of court will probably be unable to meet a $15,000 bail, his attorney said Tuesday.

"My client is really indigent, and I don't think he'll be able to come up with the money," said William B. Purpura, attorney for 26-year-old Anthony Wilkes.

On Monday, Criminal Judge John R. Hargrove set the bail for Wilkens, found guilty last December on four counts of contempt. The guilty finding by Judge Milton B. Allen stemmed from Wilkens' disruptive behavior during his trial on armed robbery and rape charges, charges on which he was found innocent.

Allen waited nine months from the time he found Wilkens guilty until the time he detailed the reasons why he had ruled that way. The delay angered Purpura, who said his client was forced to stay in jail while Allen waited to explain his decision.

Purpura has appealed Allen's decision to the Maryland Court of Special Appeals. A hearing date has not yet been set.

State Lawyers Petition For Ruling On Agnew Challenge Of Payback

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Maryland's highest court should immediately consider Spiro T. Agnew's challenge of a ruling requiring him to pay the state $250,000 for bribes he allegedly took while governor, state lawyers said Tuesday.

In a petition filed with the Maryland Court of Appeals, Assistant Attorney General Diana G. Motz said the court should take up the case now because it "is truly a case of vast public importance deserving immediate review by this court."

The Agnew case is currently pending before the Maryland Court of Special Appeals, the second-highest court in Maryland. A granting of the state's request would mean that the court of special appeals would be bypassed in the legal decision-making process.

Arundel Circuit Judge Bruce C. Williams, ruling April 27 on a suit filed by three Maryland taxpayers, ordered Agnew to repay the state $248,735. That sum includes $147,500 in kickbacks Agnew allegedly received between 1968 and 1972 from Maryland engineering firms in exchange for state highway contrwcts, and $101,235 in interest.

In handing down his ruling, Williams said: "There is no question in the court's mind that Mr. Agnew violated his public trust and his fiduciary duties to the state of Maryland."

In Tuesday's request, Motz told the high court the Agnew case "provides the court with its first opportunity to determine excatly what the state and taxpayers (must prove) in order to require a public officer... (to) return to the state the money he has illegally taken."

Agnew, 63, was elected governor in 1966 and resigned in 1969 to become Richard Nixon's vice president. He was only the second vice president to resign and the first to leave under a legal cloud.

Deported From Bermuda; Face Murder Charge

LINTHICUM, Md. (UPI) — Bermuda authorities Tuesday deported a 30-year-old pregnant mother of three to Maryland, where she and her husband face charges stemming from the murder of her husband's previous wife.

Ernestine "Tina" Myers of Carroll County arrived from Hamilton, Bermuda on a commerical at Baltimore-Washington International Airport under the guard of Maryland state police.

She pleaded guilty Monday to one count of bigamy, was given a suspended sentence of one year in jail and ordered deported.

Bermuda attorney general Saul Froomkin said Mrs. Myers' marriage to Westminster accountant Robert Lee Myers was an attempt to thwart efforts by Maryland authorities to force the two to testify against each other.

Last month, a Carroll County grand jury indicted Myers, 39, Tina Myers, 30, and Daniel Lee Chadderton, a 31-year-old Baltimore man, on first-degree murder charges in the August 1979 fatal shooting of Mary Ruth Myers.

Officials said the plea may clear the way for Mrs. Myers, who is two months pregnant after giving birth in June to Myers' child, to testify against her husband in the murder trial that probably will begin next spring.

Columbia Industrial Park Site Of $50 Million Technical Complex

COLUMBIA, Md. (UPI) — Maryland's industrial base will soon be expanded by a $50 million high-technology complex to be built on a 225-acre site, representatives of the site developer said Tuesday.

Rivers Corporate Park, being planned by the Rouse Co. and Connecticut General Corp., has already attracted two high-technology companies. Electro-Nucleaonic Inc. and Shimadzu Scientific Instruments Inc. said they will move into two 40,000-square-foot buildings when the project is completed late next year.

The Manekin Corp. also has contracted to buy about 20 acres of the site, hoping to lure tenants into about 253,000 square feet of space, said Richard Alter, the firm's vice president. In all, Rivers Corporate Park will consist of 1.6 million square feet of space.

The completed projected will be the fifth industrial park in the Columbia area.

Volunteers Find Life After J.R.; Abstain From TV For Month

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — One youngster threatened to booby-trap his mother's room. She countered with bribery.

The object of the high-stakes bargaining was the family television — off limits for 53 families who voluntarily pulled the plugs on their tubes during November in a private school's novel experiment to increase reading.

One family had to fight the temptation of a new color set, cruelly delivered days before November began.

A mother admitted she couldn't "break the habit" of folding laundry with the TV blaring.

Many of the volunteers gathered Tuesday at the private, coeducational Wheeler School to discuss their month away from "Dallas," Monday Night Football and addictive daily soap operas.

Nearly 10 percent of the private school's 540 students and their parents volunteered for the experiment. None seemed to be suffering any ill effects of video deprivation.

The challenge was issued by Peter H. Hufstader, English Department chairman, who said he was "shocked at the steady erosion of reading skills."

"The logic behind the whole thing is to call attention to the fact that heavy, chronic TV watchers do not make good readers," Hufstader said. "It's not an attack on television. It's time. There's only so much time in the day and TV interrupts that time.

Tube withdrawal, although a painful experience for many families, was unanimously called a success by the 75 parents and children who reported on their month without TV sitcoms and cartoons.

Most agreed life without television did not necessarily mean more reading, but did encourage conversation, more family-centered activities and other pursuits.

"It was hard for him but not for me. The TV's in his room," Jill Tyler said of her 7th grader, Jamarl. "I bribed him. I told him I'd buy him a record. At first, he stuck his tongue out at me. Then he threatened to booby-trap my room."

"It forced you to change your habits," said Sarah Whinery, mother of two youngsters. "I think, in the beginning, we all went madly through our books. Later, we played games ... and talked. There was a sense of quiet and tranquility, more talking."

Traditional Christmas Commutations Cut By Tighter Security Standards

ANNAPOLIS (UPI) — Traditional Christmas commutations of sentences for prison inmates will be cut by two-thirds or more this year, primarily because of more stringent standards for release, Gov. Harry Hughes said Tuesday.

Hughes said he expected to commute the sentences of only 40 or 50 inmates in time for Christmas this year — far fewer than the approximately 170 who were set free early a year ago.

The governor said Secretary Thomas Schmidt of the Department of Public Safety and Correctional Services had tightened the eligibility restrictions for those to be considered for release, including:

—Reducing from 180 days to 90 days the amount of time left on an inmate's sentence before he or she would be eligible for early release;

—Giving prison wardens veto power over early releases;

—Requiring inmates to go before a special panel of prison officials for screening before being eligible for release;

—Not considering inmates convicted of certain crimes as eligible for a commuted sentence, although which specific crimes was not spelled out.

Hughes said the Christmas commutation program was not part of the state's ongoing efforts to ease overcrowding in Maryland penal institutions.

"It has just been traditional to do it," he said.

On two other unreleated topics, Hughes announced a new cooperative program designed to end the "boom-or-bust" cycle in Maryland seafood production; and the decision of a Japanese manufacturer to expand in Howard County.

The governor said the University of Maryland's Center for Environmental and Estuarine Studies had agreed to work with the Department of Natural Resources in an effort to eliminate the "boom-or-bust" nature of the seafood business.

"It will cover all phases of seafood management and research and will avoid the need for the university and the department to enter into separate agreements for research and development projects," he said.

Hughes, Economic Development Secretary James Roberson and Howard County Executive J. Hugh Nichols jointly announced the expansion plans of Shimadzu Scientific Instruments, Inc., a manufacturing firm from Kyoto, Japan, that already has facilities in Columbia.

The firm intends to begin building in April a $1.9 million plant.

Victim Reports Good Treatment Following Release By Abductors

BALTIMORE (UPI) — One of several victims of a couple accused of a series of abductions along the East Coast said Tuesday he "couldn't pick nicer people" to have kidnapped him.

Herbert Dowling Jr., a real estate agent, said his abductors did not mistreat him, but did take his shoes when they were left in a New Jersey motel.

"I had to get out of the motel, go to the hospital, talk to police, drive all the way home from New Jersey and then go to my office to warm up my car with freezing feet," Dowling said. "Other than that, you couldn't pick nicer people to kidnap you."

Dowling was among eight people abducted by a man the FBI said was a cocaine distributor and his female accomplice. All were either released or escaped relatively unharmed in an unexplained spree that began Nov. 18 in Norfolk, Va., said FBI special agent Edward D. Hegarty.

Hegarty said police continued their search Tuesday for Harry R. Creta, 33, and Gail E. Baker, 23, both of Virginia Beach, Va.

The couple is also suspected of kidnappings in New Jersey, New York and Virginia, Hegarty said.

There were no demands for ransom and Hegarty said there is no apparent motive.

"Bizarre is the word for it," said Agent Bill Colombell.

A restaurant employee in Greenbelt, Md., was kidnapped Nov. 25 and on Nov. 28 was taken to a realty office in Reistertown, where Dowling, 26, and fellow agent Dianne Dandy, 38, were forced to join the party.

Ms. Dandy was forced to drive to a motel in Bellmawr, N.J., where they all spent Saturday night.

The captives were not tied up that evening, Dowling said.

"We were not bound... they kept saying if we didn't try anything, we wouldn't be hurt. "We were more or less like friends. But they kept the guns on us the whole time."

The abductors left the three hostages tied in the motel on Sunday and fled in Ms. Dandy's car.

"Even then they were nice," Dowling said. "When the man noticed I had a moustache, he sent the woman out to buy gauze so the tape wouldn't stick in my moustache," he said.

The captives freed themselves about two hours after the suspects left and called police from the motel office.

The FBI said Ms. Dandy's car was found abandoned Monday afternoon in Cranston, R.I., and lab tests were being performed on the vehicle.

Agents described Creta as "a heavy cocaine user wanted for distribution of the drug in Norfolk."

"He was armed with an automatic pistol and a Derringer and vowed not to be taken alive," Hegarty said.

Ms. Baker was said to be carrying a Derringer in her purse.

Authorities said the spree apparenhly began Nov. 18 when a man was abducted at gunpoint in Norfolk and forced to drive to Richmond. He escaped when they stopped at a shopping mall.

A few hours later, at the same mall, a man and a woman were taken at gunpoint and forced to drive to Providence, R.I, then released unharmed.

The FBI said that on Nov. 24, a man was kidnapped from John F. Kennedy Airport in New York and forced to drive to Bordentown, N.J. He was released, then a woman was abducted and forced to drive to Greenbelt, where she was released.

The suspects have been charged with five counts of kidnapping and a Virginia judge has already recommended bail of $500,000 each for them.

Vets Urged To Apply For Benefits Despite Lost Documents

The Veterans Administration is reminding veterans and their dependents that they shouldn't let a lost document prevent them from applying for VA benefits.

VA regional director, Milford J. Clayton, reports that some veterans who can't locate a birth or marriage certificate do not apply for benefits because they think these documents are essential.

VA will accept certified statements from applicants in instances where documents needed to establish eligibility for benefits are lost, Clayton noted.

In the case of a marriage, this policy applies only to the first marriage for each partner, and there must be no contradictory information on file with the agency.

In years past, VA has required formal documentation to support claims for compensation and education benefits for veterans, widows and orphaned children.

More recently, however, the agency has accepted a certified statement regarding the birth of a child or as proof of age and relationship in disability cases, Clayton said.

Veterans or dependents with questions about eligibility for benefits are urged by Clayton to contact the nearest VA regional office or a representative of one of the national veterans organizations.

The SNOWMAN

Maggie and June worked all morning making their snowman. He got so big that they had to fetch a stool and stand on tiptoe to make his arms and to cinder-button him. The mailman helped put on his head.

When they napped that afternoon, the sun shone hot and bright, and the south wind blew. When they woke, their snowy pal had dwindled and his cinder face cried dirty streaks. Sadly they turned away.

Sometimes life is like that snowman — grand and glittering with all the things we have. Then the hot winds of disaster blow, and their importance vanishes and we are left with emptiness.

What makes life meaningful? If possessions can't make us happy, what can?

Our churches have the answer. Through worship and prayer they teach us to find the joys of spirit.

FIVE DIABETIC WARNINGS TO CHILDREN
If a child begins to drink great quantities of liquids but is continuously thirsty; if he eats more food than before, but loses weight steadily; if he begins to wet the bed after having stopped doing so; if he suddenly seems less peppy; and if he suffers from severe constipation—take him to the doctor as soon as possible.
These five symptoms present at one time are indications of a possible diabetes. A quick detection in children can be life saving. When treated early, diabetes, a chronic disease, can be controlled.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

CHRIST'S "SOMETHING MORE"

December 6, 1981

Background Scripture:
Matthew 14: 28-33; Mark 1: 1-11; 9: 2-8.

Devotional Reading:
I Corinthians 1: 20-31

At one time it was fashionable in some circles to regard Jesus as nothing more than a fictional or mythical character. Apart from the Bible itself, there is no proof that such a man actually lived and died in the first century A.D.

Nevertheless, today, if I can in any way judge from what I see, hear and read, there doesn't seem to be much doubt among most people that Jesus was an actual historical figure. The conflict and disagreement today seems much more to be over the question: Who was this man? or, depending upon your approach, Who is this Christ?

The Son of God

Christians often attempt to answer either or both of these questions by listing one or more of his titles. Jesus, we say, is the Christ, the Messiah, the Lord, our Saviour, the Incarnate Word of God, the Master, and the Son of God. (Although we do not usually use this title, we are aware that the Gospels, particularly Mark, also call him the Son of man at times.)

But titles are not answers by themselves. For when we say that Jesus is the Son of God, what are we saying?

In Mark, we find that Jesus' divine "sonship" was that Gospel's main theme. He begins his gospel proclaiming, "The beginning of the Gospel of Jesus Christ, the Son of God" (1: 1). At Mark's recounting of the baptism of Jesus, there is "a voice from heaven, 'Thou art my beloved Son; with thee I am well pleased,' " (1: 11). And on the Mount of Transfiguration, there is another voice, saying of Jesus, "This is my beloved Son; listen to him" (9: 7). What is Mark trying to say to us about Jesus?

In Daniel 3: 25 King Nebuchadnezzar saw in the firey furnace besides Shadrach, Meschach and Abednego a fourth person whose appearance was that of a "son of the gods," indicating that there is something divine about him. In the books of Job and Psalms the term "sons of God" indicates beings who are divine but subordinate to God. In other Old Testament sources, to be God's "son" or "sons" implies simply a special relationship with God (the nation of Israel, Exodus 4: 22, 23; the Davidic king, Psalms 89: 26, 27; etc.).

The Divine Become Human

Mark, however, implies something more when he uses this term. This "something more" was a special, filial relationship between Jesus and God ("Father" being the term Jesus used most in referring to God). It also indicated that the disciples realized that, in dealing with this man Jesus, in some way virtually indefinable they were dealing with God Himself. As John would later put it, they found that the Word had become flesh in Jesus, the divine expressed in human terms.

The title "Son of God" is impossible to precisely define, but it does not matter that we cannot define it, so long as we are able to experience for ourselves the "something more" of Jesus, the Son of God.

Straight Talk About Aging

By Matthew Tayback
State Director On Aging

'TIS THE SEASON

Winter brings many pleasant and enjoyable things — holiday festivities, the theater season, family meetings . . .

But winter all too often brings something that's not enjoyable at all. In fact, for elderly Marylanders, it can be downright dangerous. I'm talking about the flu.

Flu, of course, is that all-too-familiar viral infection of the nose, throat, and lungs that brings aches, chills, and fever. For normally healthy children, young adults, and middle-aged people, it's usually a relatively mild sort of disease.

For the elderly, however, it can be life-threatening. That's because it lowers its victims' resistance and thus may allow more serious infections to attack — specifically pneumonia, which is one of the five leading causes of death among people over 65.

Flu's symptoms can often be confused with those of the common cold. An important difference is that flu causes fever, which usually is absent during a cold. Also, nasal congestion occurs more often with a cold than with the flu.

Of course, you don't have to wait until flu strikes. Because it is so highly communicable, and because older people are so prone to develop pneumonia along with it, many physicians recommend that their older patients get flu vaccinations every fall. Unfortunately, these shots are not uniformly successful.

Why? Because flu viruses undergo change in their basic structural make-up, and do this constantly and unpredictably. A vaccine that worked for last year's virus might by totally ineffective against this year's; or, a vaccine which was developed to combat one strain might not work at all against another.

Then too, vaccines can sometimes cause side effects. For the most part, these are quite minor — a low fever, perhaps, or a slight redness at the injection site. An important exception must be made for individuals who have allergies to eggs. Flu vaccines are made in egg products and thus may cause reactions in people with such allergies.

In many people, however, the dangers from getting flu and perhaps pneumonia outweigh the possible side effects of a flu shot. Indeed, the Public Health Service's Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices encourages those over 65 to get annual vaccinations.

Should the flu come your way regardless, antibiotics can provide only limited help. Such medicine is relatively powerless because flu is caused by a virus, not by bacteria. The usually recommended treatment is therefore rather simple: take aspirin for the aches and the fever, drink plenty of fluids, and rest at home until your temperature has been normal for at least two days. If the fever persists, call your doctor, since it may mean that a more serious infection is present.

Winners In Town Promotion Named

The Oakland Downtown Merchants' and Businessmen's Association has announced the winners of $100 gift certificates in its first Christmas Promotion drawing held Saturday.

Mrs. Arthur Friend, Crellin, won a certificate from Proudfoot's Pharmacy; Mabel Smouse, Oakland, won from Rudy's; Barbara Friend, Oakland, won from Naylor's; Eleanor Teets, Oakland, won from Kountry Image, and Barbara Beeman, Oakland, won from the First National Bank.

Customers must enter in participating stores each week to be eligible to win in each Saturday's drawing. Winners will be announced live on WMSG Radio each Saturday through December 19. The final drawing, which will include a drawing for the grand prize, will be held December 24.

Rush Receives Chartered Bank Auditor Status

Larry Scott Rush

Courtney R. Tusing, chairman of the Board and president of the First National Bank of Oakland, recently announced the recognition of Larry Scott Rush, cashier of the bank, as a Chartered Bank Auditor by Bank Administration Institute (BAI), the nation's research and educational organization for the banking industry.

Rush was one of 162 internal auditors to qualify for the CBA certification this year. Successful candidates completed four comprehensive examinations to establish expertise in the area of internal auditing, accounting, business law, economics, management and organization. Eligibility requirements also include prescribed banking and internal bank auditing experience, and subscription to a written Code of Ethics.

The program's rigid testing procedures are governed by BAI's Chartered Bank Auditor Board of Regents under the Chairmanship of Robert W. Weber, general auditor of Bankers Trust, New York. Bank Administration Institue programs are administered by a professional staff located at the Institute's national office in Park Ridge, Illinois, in conjunction with volunteer bankers across the country. BAI's member banks represent more than 97 percent of the nation's total banking assets.

Rush was graduated magna cum laude from Frostburg State College with a bachelor of science degree in mathmatics and computer science. He joined the First National staff in 1975 as a management trainee. He was promoted to auditor in September, 1977, assistant vice president in April, 1981, and cashier in June, 1981.

He is married to the former Barbara A. Perando and they have two children, Jason and Mandy. The family lives on Underwood Road near Oakland.

Oakland Student Enters Internship

Linda C. Johnson of Oakland is among 14 students majoring in sociology at Frostburg State College who are currently working as interns with various agencies and organizations, according to Harry J. Bunch, associate professor of sociology and director of the internship program.

Ms. Johnson is assigned to the Garrett County Health Department. Students in the program may earn nine to 15 hours of credit for work days per week.

4-H Club News

The Garrett County 4-H Shepherd's Club met November 9 at the home of John and Verne Leininger.

The meeting was called to order by Kathy Wheeler, president. Pledges were led by Tim Kepple.

The group discussed fundraising ideas and heard a presentation about feeding and caring for sheep by Don Sealing, guest speaker.

The group decided to hold a Christmas party at its next meeting, to be held December 14 at the home of the Leiningers. Mrs. Bogass and Southern High School's FFA chapter will present a demonstration on parliamentary procedure. Anyone interested in joining the club is welcome to attend.

For every ten gallons of fuel oil you burn, you may waste four.

At more than a buck a gallon, who can afford that?

(DEALER INQUIRIES INVITED)

Your old, inefficient oil burner may turn as little as 60% of your expensive fuel oil into useful heat.

But a new INTERburner™ replacement oil burner is highly efficient, because its exclusive, patented Turbo-Reversed Air System burns hotter, cleaner. And puts nearly every drop of oil to work where it can do the most good - heating your home.

Some INTERburner owners report cuts of up to 40% in oil consumption (without "dialing down"). That means, if you used 1000 gallons of fuel oil this heating season, INTERburner could save you up to 400 gallons next season.

An INTERburner runs whisper quiet. It even saves on electrical bills, because its Interrupted Ignition uses only a fraction of the power other burners need.

Since it's an energy-saving product, an INTERburner qualifies for Federal Energy Tax Credits on your income tax.

And every INTERburner is UL-listed and factory-fired for your peace of mind. It's made in U.S.A. and parts are readily available.

You've wasted enough expensive fuel oil. It's time to talk to your local Qualified INTERburner Installer. He's a pro. A graduate of the intensive INTERburner training program.

He'll give you a free energy audit of your present oil heating system. And tell you how much you can save with INTERburner.

Act now! Send the coupon or call our number.

Attorney General Issues Holiday Consumer Alert

The Maryland Attorney General's Office today issued a consumer alert advising Marylanders of the laws governing many of the charities that seek donations, especially during the holiday season.

"There are many worthy causes competing for contributions this time of year," Attorney General Stephen Sachs said. "Donors have a right to expect that the charity that approaches them is a legitimate one and that most of the hard-earned money they give will be used to help the needy or serve the cause, not pay for slick promotions and postage."

Most charitable groups are required by state law to register with the Maryland Secretary of State, Sachs said. Maryland law also prohibits charities from spending more than 25 percent of their revenues for fund-raising expenses unless given special permission to do so by the Secretary of State, he added.

Marylanders should beware of charities that try to pressure them into making contributions quickly without verifying the fundraiser's background. Most charities are happy to receive money at any time, Sachs observed.

There are a number of important points Marylanders should consider and investigate when asked to contribute to a charity, Sachs advised. Among the questions they should ask are:

•Is the charity registered with the Maryland Secretary of State, and what percentage of the donations goes to cover fund-raising costs?

•Does the Internal Revenue Service recognize the charity as one for which donations are tax deductible? Check with the local or regional IRS office to find out and ask for the charity's tax exempt number.

•Do the local police know the charity is soliciting locally and does a door-to-door solicitor for the charity have a proper identification card?

•Does the charity have a nationally known name or a sound-alike one? The American Cancer Society is a valid, national charity; the Cancer Society of America may not be. The Maryland Secretary of State would know if it's a valid charity or a bogus one.

•Even if the charity is registered with the Maryland Secretary of State, it is illegal for a solicitor to imply that the state endorses or approves of a request for donations to a registered charity. Report any such suggestions to the Secretary of State.

•Don't give cash or write a check payable to the person seeking charitable contributions. Make all checks payable to the charity and ask for a receipt for tax purposes. The charity could be valid but the solicitor could be pocketing some of the contributions.

•Beware of telephone calls requesting contributions or fund-raisers on the sidewalks unless you know the charity is a valid one.

•If you receive unordered pens, ties, address labels or other small items along with a request for a contribution in return, you are under no obligation to make a donation, pay for the the item or return it. Such fund-raising efforts are very expensive, costing anywhere from 80 percent to 90 percent of the charity's revenues to cover. You want to investigate such charities thoroughly before contributing.

In order to check on the validity of a charity or obtain information concerning charities, persons may contact the Secretary of State, Charitable Organizations Office, State House, Annapolis, 21404, phone (301) 269-3421.

ASK ME ABOUT TV

By Val Carew

SPEAKING OUT — I would like to speak to William Katt, who plays "The Greatest American Hero." Would you please let me write to the one who plays Pam Davidson and the one who plays Bill (I don't know his last name)? Also, can you send me a tape of the theme song? — Your new friend David Corbin, Lewiston, Maine

Rather than speak to William Katt, why not write to him and Connie Sellecca (who plays Pam) and Robert Culp (who plays Bill Maxwell) in care of the show at Paramount Studios, 5451 Marathon St., Hollywood, CA 90038. As for the theme song, composer Mike Post has a recording on the market. You should be able to get it at your local record store.

FAT IS FUN — I love the Fat Albert cartoons and the fatherly image of Bill Cosby. Where can I write him? — L.T., Fort Carson, Colo.

You can write to him in care of Jemmin Inc., 1900 Avenue of the Stars, Suite 1900, Los Angeles, CA 90067.

Kris Kristofferson

LOVES KRIS — I recently saw Kris Kristofferson on television. I love that man. I am wondering where he is from and how old he is. Also is there an address where I can write him? — Sandra Frobel, Orlando, Fla.

Kris was born in Brownsville, Texas, in 1936. Write to him in care of Block-Kewlet Management, 11 Bailey Ave., Ridgefield, CT 06877.

(Do you have a question about TV? Write Val Carew at 200 Park Avenue, Room 602, New York, NY 10166.)

IN FOCUS

Ron Howard directs and produces movie

Ron Howard of "Happy Days" fame is on TV again, but this time he's not acting.

Howard directed "Through the Magic Pyramid," a lighthearted fantasy-adventure to air two consecutive Sundays, Dec. 6 and 13, on NBC. The script for the program was co-authored by his father, Rance Howard, who also served as co-producer with Herbert J. Wright. The younger Howard was executive producer.

The story concerns an 11-year-old boy who returns to ancient Egypt where he uses some 20th-century tricks to help young Prince Tut ascend to the throne of the Pharaoh.

Vic ("Alice") Tayback, Jo Anne Worley, Hans Conried, Chris Barnes and Eric Greene star.

In part one, a small toy pyramid is given to young Bobby Tuttle as a birthday present — and it brings more excitement than he could ever imagine.

Magically, Bobby is transported to ancient Egypt, far removed from his native Oregon. And because he is still wearing his school's football uniform and his hair is blond, the Egyptians are sure he is a messenger from the gods.

Bobby soon befriends young Prince Tut, who is a pawn in a deadly game involving palace intrigue and warring religious factions.

Jo Anne Worley

In part two, the young prince is captured by the evil Gen. Horembeb, who plans to wed the sinister Moontdeme and rule the empire. With the help of some modern trickery, Bobby finally tracks down the kidnapped Tut and, in a race against time, they rush to stop Horembeb from crowning himself Pharaoh.

In the finale, a full-scale battle unfolds with Egyptian chariots, warriors and archers under the command of the heroic Gen. Ay, fighting the forces of Horembeb.

Anne Murray is home for the holidays on special

By Peter Meade

Going home to family and friends is an important part of the holiday season and it is the theme of "Anne Murray's First Christmas Special," Wednesday, Dec. 9 on CBS.

Miss Murray will team with special guest star Kris Kristofferson on "Could I have this dance?" Holiday favorites from her recent "Christmas Wishes" album will be featured along with many of her past hits.

Anne Murray has always been a family-first person. The special, filmed entirely on location in the Canadian maritime province, features a reunion of the Murray clan — including her five brothers — at the Keltic Lodge on Prince Edward Island.

Growing up in a small Canadian coal-mining town, Miss Murray always competed with her brothers until she found the one thing she could do better than they — singing.

"Songbird," her first hit, flew to the top of the charts over a decade ago. While occupying "one hit wonder" status, Miss Murray met singer Kenny Loggins as she prepared to do the zillionth "medley of my hit."

Loggins wrote the Grammy-winning "A Love Song" and "Danny's Song," which became her "middle career" hits. Miss Murray laughs when she says, "People listen to those songs now and say, 'That was you?' "

In her 1971 debut in Las Vegas she shocked audiences by appearing barefoot and in hot pants, performing with Glen Campbell. "When I first got into the business, I decided I'd try anything. I didn't think it made any difference what you looked like as long as you could sing."

Later she realized dressing up made her carry herself differently and be better received by the audience. "I enjoy Vegas now. It feels good to dress up and go out on stage."

The cover of her "Where do you dream?" album is uncharacteristically provocative. It features the singer dressed both as an angel and a devil. "There's a side of me that wants to be a tart," she says. "On the other side is 'the image.' "

The image. Even when "You needed me" won her a 1978 Grammy as best female pop vocalist, people still belabored her wholesome image. She believes that her singing isn't all that different from Linda Ronstadt, but the image is the difference in popularity.

Also, unlike many other singers, she schedules only 100 dates a year, which includes five weeks in Vegas.

Then it's back home to her family in Toronto. "It's a convenient get-away," Miss Murray explains. "It's far enough away from the mainstream to turn off."

Husband Bill Langstroth has turned his hobby — photography — into a career and is no longer directly involved in his wife's career. When Anne is on the road, he is home with their children, William 5, and Dawn, 2.

"Show business is a job. It is no better or worse than any other job. But I can't take it seriously as a be-all end-all. I have to make a living doing something I enjoy. But I can't lose sight of what is important, which is my family."

TV TATTLE

'Grambling' award

"Grambling's White Tiger," the NBC drama which was telecast Oct. 4, and Harry Belafonte, one of the film's stars, will receive awards from the Southern California Motion Picture Council on Dec. 9.

The producers of the film will receive the Golden Halo award for outstanding merit in family entertainment. The award is granted to television and motion picture productions that are uplifting and informative as well as entertaining. Belafonte will receive the Bronze Halo award, a personal honor granted for outstanding achievement.

Dickens' readings

Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" was as much a hit with its first publication at Christmas in 1848 as it is now.

An animated version of "A Christmas Carol" will be rebroadcast on the "Famous Classic Tales" series of specials, Sunday, Dec. 6 on CBS.

When Dickens first agreed to do public readings of his work he chose "A Christmas Carol" as his first selection. The hall was packed that night (Dec. 27, 1854) with 2,000 people who greeted the author's performance with tumultuous applause.

The public loved the readings. In 1865, when Dickens brought his readings to the United States, he opened in Boston with "A Christmas Carol." The night before the box office opened, a line formed that stretched half a mile by morning. The tickets cost $2 each but scalpers hawked them for as much as $26 each to the eager public. The same phenomenon greeted him in New York. Dickens also performed in Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington.

Young monster

Gene Wilder, Peter Boyle, Marty Feldman, Madeline Kahn and Cloris Leachman star in "Young Frankenstein," the Mel Brooks comedy which will have its network television premiere on NBC Sunday Dec. 6. Teri Garr and Gene Hackman also star in the 1974 20th Century-Fox release.

Wilder stars as Frederick Frankenstein, great grandson of Beaufort Frankenstein and heir to the family estate in Transylvania. A noted brain surgeon living in Baltimore, Frederick is anxious to restore dignity to the family name.

But when he arrives in Transylvania he discovers notes his grandfather left detailing his experiments in creating monsters and, though he is initially repelled by the discovery, he resolves to duplicate his grandfather's experiments.

Glenda Jackson

Jackson's new role

Oscar- and Emmy-winner Glenda Jackson stars in "The Patricia Neal Story," the dramatization of the actress' real-life battle with a near fatal stroke. Dirk Bogarde co-stars as Miss Neal's husband, the writer Roald Dahl. The special will be broadcast Tuesday, Dec. 8 on CBS.

Miss Jackson did not want to meet Miss Neal before doing the film, but did visit stroke victims at UCLA Medical Center, where Miss Neal was first treated, to get an idea of handicapped speech and movement.

But, she says of the story: "The really gripping story is her relationship with her husband, who literally forced her to live. She was so helpless, she wanted to die. But he loved her too much to let her. And he nagged her into doing things for herself that she didn't think she could. It's a truly wonderful, classic love story."

CHARLIE BROWN returns with the whole Peanuts gang as he searches for the true meaning of Christmas in the award-winning "A Charlie Brown Christmas," to be rebroadcast Thursday, Dec. 10 on CBS.

SOAP OPERA WEEK

'Another World' fan gets to act on show

By Nancy M. Reichardt

NEW YORK — When "Another World" fan Bonnie Comley entered an essay contest sponsored by Boston's WBZ-TV, she never imagined she'd actually win the prize — a chance to appear on her favorite soap. But win is exactly what Bonnie did.

Picked from 64 semi-finalists by Taro Meyer (Melissa Needham), Christopher Rich (Sandy Alexander) and casting director Pat McCorkle, Bonnie was cast as a travel agent — for a day — and coached through her scene by Ray Liotta (ex-Joey Perrini) and "AW" director Mike Firmar.

Taro Meyer

Pleased with her efforts and flattered by the praise she received from the stars of "AW," Bonnie said, "I was really taken in by how they made me up and how I came across on the camera, and was awed by the technical aspects — the cameras, the scenery, the lights. it was fun and I wished I could have stayed longer."

Meanwhile, contract newcomers added to the cast of "AW" include Ed Power as Harry Shea, Chris Marcantel as Peter Shea, Anne Rose Brooks as Diana Frame, and Christian Maurice as Cory McGowan. Exiting were Ray Liotta and Bradley Bliss as Joey and Kit Perrini, and Paul Gentry as Philip Lyons.

Nigel Reed has been cast on "Guiding Light" to portray Tim Werner, the role vacated by Chris Marcantel, who has joined "AW" as mentioned above. Nigel was one of several actors to portray Wally McFadden on "All My Children."

Joining "Edge of Night" as Miles and Nicole Cavanaugh's babysitter/maid is Pat Stanley, whose comedic talents are a welcome respite from the usual soap seriousness. Also new to "EON," but not to daytime TV (he portrayed Alan Ross on "The Doctors") is Richard Borg as chauffeur Spencer Varney.

Two of the leading men on "Guiding Light" have record albums out as we've mentioned in this column before, but now we have the addresses where you can write for further information:

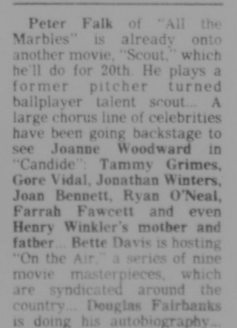
For information on Tom Nielsen's album, write to Tom c/o "Guiding Light," CBS-TV, 51 West 52 St., New York, NY 10019. Tom's album is titled "Pretty Boy Floyd" after his soap character. "Shipp on the Ocean," recorded by John Wesley Shipp (Kelly Nelson), can be purchased for $10 by writing to Jamie Records, 919 No. Broad St., Philadelphia, PA 19123.

(Have a question about soap operas? Write Nancy Reichardt at 200 Park Avenue, Room 602, New York, NY 10166.)

Goodman in D.C.; Simon's rewrite

By Cindy Adams

NEW YORK — Benny Goodman blew his clarinet at The White House in front of the president of the United States, the king of Jordan and Frank Sinatra... Neil Simon is rewriting "Promises, Promises" for his wife, Marsha Mason, for Broadway... Lillian Gish trotted up the aisle halfway thorugh the first act of Broadway's "Ned and Jack." She was worried about her "date" who hadn't showed. The date was Helen Hayes, whose driver had gotten lost and who arrived after the curtain was up... Karen Valentine plays "Muggable Mary," the famous woman decoy cop in the CBS movie, "Muggable Mary," which is filming in New York.



Brenda Vaccaro

Brenda Vaccaro: "I was a fat kid because my mom was a good cook. All those Sicilian omelettes and peppers in olive oil and the lentils and spaghetti. Man, it's hard for me to stay on a diet even today."

Peter Falk

Peter Falk of "All the Marbles" is already onto another movie, "Scout," which he'll do for 20th. He plays a former pitcher turned ballplayer talent scout... A large chorus line of celebrities have been going backstage to see Joanne Woodward in "Candide": Tammy Grimes, Gore Vidal, Jonathan Winters, Joan Bennett, Ryan O'Neal, Farrah Fawcett and even Henry Winkler's mother and fatber... Bette Davis is hosting "On the Air," a series of nine movie masterpieces, which are syndicated around the country... Douglas Fairbanks is doing his autobiography... Cindy Baker, whose eyes are on politics in Tennessee, is the daughter of Sen. Howard Baker. When he asked her what he could do to help she replied, "You can stay out of my district."

STARVIEW

Searching beyond a character's reputation

By Ruth Thompson

Susan Flannery recently dispelled any notion that there were hidden virtues in the character she played on "Dallas" — the manipulative counselor to J.R. Ewing she introduced last season.

"She's a match for J.R.; just as mean," said the cool, blonde Susan. "But she was fun to play — though I don't know how she might fit into the future of the series."

Jean Marsh, the co-creator of the classic "Upstairs, Downstairs" series, enjoyed playing her Emmy-winning, starring role as the maid Rose. But she sounded surprised to find we all loved dear hard-working Rose.

"I never intended her to be all that nice — and if you think it over, she wasn't," Ms. Marsh once told us. "But, of course, she was fun to play."

Somebody else in "Upstairs, Downstairs" who came across as a lovely heroine, though her strong will often got her into scrapes, was the aristocratic Georgina, the stepniece-in-law — and ward — of Lord Bellamy.

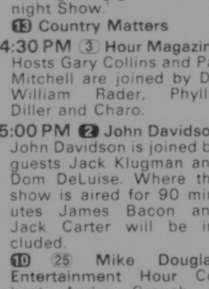
Lesley-Anne Down, due to be seen in February in the new Hallmark production of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" (with Anthony Hopkins as Quasimodo) on CBS, looks back on Georgina with less sympathy than most of us. She recalls that many people got hurt, and a few got killed (or killed themselves), because Georgina was so self-centered.

Ms. Down's cold shoulder to Georgina is in contrast to the fierce defense that Loretta Swit has undertaken on behalf of her head-nurse Maj. Houlihan role in the "M*A*S*H" series.

Ms. Swit knows the major has no sense of humor, but "is very good at her job." And yes, the major likes men, "but usually the wrong ones." Most of all says the actress, the era is long past when the major could be snickered at as "Hot Lips" Houlihan. And Loretta Swit herself always charitably refers to the major as Margaret.

Margaret isn't the only current television nurse with a sexy image being defended these days.

Asked recently if there were any changes ahead for her as Ripples in "Trapper John" (CBS), lovely young Chris Norris froze. Yes, she knows that the producers have been freeing up the styling of her character (hair flowing wild on occasion, things like that) but she is fighting to have that Ripples nickname phased out.



Chris Norris

"I didn't want her to be called that in the first place. No matter how friendly the original intention, there are sexual connotations that are a put-down pegging her into a category. I think of her as Gloria."

TUESDAY

Glenda Jackson portrays Patricia Neal struggling to recover from a massive stroke in "The Patricia Neal Story," to air Tuesday, Dec. 8 on CBS.

Assessment Answers & Tax Talk

THIRD-YEAR NOTICE OF FIRST TRIENNIAL DUE SOON

by James Burley

New assessment notices covering the third and final year of the first triennial assessment cycle are due to be mailed to property owners beginning December 7. The triennial method of assessments, adopted in 1979, replaced the earlier system of annual reassessments. The first assessment notices reflecting this change were issued December, 1979, for the ensuing 1980/81 property tax year.

Real property is now physically revalued only once in a three-year period, and the owner receives but one new assessment notice which lasts throughout the three years. Any increase in the valuation is phased in, in equal amounts, over the subsequent three years. As an example, if the increase is $9,000, a third — $3,000 — is added each year rather than the full $9,000 at once. This is all shown on the notice of assessment along with other information, including the proposed assessments for the three forthcoming taxable years.

The counties, including the City of Baltimore, are divided into three sections. One section is revalued each year so that by the completion of a three-year cycle, the local subdivision has been entirely revalued. Then the cycle repeats itself. Thus, any owner who has not received a notice of assessment in the past two years will definitely get one this year.

The shift to triennial assessments simultaneously ushered in another change called the growth factor. It replaced the former inflation allowances. Previously, the assessment on real property represented the current full cash value — or market value — less an allowance for inflation at either 55% for owner-occupied dwellings or 50% for all other classes of real property. Under the system now in effect, the full cash value of property is multiplied by the growth factor. The product of this computation is the assessment.

By action of a formula built into the law, if inflation causes the value of property to go above 6% statewide, the growth factor automatically declines with the result being that the aggregate increase in value above 6% is offset for the purpose of the tax assessment.

The growth factor remained at 46.8% during the first and second years of the triennial assessment cycle due to the fact that the statewide increase was less than 6%. As the statewide value of property increased by more than 6% last year — actually about 8.8% — the growth factor appropriately declined from the previous 46.8% (.468252) to 45.6% (.456343). Translated, this means that the assessment will drop from 47% to 45½% of the full cash value of a property.

This rate, or growth factor as it is called, applies to all real property except for land assessed in the category of agricultural use, which is still at the rate of 50%. The growth factor rate will also apply to those properties reassessed in the first two years of the cycle.

Other things being equal, the net influence of the lower growth factor rate on the property tax bill to be issued next July for the year 1982/83, will be a reduction of about 2½%.

Byron Aide To Visit Oakland

Margaret Barkman of Rep. Beverly B. Byron's (D-Md.) staff will meet with Oakland residents Monday, December 7, at 11 a.m. when she visits the Oakland Senior Citizens' Center.

The Senior Citizens' Center is located at 104 East Center St. Transportation can be provided by calling 334-3399.

Almanac

Today is Wednesday, December 2, the 336th day of 1981 with 29 to follow.

The Moon is moving toward its first quarter.

The morning stars are Mercury, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening star is Venus.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Sagittarius.

American statesman Frank Kellog was born December 2nd, 1856.

On this date in history:

In 1859, John Brown was hanged for his raid on Harper's Ferry. On the way to the gallows, he said of the Virginia countryside, "This is a beautiful country!"

In 1927, the Model-A Ford was introduced as the successor to the famous Model-T and was available for the first time in a variety of colors. The roadster sold for 395 dollars.

In 1942, the "Atomic Age" was born. A group of scientists demonstrated a self-sustaining nuclear chain reaction at a makeshift laboratory below the University of Chicago football stadium.

In 1961, Cuban Premier Fidel Castro revealed himself to be a communist and said he had formed a single political party with himself as its head. He admitted he had concealed his true political philosophy until he had solidified his hold on Cuba.

A thought for the day:

American automobile pioneer Henry Ford said: "History is more or less bunk."

In 1893, New Zealand became the first country to extend the right to vote to women.

Attorney General's Docket

by Stephen H. Sachs
Attorney General of Maryland

Even if you are a careful, cautious consumer, it is possible to find yourself flooded with bills and drowning in debt. There might have been an unforeseen emergency, a costly, unanticipated medical expense, an unexpected layoff.

Sometimes the bills just pile up and you can't see how you'll manage to pay them.

Each year, thousands of Marylanders and millions of their fellow Americans find themselves up against a wall, financially. There are several ways of handling these problems, and the way you choose to deal with them can affect not only your current life style, but your future credit standing for years to come.

Once you realize you're not going to be able to pay your bills when they are due, immediately get in touch with your creditors. You might be able to arrange a special payment plan that could involve making smaller payments or skipping payments for a month. Some creditors may agree to accept less money than they're entitled to receive. If your creditors consent to new repayment terms, be sure to get the agreement in writing.

If it looks like your financial difficulties will stretch over a longer period of time, and you begin receiving unpleasant letters from your creditors or nasty telephone calls, you may choose to seek the aid of a branch of Consumer Credit Counseling Services, which is a non-profit agency, or you could hire a private financial counselor. You might even be compelled to consider filing for bankruptcy. But remember that bankruptcy is an extremely serious matter which can affect your credit record for many years. Seek professional advice to help you decide which is the proper route for you.

The programs offered by Consumer Credit Counseling Services (CCCS) involve consumer credit education, the use of money management techniques and debt consolidation or repayment plans. CCCS has offices in Baltimore, Bel Air, Laurel, Frederick, Hagerstown and Salisbury, as well as over 200 other communities across the country. A CCCS credit counselor helps you prepare a budget and set up a payment program that satisfies your creditors. This service is free in Maryland, but there is a $2.00 monthly service charge if CCCS takes over the payment of your bills with money you supply it.

Labor unions, credit unions, family service centers and other organizations also offer credit counseling services.

Another alternative would involve hiring a commercial financial counselor who works with you much in the same way as a CCCS counselor, but charges a fee for the service, usually adding it on to your monthly repayment schedule. Be sure you know how much the service costs before committing yourself to it.

I cannot over-emphasize the importance of obtaining professional advice when you're faced with a serious financial crisis. Credit unions, banks, private attorneys or Legal Aid lawyers can provide such advice. Don't make your financial woes worse by ignoring them or trying to solve them without thoroughly considering all of the options available to you.

The American Bar Association has prepared a booklet called Your Guide to Consumer Credit and Bankruptcy, which you can obtain by sending $1.00 to the ABA billing department, 1155 East 60th Street, Chicago, Illinois, 60653. It gives you more information on the bankruptcy process, and also explains how to apply for credit, correct billing errors and handle bill collectors.

Christmas Mail Tips Offered

With the Christmas mailing season just ahead, Baltimore Sectional Center Manager/Postmaster Warren M. Bloomberg is offering tips for customers to assure that their cards and packages arrive on time and in good shape.

In addition to shopping and mailing early, customers are urged to properly address cards and packages with the individual's name, street number and name (or post office box number), and the city, state and ZIP Code.

"It is also a good idea to put a slip of paper with the recipient's name and address and your return address inside parcels. Be sure the information on the outside of the parcel includes your return address and ZIP Code," Bloomberg said.

Customers are reminded to check the size of their envelopes before mailing Christmas and other holiday cards. Letter size standards require that envelopes be at least three and a half inches high and five inches long to be accepted for mailing.

The Postal Service is also asking customers to put extra care into preparing parcel post and other packages for mailing. Parcels will arrive at their intended destination in good shape if mailers will follow a few suggestions:

CUSHION: Make sure contents are well-cushioned and there is no empty space in the box. Use crumpled newspaper around the item. Foam shells or air-pocket padding also make good cushioning materials.

DON'T OVERWRAP: Just use the carton. Brown paper and twine cord are not necessary. Paper can rip, and twine can become entangled with processing equipment.

SEAL PROPERLY: Close the parcel with one of the three recommended types of tape: pressure sensitive, nylon-reinforced kraft paper or glass-reinforced pressure sensitive.

AVOID SMUDGES: Use smudge-proof ink in addressing packages.

LOCATE ADDRESS PROPERLY: Put the recipient's address in the lower right portion of the container. Put the return address in the upper left-hand corner. Remove all other lables from the box.

USE ZIP CODES: Be sure to include the ZIP Code in both the recipient's address and in the return address.

TIME IT RIGHT: Mail early in the month and early in the day. This will help avoid the rush.

USE THE RIGHT SERVICE: Irreplaceable items, cash and other valuables should be sent by registered mail.

IF YOU RUN OUT OF TIME: Priority Mail affords First-Class handling for packages weighing more than 12 ounces and up to 70 pounds. Priority Mail can be sent from any post office, station or branch or through rural carriers to any address in the U.S. Priority can even be used for foreign mailings.

The service is available with insurance, return receipt, C.O.D., certificates of mailing and special delivery. Customers interested in Priority Mail should contact the post office for details.

Attention Oakland Taxpayers:
There have been a few last minute assessment changes. Please compare the assessment amount of your Town Real Estate Tax bill with your County Real Estate Tax bill. If these assessment figures differ, please contact City Hall (334-2691) before remitting your Town Real Estate Tax.

With the new I.R.A. accounts
EVERY WAGE EARNER CAN SAVE TAX DOLLARS
while you save for retirement . . .

HERE'S HOW!

Effective Jan. 1, 1982 there will be important changes in I.R.A.'s

1. Now every wage earner under the age of 70—even those already in a pension plan—can have his own I.R.A.
2. The annual TAX EXEMPT DEPOSIT is increased from $1,500 to $2,000. The ceiling goes to $2,250 if a non-working spouse is included.
3. A working couple may deduct up to $4,000 a year from their taxable income to contribute to an I.R.A.
4. All contributions to an I.R.A. can be deducted from earned income for tax purposes, up to the maximum legal amounts. Compounded interest earned on an I.R.A. is also tax-deferred.
5. With a Garrett National I.R.A. account you not only save on taxes, but at the same time, build for a comfortable, independent retirement.
6. I.R.A.'s from Garrett National Bank are as easy to open as a savings account.

Stop in today and get ALL the facts about a GNB tax-sheltered I.R.A.

Conversations on Carpeting

Brought to you by Carolyn & Butch Helbig
Who say
"A Floor without a Rug is like a Kiss without a Hug."

FACTS ABOUT COLOR

An awareness of color is important to anyone who will be selecting carpeting and furnishings. Here are some facts which may help to make you more "color conscious."

A color wheel can be a great help when selecting a color scheme. It's like a piece of the rainbow and it shows at a glance the many possible color combinations. Half of the color wheel's colors are warm and half are cool. We'll talk in the next column about how you can make your room seem larger or smaller simply by choosing between warm or cool colors.

Have you heard of color values? The lightness or darkness of any color is its value. The lighter values are called tints and differ from the pure color by the amount of white that has been added. The darker values are called shades. Various amounts of black are added to these. The intensity of a color is its brightness or dullness — how greyed it appears. Get the most from your decorating and create more interesting rooms by learning to combine colors of different values and intensities.

Next time we'll try to put color knowledge to work as we discuss choosing the colors for your carpeting and furnishings. In the meantime, stop in and see our marvelous carpet selection.

Each week we will tell you more about carpeting for your home. Watch for these columns.

States Unite In Support Of Non-Resident Tuition

In an unprecedented show of unity, all 49 sister states have joined in supporting Maryland's position in a U.S. Supreme Court case over whether alien students attending public universities and colleges here must pay non-resident tuition fees.

Maryland Attorney General Stephen H. Sachs announced last week that every state in the Union now has signed a 17-page "friend of the court" brief filed in the Supreme Court, asking that it reverse a lower court decision striking down the University of Maryland's policy of charging non-resident aliens the higher tuition paid by out-of-state students.

"We have checked with court officials and legal historians and none can recall another Supreme Court case in which every one of the 50 states has united behind a single position in a single brief," Sachs said.

In May, 1980, the U.S. District Court in Baltimore ruled in favor of two South American students and one English student who had filed suit in 1975 seeking to overturn the University of Maryland's policy of charging them out-of-state tuition fees, even though their fathers, employees of the World Bank and the International Development Bank in Washington, had homes in Maryland.

The U.S. Court of Appeals in Richmond upheld the lower court decision, which could affect roughly 500 foreign students in Maryland colleges and universities who now are being charged about $1,000 a year more in tuition, as are all non-resident students, Sachs said.

"The parents of these students, who have their homes in Maryland, do not pay federal or state income taxes on their salaries and thus — unlike Maryland residents — don't contribute their share to the upkeep of these educational institutions," Sachs said.

According to court records, both the World Bank and the International Development Bank, which provide low-interest loans to underdeveloped countries, are financing the students' suit, Sachs said.

The case, titled Toll v. Moreno, is scheduled to be heard by the Supreme Court in January. Maryland Assistant Attorney General Robert Zarnoch will argue on behalf of all the states.

In their "friend of the court" brief, the other states contend, if the lower courts' ruling should stand, "it will also have a deleterious effect on the rationally-based tuition policies of many public colleges and universities. In striking down the University of Maryland's policy of excluding non-immigrant aliens from in-state benefits, the court of appeals has not only invalidated a line drawn by most public colleges and universities in the United States, but it has also called into question the very rationale for the in-state/out-of-state distinction . . . " applied to tuition fees throughout the country.

In addition to the participation of all the States, various national education associations also have filed a separate brief endorsing Maryland's position, Sachs said. These include The American Council on Education, The National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges. The American Association of State Colleges and Universities and The American Association of Community and Junior Colleges.

Gambling At Nonprofit Clubs May Be Allowed

HAGERSTOWN, Md. (UPI) —A bill to allow gambling at nonprofit clubs in 15 counties has a better than even chance of passing the legislature next year, a sponsor of the measure said recently.

State Sen. Victor Cushwa, (Dem. Washington County), backed a related bill in the 1981 General Assembly that would have allowed gambling in both private and public clubs, but that measure died.

He said the chances of the 1982 version passing are much better because it will be limited to non-profit organizations.

"I certainly think we have a realistic chance this time because all the veterans organizations and similar clubs really depend on it," he said.

Under the new measure sponsored by Cushwa and Sen. Edward Thomas, (Rep. Washington), non-profit groups would be allowed to stage daily games that would include wheels of fortune, chance books, bingo and a variety of a lottery known as "Tip Jars" in which numbers are drawn from a jar.

"The measure explicitly says the club as a whole would be able to make money from the game, so long as all individuals or group of individuals working for the CL make nothing," Cushwa said.

The proposal would actually be an amendment to a 1975 law that permits limited gaming at non-profit clubs in 15 counties, but is vague about the types of games or how often they can be conducted.

Nine non-profit clubs in Washington County, including two American Legion Posts, were convicted earler this year of illegal gambling because of the "Tip Jar" games they were staging.

The clubs will appeal Dec. 16 before the Maryland Court of Special Appeals.

The appeal is being watched closely because of the 14 other counties that could be affected.

They are Allegany, Anne Arundel, Calvert, Caroline, Charles, Dorchester, Frederick, Garrett, Kent, Prince George's, Queen Anne's, St. Mary's, Somerset and Talbot.

"I expect support from those counties," said Cushwa. "I think they can foresee they may get in the same sort of mess. I also have a feeling that the veterans organizations and fire companies and other non-profit organizations will be behind us."

The lame can leap and deaf can hear. The gospel of Christ can come through many senses. So the blind can see Christ, and the lame can leap for joy.

The blind see, the lame walk, the deaf hear. Matt. 11:5

Nurse Practitioners Open Health Center

The Primary Health Care Center, Inc., Western Maryland's first health service center without the presence of a physician, was opened September 14 by two nurse practitioners in Frostburg. The center is located at 93 East Main Street, Frostburg, and is staffed by Marsha McKenzie, near Grantsville, and Pat Stevens, Frostburg, nurse practitioners, both 1979 graduates of the University of Maryland nurse practitioner primary care program.

These registered nurses, previously in supervisory positions with Frostburg Community Hospital, say nurse practitioners are professionals who opted for additional responsibilities of patient care and additional training in a formal education program beyond basic nursing. They perform physical examinations, do some lab tests, make diagnoses and prescribe medications according to protocols of state law.

The partnership will work primarily with adults, providing pre-employment physicals, doing cultures, pap smears, and treating illnesses. Conforming to the rules and regulations provided by a board comprised of nurses and physicians, they have entered into an agreement with a licensed physician who will accept referrals, participate when needed in diagnoses and therapeutic or corrective measures, document accountability and be available for consultation.

The United States bought the Virgin Islands from Denmark in 1917. The price tag: $25 million.

Eastern Garrett

Soup Sale Planned

The Ladies Auxiliary will have a homemade soup and bake sale this Saturday, December 5, at the Community Building, located at the Eastern Garrett Fire Department. Persons may go in to eat lunch also. They are asked to bring their own container for carry outs. The sale starts at noon and will continue until sold out. The fire department is located in Finzel.

Flea Market & Bazaar

There will be a Flea Market and Bazaar Sunday, December 6, from 12 to 5 p.m. at the Community Building.

Items to be offered include Christmas decorations, crafts, jewelry, toys, children and adult clothing, baked goods, paperbacks, new novels, ceramics, small house items, drapes and other miscellaneous articles. Refreshments will be available. The proceeds will go to the building fund for the fire department.

Library News

A new shipment of children's books has arrived at the Library. They consist of easy books and fiction and nonfiction in the juvenile selections.

A craft class is being planned for after the first of the year, for Saturdays from 11:00 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. More details will be given later.

Auxiliary To Meet

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Eastern Garrett Fire Department will meet Monday, December 14, at the Community Building. Reports will be given on the banquets planned for December. A covered dish buffet will be held following the meeting and the exchanging of jingle gifts.

Hughes Targets $2.5 Million For Disabled

Governor Harry Hughes announced last week that he will include $2.5 million in his FY '83 budget to enhance community programs for the mentally ill, mentally retarded and those persons considered developmentally disabled in Maryland.

Of the $2.5 million, $700,000 will be used to enhance and increase the capacity of Maryland's psycho-social rehabilitation programs for the mentally ill, allowing about 50 patients now in mental health institutions to be released into the community. The funds will be channeled through the Mental Hygiene Administration's regional offices.

The program includes funding for the closing of the Henryton Center for the mentally retarded, located on the Howard-Carroll County border. The governor called this a "dramatic step" toward reducing the population of such institutions and returning the mentally retarded to a community setting. Hughes added that, "There will be adequate community programs for the present residents of Henryton and its present force of employees will be offered other comparable opportunities in State service."

The plan also includes $1.1 million to continue to remove from institutions those persons who have a primary diagnosis of mental retardation (the Sachs population) and place them appropriately. The funding is expected to provide services to people now in the community in addition to those mandated for the Sachs population.

Governor Hughes said this program "demonstrates the support of this administration for consistent progress in community based care."

Dramatic Rise In Drunk Driving Arrests Continues During October

A total of 9,841 drunk drivers were arrested by troopers during October, according to a release from the Maryland State Police, which is a 145% increase when compared to the same month last year.

Drunk driving continues to be one of the most serious traffic safety problems in Maryland and the nation, the release stated. Federal traffic safety officials estimate that nearly 26,000 deaths and 750,000 serious injuries are caused by drunk drivers each year.

Troopers have been using a recently developed driving while intoxicated guide which contain 20 detection cues to better identify drunk drivers. This guide was developed by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

On May 1, Governor Harry Hughes and State Police Superintendent Thomas S. Smith announced the most comprehensive effort ever undertaken in Maryland to identify and remove drunk drivers from the highway.

In studies conducted under the direction of the State Medical Examiner, of the fatal accident victims tested last year, 62% of the drivers had a positive blood alcohol content.

According to Lt. Col. Johnny G. Lough, chief of the State Police Field Operations Bureau, "Our troopers are doing an outstanding job. They are going to continue to make life uncomfortable for those individuals who insist on mixing alcohol and driving."

State Police regional totals for October, 1981 DWI arrests were: 268, Washington Metro Troop (Prince George's and Montgomery counties); 254, Baltimore Metro Troop (Anne Arundel and Baltimore counties); 216, Eastern Troop (Eastern Shore); 201, Central Troop (Howard, Frederick and Carroll counties); 123, Southern Troop (St. Mary's, Charles and Calvert counties); 115, Northeast Troop (Harford and Cecil counties); and 89, Western Troop (Washington, Allegany and Garrett counties).

Everything for Merry Gifting is now at Proudfoot's

It's beginning to look like Christmas
When you step inside our store.
The shelves are being re-stocked
From the ceiling to the floor.

There's Hallmark "when you care enough,"
And Russell Stover, too,
Max Factor, Coty, Lanvin,
To mention just a few.

You can't go wrong with Fentonware
Or West Virginia glass,
If you want gifts of distinction
That you know will last and last.

There is Old Spice, Mennen, Yardley,
Buxton wallets, Shaeffer pens,
Power tools, electric razors . . .
Our selection never ends.

The toy shelves are bulging, too.
We have a large supply
Of gifts for "kids" of every age,
To brighten any eye.

This is just a mere suggestion
Of the gifts we have in store.
Come in and browse around and see
All these and many, many more.

We're sure that it's no great surprise
That all of this should be
In the warm and friendly atmosphere

Judge Jones Hears Various Charges

Garrett County District Court cases heard Monday include charges of destruction of property, assault, theft, and public drunkenness.

A domestic dispute between a Deer Park family and a Mt. Lake Park family resulted in counter suites against various members for destruction of property and motor vehicle violations.

Albert Cecil DeWitt, Jr., Mt. Lake Park, was charged by Carmelita Herman with causing a disturbance on August 24 in the driveway of her home, spinning the tires on his vehicle as he left, and spraying the side of her mobile home with loose gravel and rocks.

Judge Lewis R. Jones found DeWitt guilty, and ordered probation before judgment of 12 months, without supervision.

William Herman, also of Deer Park, was charged by DeWitt with destruction of property when he threw rocks at the complainant's car in an apparent attempt to drive him from the Herman property.

Herman was also found guilty, and placed on 12 month unsupervised probation before judgment.

Court costs were assigned to each defendant. The motor vehicle charges were dismissed.

In other court action, John Jason Thomas, 21, Mt. Lake Park, was sentenced following his trial concerning an incident of destruction of property earlier this year at the Garrett County Memorial Post 10077, VFW, Deer Park.

Police say Thomas was intoxicated when he entered a pickup truck belonging to Elmer A. Baker and drove through the front wall of the VFW building, causing extensive damage.

Judge Jones sentenced Thomas to 12 months in jail, which he suspended, and placed him on 24 months supervised probation.

In addition, Thomas must submit to alcoholic counseling, refrain from the use of alcoholic beverages, and seek gainful employment through the parole officer assigned to him.

He must also pay all fines, restitution and court costs.

A Deep Creek Lake man, Edward Kovach, 29, was found guilty of assault against Bonnie Kovach Wilson, on October 3.

According to Ms. Kovach, Edward come to her residence and kicked open the front door, shattering the lock and bolt. He was carrying a rifle, the complainant continued, and pointed it at her and her children, threatening their lives. He fired a shot, missing her by a short distance, and then fired a second shot through the sofa. A third round was fired through the door before a struggle ensued on the front porch. Ms. Kovach claims she was knocked to the ground during the altercation. Kovach then left the scene.

Judge Jones ordered a presentence investigation.

Tfc. Gary Berkebile, Maryland State Police, charged Robert Dean Farris, 25, Morgantown, W. Va., with unlawful possession of a controlled dangerous substance following the execution of a search and seizure warrant at a home on Fairview Road.

According to Berkebile, when he arrived at the residence, an aroma of marijuana and traces of smoke in the living room led to containers of suspected marijuana in the ashtrays. The defendant was in the living room at the time.

The defendant pled guilty, and Judge Jones ordered a presentence investigation.

Martin Van Evans, Garrett County deputy, charged Rodney J. Uphold, 18, Oakland, with theft following his investigation into the loss of auto parts from a 1968 Camaro in the Shady Dell Road area.

Uphold pled guilty following Evan's investigation, and later offered a confession.

A pre-sentence investigation was ordered by the court.

Richard Kutchman, Garrett County deputy, arrested Clayton Lewis Donham, 24, Loch Lynn, for public intoxication following an incident at Par Matt Lanes, Oakland.

According to the records, Donham was behaving in a loud and vulgar manner and causing a public disturbance.

The defendant pled guilty and was fined $25 plus court costs.

Cases against Jeffrey A. Friend, Geoff Kinnaman, Jerry Sweitzer, James Ford, and Joseph Monello were declared nolle prosequi by the state's attorney.

The caterpiller has more than 2,000 muscles.

Royal Sounds To Present Concert

The Royal Sounds will present a concert of Gospel music at the Oak Grove Mennonite Church, five miles west of Grantsville on Route 40, on December 6 at 7 p.m.

The group is composed of Albert Killius, Springs, Pa., and Elaine and William Yoder of Narvon, Pa. The group accompanies their vocal numbers with instruments. Songs they will sing include "Excuses," "At Calvary," "Canaan Land," and many others.

Refreshments will be served following the service during a time of fellowship with the musicians. The public is invited.

Clarification Noted

Incorrect or incomplete information was received from court records and police statistics used in the development of two stories in last week's edition of The Republican.

Keva Lynn Layton, one of the drivers in an auto accident on Rt. 219, north of Oakland, was listed as 18 years of age on the police report obtained for the week of November 23. She is 17 years old.

In a district court record, the reported dispute between two parents and their two young daughters listed the adult complainant as Nancy Ruff, Mt. Lake Park. Because there are two residents with the same name, the complainant in the assault case is Mrs. Roger (Nancy Sirbaugh) Ruff, not Mrs. John (Nancy Crawford) Ruff, as some persons have inadvertently assumed.

Second Youth Retreat Held At Camp Sunrise Mountain

"You Can Light Up a Life" was the theme of the second youth retreat held at Camp Sunrise Mountain, Markleysburg, Pa., October 23-25, sponsored by Garrett Youth United.

The retreat was directed by Ross Glotfelty, pastor of the Cherry Grove Church of the Brethren, Grantsville, and assistant director was Janet Paugh, youth director for the Deep Creek Charge United Methodist Youth.

The retreat centered around the idea of light, with Jesus Christ as the "Light of the World."

Classes were taught dealing with light by: Bill Anderson, pastor of the Mt. Storm, Gormania, and Bayard United Methodist churches, "Your Light-In Speech and Action;" Dave Mayfield, a math teacher at Southern High School and Sunday School Superintendent at the Rocky Drean Assembly of God Church, "Stop Lights: How to Say No With Love;" Brian Schofield, a plumber for the Garrett County Board of Education and father of four children, "Light: It's Source and Reflection;" Kathryn Speicher, retired health nurse, "Sexuality" (for girls); and Joe Ruggiero, administrator at Penn Alps, Inc., Grantsville, and father of seven children, "Sexuality" (for boys).

Jon Zeigler, who is the Campus Life Director for Mountain Top Youth for Christ, and his wife, Carla, led the young people and staff throughout the weekend in singing and was assisted on the guitar by Mike Wade, a student at Garrett Community College. Jon also preached some messages on the subject of "How To Become a Christian and Then How To Live the Christian Life."

On Saturday evening Rev. Anderson and Rev. Ellis Harvey, pastor of the Deep Creek Charge United Methodist Church, led the group in an experience of communion, immediately following the preaching of the Word by Jon Zeigler.

A candlelight service followed the communion service with many of the staff and young people sharing their experiences of the weekend.

The cooks for the weekend were Nola Anderson, wife of Rev. Anderson; Virginia Glotfelty, mother of the director; and Mary June Harvey, wife of Rev. Harvey. They served a special treat Saturday night of homemade cinnamon rolls and milk, immediately following the candlelight service.

Counselors for the girls were Carolyn Dooley, teacher at Yoder School and member of Springs Mennonite Church; Diane Merrill, who attends Cherry Grove Church of the Brethren and is a volunteer secretary for the church; Carol Michael, who attends Cherry Grove Church of the Brethren and is employed by Grantsville Ford; Barbara Rexrode, who is employed by the Shirt Factory in Deer Park and attends Swanton United Methodist Church; Ruth Ruggiero, wife of Joe Ruggiero and mother of seven children; and Betty Walker, music teacher for the Garrett County Board of Education. Betty compiled an instrumental group, which played for the closing service of the retreat. Janet Paugh and Carla Zeigler served as female counselors also.

Merrell Wilburn, Hoyes United Methodist Church, helped during the day, and Jon Zeigler, Rev. Harvey, Rev. Anderson, Pastor Glotfelty, and Joe Ruggiero served as male counselors.

The caretakers of the retreat center year 'round are Mr. and Mrs. Norris Riley, of Friendsville.

The retreaters came from as far away as Silver Spring, and from a number of denominations: Methodist, Baptist, Brethren, Church of God, Mennonite, and Assembly of God.

The retreat will be held next year, October 22-24. Those interested in attending may contact Ross Glotfelty, Grantsville.

Americans spend about 35 percent of their total food dollars dining out.

OVER 50 YOUNG PEOPLE attended the second annual youth retreat October 23-25, at Camp Sunrise Mountain, Markleysburg, Pa. The retreat was sponsored by Garrett Youth United and the theme for the weekend event was "You Can Light Up A Life." The director of the retreat was Ross Glotfelty, pastor of the Cherry Grove Church of the Brethren, Grantsville.

CELEBRATING a wedding anniversary at the youth retreat were Bill and Nola Anderson. Bill is the pastor of the Mt. Storm, Gormania and Bayard United Methodist churches. He served as an instructor and worship leader at the retreat, while Mrs. Anderson was a cook.

Pedestrian Hit In Front Of Oakland Home

A 70-year-old Oakland man was treated and released Friday at Garrett County Memorial Hospital after he was struck by a vehicle in front of his residence at South Fourth Street. Norman Wine was taken to the hospital by members of the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad after the accident occurred about 6:20 p.m.

Oakland police said the vehicle which struck the pedestrain was driven by James Harry Garner, 17, Oakland. Wine apparently walked in front of the 1969 Chevy Nova.

The following morning at 9 a.m. Ralph Edward Keefer, 26, Oakland, was taken to Garrett Memorial Hospital where he was treated and released following a two-car accident at the intersection of Oak and Third Streets.

Oakland Police said the accident occurred when a pick-up truck driven by Ernest Gilbert Tasker, 75, Deer Park, drove into the path of Keefer's vehicle while attempting to make a left turn. Keefer was operating an International Scout. He reportedly suffered a knee injury.

Sarah Wilson Is Guest At Special Education Luncheon

Sarah G. Wilson, Supervisor of Special Education, was an honored guest at a Thanksgiving luncheon held by Northern Middle School's special education class. The luncheon was held at the school on November 24.

The students planned, prepared and served the meal. Mary Bowser was in charge of setting the table, and Sarah Bell was hostess. Ronnie Georg presented a brief definition of Thanksgiving, and other helpers included Susie Ash, Ann Hersick, Lisa Matthews and David and Patsy Michaels. Class instructors are Doris Cooper and Mary Friend.

Plans for special group activities in December include a shopping trip to Uniontown, Pa., the study of Mexico, cooking Mexican foods and the making of a pinata.

The pinata will be filled with various items by the Bittinger Homemaker's Club. The homemakers will also help the students make hand-sewn Christmas decorations.

MORTGAGE PROTECTION

Perhaps it's mercy, but many of us barely comprehend the degree of financial exposure we submit to in the ordinary course of life. Take, for instance, the mortgage on your home. This represents a huge, multi-thousand dollar debt. If a husband dies, it could be a staggering burden for a widow.

True, the house itself is security for the debt. In theory, you simply sell the house and use the proceeds to pay off the loan. But if the house is sold, the family will have to find other quarters. Also, a sudden sale may bring a poor price, thus wiping out the family's important equity.

One way to avoid all of this exposure is to buy what's commonly called "mortgage insurance." Actually, it's decreasing term insurance which will yield enough cash at any moment in time to wipe out the mortgage debt and leave the widow with a home that's free and clear. For more details check with your insurance agent.

Windows Smashed In Mt. Lake Park

Two windows in the Mt. Lake Park area were smashed out on the night of Friday, November 20, amounting to a total loss of about $150.

Neslon S. Wood, Kitzmiller, told the Garrett County Sheriff's Department that someone broke out the window on the passenger side of his 1981 Buick 4-door Sedan while it was parked in the lot at Par Matt Lanes. Replacement value of the window is $125.07, and Wood charges the additional expense of a motel room, $26.25. (Because of weather conditions he was unable to drive the damaged vehicle back to Kitzmiller).

In a separate case, Walter Allen Tasker, 18, Deer Park, was arrested and charged with destruction of property in breaking out a window at Joe's Place. Complainant Earl W. Shuttleworth told police he asked Tasker and two others to leave the establishment, after which he heard the window shatter. Replacement value of the window is estimated at $25. Tasker was released the next day on his own recognizance.

A residence owned by Earl Carrick and located at the Old Deer Park and Oakland Road was broken into sometime last week. The caretaker told police that a door at the dwelling was found standing open when it was checked November 24. Entry was gained by breaking a window pane just above the door knob. Police said investigation revealed no evidence of ransacking, and the only item noticed missing was a portable television set, value unknown.

Two other cases of destruction of property were reported to the department last week.

William A. Zang, Oakland, told police that someone cut a radial tire on his 1981 Thunderbird while it was parked in front of his residence on the Oakland-Sang Run Road. The incident occurred sometime between 9:15 a.m. November 24 and 8:30 a.m. November 25. The tire is valued at about $50.

In a separate case, Ronald Lee Bray, Kitzmiller, reported that someone broke out four headlights on his 1966 Pontiac GTO while it was parked at his residence on Willow Street. The incident occurred during the night on Saturday. The culprits also wrote obscenities on the driver's side window of the car with what appeared to be red fingernail polish, police said. A loss in damage to the headlights is estimated at $28.

In other business, the department arrested two persons last week.

A 16-year-old girl from Frostburg was arrested Friday on a bench warrant for failure to appear in court. She was released the same day on her own recognizance.

Terry Albert Lashbaugh, 26, Frostburg, was arrested Saturday for failure to appear in court and was charged with battery. He was released the same day on his own recognizance.

The Oakland City Police arrested Lawrence Edward Wilhelm, 24, Oakland, on Thursday. Wilhelm was charged with assault and battery and was released Friday on his own recognizance.

GCTA Teacher Talk

by Nancy Meyers

The Executive Board of the Garrett County Teachers Association held its annual legislative dinner this past Monday evening at the Will O' the Wisp. A special appearance was made by the new MSTA president, Janice Piccinini. Earlier in the day Mrs. Piccinini made visits to several of the Garrett County schools. Others in attendance to the dinner included the local school board, the county commissioners, MSTA Executive Director, Senator Ed Mason, Delegate DeCorsey Bolden, and several chairpersons from various organizations.

GCTA members are currently viewing five possible calendars for the 1982-1983 school year. Teachers will be voting on these calendars in the upcoming week.

MSTA will be sponsoring several workshops in the upcoming year. Following are their subject matters and their dates: the Stress workshop will be held January 21, 1982; the Income Tax workshop will be held February 8, 1982; and the Discipline workshop will be held March 18, 1982.

Teachers concerned about federal funding to the state and those who would like to see a "restoration of educational funds" should contact state senators. Senator Paul Sarbanes may be contacted at 202-224-4524 while Senator Mac. Mathias may be contacted at 202-224-4654.

Teachers Do It with Class

Carol Snider, a Southern Middle School teacher, organized a dance to benefit the Garrett County Winter Special Olympics. The dance occurred on November 13 at the Southern Middle School cafeteria. The Garrett County Winter Special Olympics will be held the week of January 10-13 at the Wisp Ski Area in McHenry.

GCTA would like to recognize the teachers involved in the recent production of Oliver held at Southern Middle School on November 7-9. Those involved were Nancy Learey and Jane Avery as directors; Dianne Dean, Terry Wolfe and Gene Bartlett as characters; and Patti McLaughlin, accompanist.

Southern States Personnel Attend Annual Meeting

George Keller, Accident, Herbert Wildesen, Deer Park, Kenneth Yoder, Grantsville, and Melvin Harsh, Eglon, represented area Southern States Cooperative's members at the association's 58th annual Stockholders' meeting held in Richmond, Va., November 18 and 19. Also attending the session were Wayne Fratz, representing W.H. Fratz Southern States of Accident; Rex E. Hoalcraft, representing Southern States Oakland Cooperative; Jesse H. Harsh, representing Southern States Grantsville Service; and Ronald J. Bishop, representing Eglon Farm Service.

They heard Executive Vice President and General Manager, Gene A. James report that dollar volume for the fiscal year ended last June 30, reached a record $713.9 million. This was an increase of about 14 percent over the previous year's total of $625.9 million.

James also told the business session at the Mosque Auditorium "that savings from operations, after income tax and equity earnings, came to $20.1 million, down $4.1 million from last year.

James shared the reporting with Jack A. McHugh, group vice president, wholesale services; Harris K. Swann, vice president, retail services; Paul E. Mullinix, group vice president, operations services; and Beverley W. Armstrong, vice president, finance.

McHugh, in his report, stated that petroleum volume reached $221.7 million, a record figure, while gallonage decreased by eight percent.

Fertilizer volume was up from 668,496 tons, the previous year to 724,865 tons. Sales totaled $108.9 million compared to $89.3 million the year before.

Seed volume increased 30 percent from $19.6 million last year to $25.4 milion.

Total Farm Supply volume was $103.3 million, up from $94.0 million the year before, an increase of 10 percent.

Feed tonnage was up slightly from 543,000 tons last year to 544,000 tons. Sales amounted to $112.6 million.

Swann told the session that volume through the co-op's 88 owned branches totaled $193.5 million, up 13 percent over last year. Net savings were down from $4.4 million to $3.5 million, a 25 percent dip from last year.

The 115 managed member cooperatives had a sales increase of 15.6 percent to $258.5 million. Their net savings were up 26 percent to $7.6 million as compared to $6.1 million last year.

Private dealers and independent local farm supply cooperatives had wholesale purchases of $176 million, up 11 percent from last year's figure of $158.8 million.

Mullinix, reported that the co-op's grain marketing operation handled 23,152,000 bushels last year, down about 5 percent. Volume was just over $107 million, up $13.1 million from the year before.

"Severe disruptions in many traditional trading patterns in parts of our territory this past year resulted in larger inventories of higher priced grain being carried for a longer period of time. Combined with higher rates of interest, this eroded net savings to $200,000 before taxes, down $1.2 million from last year. As a result, we could not pay a patronage refund on grain for the first time in 8 years," Mullinix reported.

Armstrong told the session that "a patronage refund totaling almost $9.3 million is being paid on purchases through the four purchasing divisions and retail branch locations. Like last year, the refund represents 1½ percent of purchases and is being paid 40 percent in cash and 60 percent in patronage refund allocations.

"The twin bugaboos of inflation and high interest rates are still not under control and many farmers are feeling the financial bind resulting from high cost for what they buy and less than adequate prices for what they sell. We hope this situation will improve in the months ahead," he said.

Meat Production Statistics Noted

Commercial red meat production held virtually steady in October, according to the Crop Reporting Service. At 9.75 million pounds, production compares with 9.74 million pounds in September 1981, but was 11 percent below the 11.0 million pounds one year earlier. The drop resulted from 12 percent and 13 percent declines in cattle and hog slaughter, respectively for the month.

Cattle slaughter in October totaled 5,700 head, compared with 6,400 a year ago. The average weight per head fell 12 pounds to 1,095 pounds each. The combination of fewer head and lighter weights pulled the total liveweight down 12 percent to 6.22 million pounds.

Calf slaughter for the month totaled 2,200 head, 100 head above a year earlier. The average liveweight was also up by four pounds to 332 pounds per head. Liveweight of calves killed totaled 724,000 pounds, five percent above October 1980.

Hogs slaughtered declined 12 percent from the previous year to 34,800 head. The per head average liveweight dropped only one pound to 225 pounds, but the total liveweight was 13 percent lower at 7.83 million pounds.

Sheep and lambs butchered in October amounted to 3,700 head, up slightly from the 3,600 killed a year ago. The average weight per head of 101 pounds was four pounds lighter than last year, bringing the total liveweight down to 368,000 pounds, a three percent drop.

International Agreement Could Benefit Farmers

Administrators at the University of Maryland recently signed an agreement to pave the way for two-way transfers of agricultural knowledge which might prove useful to small farmers both here and abroad, according to Dr. John S. Toll, president.

The agreement was formalized on November 11 with the Asian Vegetable Research and Development Center (AVRDC), headquartered on the island of Taiwan.

During the signing ceremony in his office Dr. Toll commented that the memorandum of understanding reestablished a link which previously existed. This connection was established by Dr. Robert F. Chandler, Jr., who was instrumental in setting up AVRDC in mid-1971 and served as its first director.

Dr. G. Wilbur Selleck, current director of the research center, reported that students from 28 countries have graduated from the institution, and representatives of 11 nations are currently serving on its teaching and research staff.

A five-month vegetable production training program at AVRDC turns out specialists who are responsible for training and supervising extension workers, farm managers and educators in their home countries.

The Maryland agricultural technology which is transferred to the Taiwan center eventually will be exported to farmers in developing nations throughout southeast Asia.

In return, the University of Maryland hopes to gain germplasm for new and improved cultivars of sweet potatoes and other vegetables for planting and breeding programs in Maryland. New management and pest control techniques of special interest to small farmers in Maryland might also be a byproduct of the joint endeavor.

"We at AVRDC are the world's leaders in vegetable production research," Dr. Selleck declared. He noted that research and education work at his institution is currently centered on six crops suitable for small farm production—Chinese cabbage, mung beans, soybeans, tomatoes, potatoes and sweet potatoes.

Maryland's primary contribution is expected to be production research with sweet potatoes, coordinated by Dr. John C. Bouwkamp, associate professor of horticulture at the College Park campus.

The joint activities will include not only horticulture but agricultural engineering, agronomy, plant pathology, entomology, agricultural economics, and agricultural and extension education.

AVRDC was established 10 years ago at a meeting of the Asian Development Bank with representatives of the United States, China, Japan, Korea, the Philippines, Thailand and Vietnam. Partial funding is provided by the U.S. Agency for International Development.

Wool Producers Reminded To Turn In Sales Receipts

"Wool producers who have sold or plan to sell any shorn or unshorn lambs this year should turn in their sales receipts to be eligible for incentive payments under the wool program," William B. Crum, chairperson of the Maryland State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee, said recently.

Farmers who have a record of their wool sales are eligible for incentive payments only if the sales are reported to the county ASCS office. Crum said the quantity sold does not affect the eligibility. However, sales slips should contain the month of shearing, month of sale, number of head shorn, pounds of wool sold and net proceeds. Sales slips for lambs must show the liveweight and state whether the lambs were unshorn, he said.

The federal support price for 1981 shorn wool marketing is $1.35 per pound and $3.72 per pound for mohair. Pulled wool will continue to be supported at a level comparable to the support price for shorn wool through payments on unshorn lambs.

Shorn wool payments are based on a percentage of each producer's returns from sales. The percentage is the amount required to raise the national average price received by all producers for shorn wool in 1981 up to the support price of $1.35 a pound. Shorn wool prices fluctuated between 89 and 106 cents per pound through September 1981.

During 1980, 321 Maryland producers filed for their 1980 wool incentive payments. The county ASCS offices disbursed $33,282 in wool incentive payments last year, according to Crum.

The wool program is designed to encourage growers to increase production and improve the quality and marketing of wool.

ASSIGNEE'S SALE OF VALUABLE REAL ESTATE

In Election District No. 6, Garrett County, Maryland.

Under and by virtue of a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage from Carroll O. Beitzel, dated April 15, 1980, and recorded in Liber No. 406, Folio 480, one of the Mortgage Records of Garrett County, Maryland, default having occurred under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and said mortgage being duly assigned to the undersigned for the purpose of foreclosure, I hereby give notice that I will on Thursday, the 17th day of December, 1981 At the hour of 11:00 a.m. EST on the property hereinafter described, offer for sale and sell at public auction to the highest bidder, the following property, to-wit:

A parcel of land in Election District No. 6, Garrett County, Maryland, which is described as follows:

BEGINNING at a post standing in the line of a post and wire fence dividing the lands of Clarence Knox and Herbert and Simon Opel, this parcel of land being a portion of "Plains of Bear Creek," and from said beginning point, south 10° west 766 feet to a stake; thence west 1734.05 feet to a white oak tree; thence north 23° east 284 feet to an iron pipe (this line being common to a 2.86 acre parcel owned by Glenn Miller), thence north 78° west 190 feet to an iron pipe, thence north 07° 49' east 474.75 feet to an iron pipe; thence east 1848.34 feet to the point of beginning, containing 32.00 acres, more or less.

Together with a right of way 25 feet in width to be established as a means of access to the above described property, said right of way to be used in common by Carroll O. Beitzel and Susie Miller and others.

Said property and right of way are the same conveyed to Carroll O. Betizel by deed from Susie Miller, and others, undated, but recorded on August 19, 1977 in Liber No. 380, Folio 231, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

Said property is unimproved.

Terms of sale—One third (⅓) cash on day of sale and the balance on ratification of sale by the Circuit Court for Garrett County.

State and county taxes will be adjusted to date of sale.

The undersigned assignee reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

Stephen R. Pagenhardt Assignee for the purpose of foreclosure

Pickett is the Defendant, the same being No. 8032 Equity, the undersigned hereby gives notice that they will offer for sale and sell at public auction to the highest bidder:

Friday, the 4th day of December, 1981

at the hour of 11:00 a.m. EST on the property hereinafter described. The property to be sold is known and designated as Lots Nos. 6 & 7 in the Roger W. Bray Subdivision and described as follows:

1—Lot No. 6: BEGINNING at a stake standing in the margin of a 40 foot street, at a point which is north 60° 36' east, 261.34 feet and north 36° 52' 45" west, 240 feet from the beginning of the 19.18 acre tract of land of which this lot is a part, and running thence, north 36° 52' 45" west, 200 feet to a stake; thence north 53° 07' 15" east, 100 feet to a stake, thence south 36° 52' 45" east, 200 feet to a stake; thence south 53° 07' 15" west, 100 feet to the beginning, containing 20,000 square feet, more or less, and being the property conveyed to the said C. Arthur Ross Metheny and Linda J. Pickett by deed from Donald P. Welch and wife, dated May 20, 1978 and recorded in Liber No. 389, folio 245, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

2—Lot No. 7: BEGINNING at a stake in the northerly margin of a 40 foot street, said beginning stake being the fourth corner of said Lot No. 6, and running thence from said beginning stake with the third line reversed of said Lot No. 6, north 36° 52' 45" west 200.0 feet to a stake, thence north 53° 07' 15" east 100.0 feet to a stake, thence south 36° 52' 45" east 200.0 feet to a stake in the northerly margin of said 40 foot street, thence with said northerly margin, south 53° 07' 15" west 100.0 feet to the beginning, containing 0.46 of an acre, more or less, and being the property conveyed to the said C. Arthur Ross Metheny and Linda J. Pickett by deed from Roger Wayne Bray and wife, dated July 27, 1978 and recorded in Liber No. 390, folio 747, one of the said Land Records.

Together with a right of way over the aforesaid 40 foot street and such other streets as are in said subdivision.

Said property is subject to the following restrictive covenants:

1—No building or structure other than a private residence and private garage for use in connection therewith shall be built or placed upon said premises, and the premises or building built or placed upon said premises, shall not at any time be used for the purpose of any trade, business or manufacturing whatsoever, except that the dwelling built thereon may be used as an office. This restriction shall prohibit placing of trailers or mobile home on said property to be used as a dwelling.

2—The exterior of any dwelling built on said property shall be constructed of new materials which are usually accepted and shall be finished or painted in such a manner as not to detract from the natural beauty of the surroundings.

3—No chickens, ducks, geese or other type or kind of fowl, nor horses, ponies, cows, or livestock of any kind whatsoever may be kept, maintained or bred on any lot or lots or in any dwelling or building erected thereon, nor shall any owner or occupant be permitted to breed domestic animals for commercial purposes. Nothing in this paragraph contained shall prevent the keeping upon the premises of usual household pets.

4—Any dwelling placed on said property shall be completed within eighteen months from the time of the commencement to the completion of same.

5—The covenants, restrictions, reservations and limitations above set forth shall run with and bind the property hereby conveyed and shall inure to the benefit of and be enforceable by and binding upon the parties hereto and all persons claiming under them.

Said property is improved with a rambler type dwelling, 45 feet x 24 feet with aluminum siding containing living room, dining room, kitchen, three bedrooms, 1½ baths on the first floor and a family room and laundry room in the basement. Said dwelling is heated by electricity. Said property is further improved with a well and septic system and a swimming pool 18 feet x 36 feet with filter and patio.

State, county and municipal taxes shall be pro-rated to date of final ratification.

Terms of sale: ⅓ cash on day of sale and balance on ratification of the sale by the Court.

County Personnel Revising Snow Removal Plan

Changes in snow removal operations, the 1982 Promotion Council Vacation Guide and a funding proposal for a graphic designer were among items on the county commissioners' agenda Tuesday.

Ken Metheny, interim county roads department administrator, informed the commissioners that he and his staff were rerouting some of the crews to achieve more logical and efficient routes. He noted that some trucks travel roads to get to other areas of the county without treating them. The new system would allow crews to be treating roads most of the time they are traveling.

Another change in the operations Metheny noted was that the priority list of roads would be revised so that the most heavily traveled roads receive the most concentrated effort.

Cindy Kutchman, executive director of the Deep Creek Lake-Garrett County Promotion Council, presented plans for the 1982 Vacation Guide. She noted that 75,000 copies would THOREAU OBSERVED that any worthwhile cord of wood warmed a body twice, "once when I was splitting them, and again when they were on the fire." This back to nature phenomenon is practiced by more and more Garrett Countians each winter in an attempt to fend off the high cost of conventional heat sources. With winter upon us, many a rural family would be pleased to claim this snow-covered stack.

The chance for snow will decrease to 30 percent tonight and 20 percent Thursday. Winds northwest 20 to 30 mph and gusty today and tonight.

Mooman Named New Child Abuse Team Coordinator

The Garrett County Team on Child Abuse and Neglect has appointed Mikal Mooman as team coordinator to replace Ann Abrahamson whose resignation from the position became effective December 1.

Mrs. Mooman received her bachelor degree from West Virginia University in 1971 and her master's degree from the University of Maryland in 1980. She taught in Garrett County public schools from 1971-78.

Among her responsibilities will be to recruit, train and supervise volunteers in the Visiting Friends Program, a parent aid program. There are currently 15 volunteers in the program.

Mooman stated she plans to continue the public awareness program started by Abrahamson which includes making herself available for public speaking engagements.

Projects Mrs. Mooman and the Garrett County Team hope to complete within this fiscal year are the compiling of a parenting resource book, which will list activities throughout the county available to parents and children; strengthening the Team's outreach to rural areas; possibly organizing a parent's anonymous group; and refining the reporting and handling of child abuse complaints in public schools and the community.

The part-time position of team coordinator was created

Area Youth Injured In Hunting Mishap

A 15-year-old boy was treated for a bullet wound at Garrett County Memorial Hospital Saturday following a hunting accident.

The Garrett County Sheriff's Department reports that the boy was hunting deer with his father and others near Dry Run Road, about four miles east of Route 495. Four members of the hunting party were apparently acting as sighters and two were driving for deer.

Police said a buck broke and ran in between the two groups and two of the adults fired simultaneously at the deer. A bullet from one of the rifles (either a 30-30 cal. or a 30-06 cal.) struck the boy in the heel area of his left foot. The bullet apparently exited out the other side of the heel. The youth was taken to the hospital by his father.

Officer John Williams of the Department of Natural Resources also investigated the incident. No charges were pressed.

Charges Filed In Shooting Incident

A Westernport man, Gary Lee Farris, 31, was charged by Maryland State Police with having a loaded gun in a vehicle following the accidental shooting of a Swanton man. The men were on a hunting trip in the Chestnut Grove Road area on Saturday afternoon when the incident occurred.

The victim, Junior Elwood Goodwin, 48, was shot in the lower right leg, when, according to police, Farris was attempting to unload a 30.06 bolt-action rifle from a van in which he was standing. Goodwin, who was situated approximately ten feet from the vehicle, was struck when the gun discharged. The blast traveled through the van's rear door before hitting the victim.

Goodwin is currently listed in fair condition at Sacred Heart Hospital, Cumberland.

Tfc. David Riggleman, Maryland State Police, is investigating.

PTA Reps, Board Of Education To View Draft Activities Policy

Representatives of Parent-Teacher Association's throughout the county will be the guests of the Garrett County Board of Education during its meeting Thursday beginning at 1:30 p.m. in the meeting room of the Board offices in Oakland.

The Board plans to discuss several educational matters with the representatives, including a draft for a new policy on curricular, co-curricular and extra-curricular activities.

Dr. Jerome Ryscavage, county superintendent of schools and the draftsman for the most recent version of the policy, stated the Board has been considering a policy for over a year. It appointed Lewis Domenick, director of personnel, to chair a committee to draft a policy and then later directed Ryscavage to rewrite the policy to incorporate results of a survey conducted in the fall.

The Board does not have a policy on student activities and believes it is an area it should address. It is now trying to obtain comments from the public, teachers and students on its proposed policy before formally adopting a policy.

The policy addresses requirements for participation in student activities as well as sets limitations on those activities.

Grimm Appointed General Heart Fund Chairman

Francis L. Grimm, Mt. Lake Park, has accepted the position of General Heart Fund Chairman for all of Garrett County, according to Buford L. Saville, president of the American Heart Association-Western Maryland Chapter.

According to Saville, even though much progress is being made, Heart Disease is still the nation's No. 1 Killer, and a total of 41,290,000 Americans have one or more forms of heart or blood vessel disease. Cardiovascular Disease killed 975,550 Americans in 1979, 51% of the deaths from all causes in the country. Of these total heart-related deaths, one fourth were under the age of 65. Since 1949, in excess of 390,000,000 in Heart Association dollars have gone into research. This year, he said, 25,000 babies will be born

Merchants Elect 1982 Officers

The Oakland Downtown Merchants' and Businessmen's Association yesterday elected officers for 1982.

New officers are Jack Jones, president; Bryan Thayer, vice-president; George Evans, treasurer, and Judy DeWitt, Promotion Council, secretary.

In other business, Maureen Sweitzer, manager of the Country Oven Bakery, a new member of the organization, explained activities at the bakery which was created through the Appalachian Center.

Sanitary Commission To Appeal Deep Creek State Park Exclusion

The Garrett County Sanitary Commission met December 1 and continued discussion of business matters at a meeting Monday, as representation at the December 1 regular meeting did not form a quorum.

Wendell Beitzel, Sanitary District administrator, presented a letter from the State Board of Public Works to which the commission had requested an appeal to a recent decision by James B. Coulter, Secretary of the Maryland Department of Natural Resources, to exclude the Deep Creek Lake State Park sewerage system from the proposed Deep Creek Sanitary District sewerage facilities. The letter states that the Board of Public Works does not have jurisdiction in this matter and is therefore unable to consider the commission's appeal. The Board recommended that the commission appeal to Secretary Coulter for further consideration of the issue.

The commission decided to appeal to Governor Harry Hughes and to request the complete operating budget of the Deep Creek Lake State Park sewerage facility, which they said is public information.

The Garrett County Planning Commission and the Deep Creek Lake Property Owners' Association are in support of the state park's inclusion in the Sanitary District sewerage system, as that inclusion would open the way for sewerage service to be extended along State Park Road to some 37 residences where there have been incidents of septic tank leakage.

Tom Lash, associate engineer, was present December 1 from Rummel, Klepper & Kahl, Baltimore, to present a revised proposal for the Step II (design) portion of the expanded system of the Deep Creek Sewerage Project. The original contract proposal was submitted in May in the amount of $384,217, but that contract was not executed because Step II grants were not approved at that time. When funding for the expanded portion was approved, a Minority Business Enterprise sub-contractor cited for work on the project had gone out of business, and R, K&K sought a replacement.

Beitzel explained that other Minority Business Enterprises submitted bids above cost estimates, and the commission applied to the Environmental Protection Agency to reduce the minimum MBE requirements for that portion of the project. This action was approved by EPA and the services of two other subcontrators were secured by R, K&K, leading to the revised proposal.

In this proposal, R, K&K also eliminated the project manager and project engineer categories, as these direct labor categories will be accomplished by Lash, who has been working with the project since the beginning, along with designers of the basic system. The revised contract proposal is in the amount of $364,924, and the commission moved Monday to accept that proposal subject to review by legal counsel and approval by State Health and EPA. Lash indicated that R, K&K could possibly put the expanded system out to bid in time to begin construction this summer.

In other business, the commission signed a contract with Greenhorne and O'Mara, Riverdale, to review contract documents prepared by R, K&K for bidability and constructability. The contract, in the amount of $13,493, is accepted subject to determination of grant eligibility and review by legal counsel.

It was noted that bank notes in the amount of $135,000 are due for monies borrowed by the commission for construction of

County Planning Board Receives Rezoning Request

For the second time in three years, Railey, Inc. is submitting a rezoning request for 46 acres of property along 219 north of the 219 bridge.

Railey's, through attorneys Charles Wagaman of Hagerstown and Linda Sherbin of Oakland, presented their request to the Garrett County Planning Commission Wednesday to rezone their property from lake residential to town center.

The Railey's made a similar request during the summer of 1978, but the county commissioners denied the request. The Planning Commission, which makes a recommendation on a rezoning petition to the commissioners who make the final decision, opposed the request in 1978.

In order to obtain rezoning, a petitioner must prove a mistake was made in the original zoning ordinance or that a substantial change had occurred in the area. The petitioner must wait one year after a request is denied before resubmitting the petition.

The new zoning would allow Railey's to proceed with plans to develop their property by constructing a small shopping plaza with professional offices and specialty shops, a motel and restaurant, a residential area, and eventually condominiums.

James Railey, one of five persons representing Railey, Inc. at the meeting, told the Commission that present zoning has stymied any possible development of the property. He assured the Commission any development on the property would be "aesthetically sound."

Wagaman went over his clients' petition with the Commission explaining why the property should be rezoned. He argued that a mistake had been made in the original zoning because too little land area was devoted for town center use in the McHenry area. The Railey property, which Wagaman said does border part of the McHenry town center zone, would be "a logical extension of town center zoning."

Wagaman also said a change had occurred in the area be-

Bolden Invited To White House Budget Briefing

Delegate DeCorsey Bolden (R-Allegany, Garrett) has been invited to attend a White House briefing on the administration's goal for the fiscal 1983 federal budget on December 14 from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

The meeting is being held for members of the American Legislative Exchange Council and will include briefings by President Ronald Reagan and administration officials.

Prior to the Monday briefing, the American Legislative Exchange Council will host a reception and buffet on Sunday evening at the Capitol Hilton for all State Legislator attendees, members of Congress and White House and Administration guests.

BEGINNER'S LUCK? — That's what some might believe, but 11-year-old Michael Upole is nonetheless proud of this ten-point, 150-pound trophy which he bagged the first time he had ever gone deer hunting. Michael, son of Gib and Karen Upole of Rt. 50 near Red House, and a sixth grade student at Southern Middle School, shot the animal in the Kempton area on November 28, the first day of Maryland buck season. He shot the deer at a range of only six feet. A total of 1,031 deer was harvested in Garrett County during the recent season, just 18 short of last season's record of 1,049.

Snyder Convicted In Federal Court, Pre-Sentence Investigation Ordered

James Dwight Snyder, 45, of Oakland, whose dealings with the Internal Revenue Service have drawn national publicity, was convicted Friday by a jury in Baltimore Federal Court on two counts of tax evasion from 1974 to 1975, three counts of failure to file tax returns from 1973 through 1975, and one count of concealing assets during 1980. He was acquitted of one count of tax evasion.

Snyder, who has been battling against the IRS for nearly 11 years, said he was "really surprised with the outcome." Domenic J. LaPonzina, public affairs officer with the IRS, said, "The trial, which lasted nearly three weeks, was regarded by many so-called 'tax protestors' as a test of their contention that filing of income tax returns containing financial data violates their constitutional rights. The IRS and the courts have continually held this contention to be frivolous."

After deliberating approximately 11 hours, the eight-woman, four-man jury returned unanimous guilty verdicts for six of the seven counts under which Snyder was charged.

Presiding Federal District Judge Norman Ramsey ordered a pre-sentence investigation, and no date has been set for sentencing. Each count of tax evasion carries a maximum penalty of one year imprisonment and a $10,000 fine. Failure to file tax returns carries a maximum penalty of one year imprisonment and a $10,000 fine for each return not filed, and the maximum penalty for concealment of assets is three years imprisonment and a $5,000 fine.

In addition to the criminal sentence imposed, persons convicted of criminal tax offenses are required to pay the tax determined to be due, along with all interest and civil penalties that may be assessed, according to LaPonzina. Snyder said a trial will be held to determine the amount of taxes owed by him to the federal government.

The case was investigated by Special Agents of the IRS Criminal Investigation Division in Baltimore and was presented at the trial by Assistant United States Attorney Elizabeth H. Trimble.

Snyder's dealings with the IRS began in 1957, when he said he was charged double tax on a refund by the IRS but never received it. In 1971 the Oakland cabinetmaker began filing tax forms and withholding information. He did not pay federal taxes from 1971 until he filed a return for 1980, paying what was owed. He says he is not refusing to pay "fair and honest" taxes, but bases his case on "IRS harassment and injustice."

The prosecution's case dealt primarily with determining assets Snyder has acquired, in addition to loans issued by him. The prosecution called about 15 witnesses from the Oakland and Terra Alta, W. Va. areas to testify regarding assets.

The government introduced Snyder's tax returns during the trial and convinced the jury that he had not filed proper returns from 1973 through 1975, had hidden assets in 1980 and evaded taxes from 1971 to 1979.

The defense dealt considerably with a February 1980 seizure of property to satisfy a tax liability at Snyder's residence and place of business, which involved 32 IRS agents and U.S. Marshals with machine guns and M-16 rifles. The liability determined by the IRS was approximately $48,600, but agents testified that Snyder was allowed no deductions or expenses, including materials and equipment in his shop.

DNR Reports County Harvest Of 1,031 Deer

Al Bourgeois, District Wildlife Manager with the Department of Natural Resources, this morning released the most offical count at this time of deer killed in Garrett County during last week's Maryland deer hunting season. Whitetail bucks harvested this year amounted to 1,031, just 18 short of last year's county record kill of 1,049. Bourgeois added that some deer shot in Garrett County could have been checked downstate, and those figures are not available at this time.

DNR officials at Mt. Nebo have been busy counting tags since yesterday afternoon, and information regarding size and points will be released next week. Bourgeois called the results "a pretty good 'arvest," and he commented that, although the weather for being outdoors was generally good, the harvest could have been larger if there hadn't been a lack of snow. He added that freezing rain Tuesday "slowed things down" and kept hunters away. If snow had been present for more efficient tracking, Bourgeois said he feels the harvest could have exceeded last year's record.

BPW Announces Candidates For 1981 Young Career Woman Title

The Garrett County Business and Professional Women's Club has announced its slate of candidates for the title of Young Career Woman of 1981. The YCW program, a part of the National Federation BPW program, strives to recognize the accomplishments of Garrett County's successful young career women, according to Martie A. Garrett National's Special IRA* Is Good News...

Effective January 1, 1982

1. Now every wage earner under the age of 70½, even those already a participant in a qualified pension plan, can have a Garrett National IRA.
2. Maximum contributions have been increased to $2,000 for individual, $2,250 for a couple with only one wage earner, and $4,000 for a couple where both are wage earners ($2,000 each to their own IRA).
3. All contributions up to these maximums are deductible from gross income. Taxes on these contributions and interest earned are deferred until you withdraw the funds.

For Everyone Who Needs More Flexibility While Assuring A High Rate Of Return On Your Savings For Retirement...

It has some VERY SPECIAL ADVANTAGES:

1. HIGH RATE OF RETURN. Your Garrett National "Special" IRA account will have a variable rate of interest subject to review every 30 days. This rate will be tied to our 30 month "small saver" certificates of deposit. The yield on your "Special" IRA account will be equal to the rate on our 30 month small saver certificates. (Current rate on 2½ yr. small saver C.D.s is 12.70%). From your first deposit of $10 or more, your "Special" IRA account will earn this high rate of return. Garrett National requires no minimum amount to accumulate before you begin earning a high yield.

2. FLEXIBLE DEPOSIT SCHEDULE. You can set up a deposit schedule that fits your specific needs. You can make as many deposits during the year as you wish, in any amount.

3. INTEREST COMPOUNDED DAILY. Interest earned on your Garrett National "Special" IRA account will be compounded daily and credited to the account quarterly. This feature allows you to earn a higher yield than an "interest at maturity" certificate of deposit, at the same annual percentage rate.

4. FULLY INSURED. As with all deposits at Garrett National, your IRA account is insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

*This account has a maturity of 18 months and requires a substantial interest penalty for early withdrawal.
Substantial interest penalty for early withdrawal.

Heart Association Business Drive Co-Chairmen Named For Oakland

Nordeck Q. Shaffer of Oakland and George W. Evans of Mt. Lake Park have accepted the positions of co-chairmen for Heart Days for Business for Oakland, according to Francis L. Grimm, 1982 General Heart Fund Campaign Chairman-Garrett County for the American Heart Association-Western Maryland Chapter.

In accepting the position the co-chairmen pointed out that cardiovascular disease will cost the businesses of the U.S. 50.7 billion dollars in 1982. Because of this great cost, the co-chairmen hope all business should want to become involved and support the work of the American Heart Association.

Shaffer and Evans will be coordinating the collections of the annual business donations in Oakland. Business collections will begin shortly after January 1, 1982 and continue through February 15, 1982. During this time volunteers will be going to each business in Oakland asking for their annual donation.

As president of the Garrett National Bank, Shaffer has completed many banking-related courses. An active member of the community, he is a member of St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Oakland. He completed his service in the United States Navy. Married to Stella Shaffer, they have two children.

As assistant vice-president of the Garrett National Bank, Evans received his bachelor's degree from Frostburg State College in Psychology and Secondary Education. He has completed many courses in banking and management.

Evans is a member of the Oakland-Mt. Lake Park Lions Club. Married to Cindy Evans, they have two children.

Anyone having questions concerning Heart Days for Business or wishing to help with the campaign may call them at 334-9483.

Marylanders Report 1980 Income

Maryland taxpayers reported gross income of $32,310,744,682 on state tax returns reflecting calendar year 1980 income. That's up approximately $3 billion over their gross Maryland income for 1979, according to State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein. In a summary report of state income tax returns, the Comptroller also noted that the net taxable income on which individuals paid state and local tax had also increased.

The total net taxable income reported by Garrett County taxpayers was $85,179,648. County residents filed a total of 8,983 state tax returns.

The income category with the largest number of returns from Garrett countians was the $10,000 to $14,999 with 1,487 returns. Non-taxable returns totaled 1,634. A total of 3,197 returns were filed in the income categories below $9,999 and 3,165 in the categories $15,000 and above.

"Maryland taxpayers took deductions totaling $5,137,100,639 and personal exemptions totaling $2,970,274,656 on returns filed on 1980 income. This left a net taxable income of $24,203,369,387, on which individuals paid $1,635,725,375 in state and local tax," Goldstein said. Montgomery Countians once again claimed the largest dollar amount of deductions ($1,121,326,153), and reported the largest taxable income ($5,074,319,249).

Each of the 1,531,707 state income tax returns reflecting a tax liability represented an average of $1,067.91 in state and local tax paid for income earned in calendar year 1980.

"The largest number of taxable returns (260,201) came from Baltimore County, with 251,459 coming from residents of Baltimore City," the Comptroller said. However, the highest average state and local tax bill per return—$1,283.57—was found in Montgomery County.

The largest number of refund checks—309,775—were issued to taxpayers in Baltimore City, while Kent countians received the fewest—3,791. Kent County taxpayers were also refunded the lowest total amount of money—$501,195—while Montgomery countians received the most—$43,627,558.

Single taxpayers sent in 52 percent of the returns. An additional 25 percent of the returns were filed jointly by husband and wife. Husbands and wives choosing the combined separate option accounted for 20 percent of the returns filed on 1980 income, while 3 percent came from husbands and wives filing separately.

"Montgomery County, with the fourth largest number of taxable returns, still has the highest Maryland gross income reported by its residents, $6.65 billion," the Comptroller added. This was followed by Baltimore County ($5.72 billion), Prince George's County ($5.10 billion), and Baltimore City ($4.07 billion).

Montgomery County also had the largest number of tax returns (897), reporting Maryland gross income in excess of $200,000 for 1980 followed by Baltimore County (436 tax returns).

Since the 1974 tax year, Charles County has shown the greatest increase in number of resident tax returns filed (49.7%), while Baltimore City shows a decrease of 2.9 percent. The number of returns filed statewide has increased by 11.7 percent.

SS Checks To Be Mailed Early

Social Security and Supplemental Security Income checks will be received early, Valerie J. Loughran, District Manager of the Cumberland Social Security Office, stated this week.

Since the normal paydays for checks in January 1982 fall on Federal nonwork days, the checks will be dated and issued December 31, she said.

Normal paydays of the first of the month for Supplemental Security Income and the third of the month for Social Security will resume in February, she stated.

Back To Basics . . .

One of the major criticisms of the public education system during the early and mid 1970s was that too many students were being graduated from our high schools with inadequate skills in what are commonly referred to as the basics: reading, writing and arithmetic. The criticism was justifiable, as more and more graduates were discovered who could not even fill out an application for a job.

Fortunately, Maryland educators were among those who agreed that there was a real problem and, in 1977, initiated a program called Project Basic. The program was designed to insure that students would not be awarded a diploma until proficient in certain basic skills (see the column entitled "Democracy's Cornerstone" by David W. Hornbeck, Maryland State Superintendent of Schools, on page 20).

According to figures received from the Garrett County Board of Education this week, it appears that local educators have also taken seriously the described problem and are having great success in dealing with it.

In 1980, 67% of the seventh grade students at Northern Middle School and 76% at Southern Middle School passed the pre-functional reading exam. However, in 1981 testing, which was just recently completed, 80% of Northern Middle and 85% of Southern Middle seventh graders passed the exam. These figures are even more impressive when one realizes that approximately 15% of the students are classified as special education students, but also must take the exam.

Similarly, 88% of the ninth grade students in both county high schools passed the exam this year, after 1980 figures of 77% at Northern High and 73% at Southern High. Seventy-seven percent of the seventh grade class of 1979 at Southern Middle School passed the exam that year, while 88% of those same students now ninth graders, passed the exam this year.

The complete results of this testing will be revealed at the monthly meeting of the Board of Education tomorrow.

Garrett Countians, particularly parents, should be extremely proud of the persons responsible for these encouraging results, namely, administrative personnel and especially the teachers, for it is within the classroom that the actual teaching and learning occurs. Despite other problems common to all school systems and despite the fact that there will always be poor teachers, these test results show that the majority of our educators are concerned, dedicated professionals who want the best in education for our young people.

It's Working . . .

by Carol Kapel

Several weeks ago, I received a letter from a reader who referred to one of my recent columns as offensive journalism.

She guessed me to be in my early 30s (bless her for that); against the establishment (how I wish sometimes I could be); educated in the 60s (my education in living has never stopped); and one who would write anything in the guise of reporting the news.

The comments in my column (appearing November 18, entitled Tsk, Tsk) dealt with a news release from Associated Press which told of a high-ranking law enforcement officer's admission of supplying false information to the press.

I objected to the irresponsible behavior then, and I continue to do so now.

Those of us who defiantly strive for integrity in newswriting will forever condemn those who in any way attempt to block the truth.

Deception has no place in my craft, and I'll not knowingly be a party to transferring it to my readers who depend on me for accuracy, and a clear viewpoint from both sides of an issue.

The woman's letter proved one thing. The purpose of an editorial comment is to invoke one of five emotions—acceptance, agreement, disbelief, anger, or the motivation to take action. It's fulfilling to know that at least one reader was significantly moved by my writing. That, after all, is my ultimate goal.

Letters to the Editor

Editor:

I recently spent nine days in the Garrett County Memorial Hospital. While there, I learned this is one of the finest hospitals in the world, and I want the whole world to know how much I appreciate being treated so nice. The people who work there are really wonderful. The desk clerks, nurses, aides, orderlies and Dr. Fedde were all so nice. The meals were delicious.

In the Sunday School lesson for November 15, the Bible verse to remember was 1 Cor. 13:13; "And now abideth faith, hope and charity, these three: but the greatest of these is charity."

I think these people are showing the kind of love the Apostle Paul was talking about, and I want them to know that I love them the same way.

Lawrence R. Glover
Accident

To The Editor:

I am writing this letter to be published, if you please. I want to say that I like it here (Cuppett-Weeks Nursing Home). All of the staff employees are good to me. They serve us three good meals each day. I am a diabetic patient, though, and am on a special diet.

A person does not get too lonesome because they show movies, play Bingo and Dominoes. There are also church services two times on Sunday and at least four times during the week.

The Girl Scouts were here recently and entertained the patients. They passed out spice packages that they had made.

I have met a lot of new friends here. One lady, Eva Dariell, from Cumberland passed away a few weeks ago. I loved her very much. She gave me a New Testament. I gave her some paper flowers which I had made.

Thank You,
Mae Ridings,
Cuppett-Weeks

Moomau Named

in 1977 when the Child Abuse and Neglect Team, which had been in existence for two years, received a small federal grant.

The coordinator was to assist the team in its goals to develop preventive programs, to educate the public, and to motivate individuals and organizations to take affirmative action on problems of child abuse and neglect. The Child Abuse and Neglect Team is comprised of 17 members who represent various county agencies.

Mrs. Abrahamson was the first named to the position and during her tenure the team started the Visiting Friends Program, the Mothers Matter group, and a public awareness program. In 1978, the county took over funding of the position.

Abrahamson reportedly resigned from the position to fulfill other commitments.

Moomau, who assumed responsibilities of the position on December 1, resided in Oakland with her husband, Henry, and four-year-old son, Adam.

Buffalo Coal Burglarized, Loss Exceeds $4,000

A Buffalo Coal Company garage, located on the Potomac Camp Road, Bethlehem, was broken into Monday night and approximately $4,000 to $5,000 worth of tools and equipment were stolen. The Garrett County Sheriff's Department reported that the break-in occurred sometime between 4 p.m. Monday and 6:30 a.m. yesterday, and was discovered when the foreman came to work.

Padlocks were forced off two doors to gain entry into the building, which is used to repair heavy equipment. Heavy equipment type tools, wrenches and torches were among the items taken, police said.

In a separate case, burglars at the Bell Brothers Motor Sales garage, Oakland, were surprised when a worker returned to the establishment December 2 at 7:50 p.m.

Police said Fred Bell, Jr., found the front door of the building open and called Terry Bell to determine whether it had been left ajar. As he hung up the phone Bell reportedly heard a noise in the garage, followed by a rattle of metal pieces outside. The subjects apparently fled into a wooded area behind the garage, and attempts to track the burglars by members of the Sheriff's Department and Oakland City Police were unsuccessful. A window was reported broken, however no items are known to have been taken from the establishment.

In other business, Everett B. Weimer, Oakland, reported the possible theft of a beef cow from his tarm on the Oakland-Sang Run Road. The cow was last seen in a pasture on November 26, and although there is no sign of fence cutting, the fence is equipped with a gate. The animal is described as reddish-brown, about three to four years old, and having an undetermined value.

William J. Stump, Deer Park, told police that his van was entered Thursday about 11 p.m. when it was parked at Joe's Place in Oakland. Taken from the vehicle were a Channel Master 23-channel CB radio and approximately 34 assorted 8-track tapes, a brown sleeping bag and the bottom portion of a breakdown pool stick. Entry into the locked vehicle was apparently made by forcing open a side vent window. An estimated total loss is $263.

In a separate case, Ronald Lee Bray, Kitzmiller, reported the theft of clothing from a clothesline in his backyard sometime between 5 and 9:30 p.m. Saturday. Taken were various shirts, pants and socks amounting to a total estimated loss of $93.40.

Two cases of destruction of property were reported to the department last week.

William J. Welch, Oakland, reported that unknown juveniles pulled loose the corner of a seat cover on his school bus while it was enroute from Southern Middle School to the Garrett County Board of Education building. The incident occurred Wednesday, December 2, about 11:30 a.m. A total loss in damages is approximately $32.

The Kitzmiller Mayor and Town Council reported tire damage to a grass portion of a flood wall near Main Street which borders the Potomac River. Sometime between Friday and yesterday someone drove a vehicle onto that property, causing minor damage by leaving tire ruts behind. No loss value was placed.

Persons having any information or leads regarding any of the above-mentioned cases may contact the Garrett County Sheriff's Department at 334-2141 or the Garrett County Crime Solvers at 334-3111. Information is confidential upon request.

In other business, the department arrested Dailey F. Lewis, Jr., 30, Oakland, on December 1. Lewis was charged with assault and battery and was released the next day on his own recognizance.

Education Board

There are four statements under student participation which are: 1) Fees, summer camp attendance, or help with fund-raising activities will not be requirements for participation in curricular, co-curricular, or extra-curricular activities; 2) Only those students properly enrolled in a specific school may represent that school in co-curricular and extra-curricular activities; 3) The number of co-curricular and extra-curricular activities in which a student may participate at the middle and high school levels is only constrained by academic requirements; 4) To participate in activities, students must have a 60 percent or better grade average and must have 60 percent or better grades in major subjects.

In discussing these statements, Domenick explained that the first one should prevent discrimination based on a student's financial situation.

The second statement, which has already been criticized by the public, was meant to maintain the educational separation achieved by elementary, middle and high schools. Domenick noted that the intent for the separation was to implement the idea that students develop their skills in the elementary and middle school levels and utilize them in high school.

The fourth statement regulating grades has also received some criticism. Ryscavage noted that the 60 percent requirement is what the school requires for graduation.

Under the limitations set on school activities are: 1) Curricular and co-curricular activities may occur both during and after the student day. Extra-curricular activities are to be scheduled, whenever feasible, at sometime other than the student day; 2) Elementary and middle school groups may participate in a school or local community activity as a culminating experience only; 3) Groups may participate in events within a 200-mile radius of Garrett County borders during the regular season; 4) Special exceptions may be made to the mileage limit for tournaments, holidays, etc., but students may not miss more than two school days; 5) The only limits on the number of activities a school sponsors are financial or legal constraints.

Besides discussion of the proposed policy, the Board has an agenda which could make the meeting last until 7:30 p.m.

At 1:40 p.m. the Board will discuss curriculum concerns which will include a proposal for an in-school youth employability program; a plan for implementing cardio-pulmonary resuscitation training in the schools; a report on the Maryland Functional Reading Test; and a presentation on the reading curriculum for Maryland Functional Reading Test Remediation classes.

The Board has scheduled 2:45 p.m. for discussion with the PTA representatives.

Discussion of administrative concerns will begin at 3:45 p.m. which will include action on the FY1981 audit and financial reports and on a request for a capital outlay transfer of funds; and discussion on a need for new data processing equipment.

The Board will go into executive session at 4:30 p.m. to review personnel matters and will open the meeting to the public at 5:30 p.m. to continue discussion of administrative concerns. At this time the Board will discuss coal conversion at Northern High School, the need for a county-owned bus purchase, and bus inspection procedures. It is also expected to take action on a draft policy on brake line replacement.

At 6:10 p.m. the Board will take up pupil personnel concerns which will include home teaching, high school grade advancement procedure, and a draft guidance counselor evaluation form.

The Board is expected to take action after 7 p.m. on a revision to a policy on educational field trips and on a request by the superintendent to attend a convention.

It will also discuss miscellaneous matters.

Second Impression

Painful Medicine: Truth

by Harry Fox

Remember the story of The Emperor's New Clothes? It's a classic Hans Christian Andersen tale of the dignified head of state who was so out of touch with reality that he could be deceived by almost anyone who catered to his false, stuffy impression of the world around him. The emperor was quite comfortable in his little world, that is until a child had the gall to do something unheard of in the royal court . . . to speak the truth. There stood the emperor, his dignity, and his modesty, in a shambles . . . all because of one person who spoke the truth, even when it hurt.

Professor Stuart Schwartz, assistant journalism professor at Georgia State University has just taken a page from storyteller Andersen, and caught quite a few of the nation's newspaper editors and publishers with their pants down. A story on the front page of The Wall Street Journal recounts Dr. Schwartz's "cure" for the dullness and lackluster quality of an Iowa newspaper where he was hired as a consultant.

His brief prescription—shorter stories, more photos and features. The professor says he is worried because so many journalists have "become sadly out of touch with modern life." Too many publishers are lulled to sleep by a false dignity, believing that their readers wait with bated breath for the arrival of the next paper.

"How quickly we forget (those) who pay for the ever-rising price of a subscription . . . for them, life is difficult, tough, and inherently undignified. A newspaper that sidesteps life, that maintains a false dignity is doomed to failure—both financially and journalistically."

Schwartz's words are a bitter, but necessary medicine. What people really want is tough, unglamorized, easy-to-digest information about the real world. Tough information. "Anything else will be resented; or worse, will be ignored," he said.

He feels that it is necessary to close the gap between reader and publisher if established papers are to survive. He asks, "Is it possible to be both responsible and popular? . . . It is time to take newspapers to . . . the real people whose concerns are being ignored."

That is the real problem. Thank you, Dr. Schwartz. In the real world, of pain, poverty and injustice, it is up to those who print the news to choose their friends and enemies carefully. The truth about something can be hidden, even buried by those who willfully plan it that way. But truth never changes. All it takes is one honest voice to reveal the facts about those who are hiding in darkness.

be printed, 20,000 more issues than were printed of the 1981 Vacation Guide. Kutchman explained that a large demand and the opening of the Tourist Information Center, scheduled for April or May of 1982, were the main reasons for the increase in copies.

Steve Kocsis, executive director of the Tri-County Council for Western Maryland, and Roy Brown, a graphic designer for TCC, asked the commissioners to consider sharing the cost of funding Brown's position.

Kocsis said that due to reduced funding for TCC, Brown's position with TCC would have to be eliminated at the end of the fiscal year. He proposed that Garrett share in the cost of Brown's position with Allegany and Washington counties. He added he had not yet approached the commissioners of the other two counties.

Kocsis stated that for a total cost of $15,000, which hopefully would be shared between the three counties, Garrett County would receive such services as low cost, short run printing, creation of slide presentations, development of brochures and informational pamphlets for county departments, and compilation of graphs, charts and maps.

The commissioners stated they would discuss the proposal with members of their staff before making a decision.

In other business, James Lupis, assistant superintendent for the Garrett County Board of Education, and Wendell Keaton, county municipal coordinator, discussed funding for water and sewer service to the new Accident school with the commissioners.

Keaton pointed out that if the school board takes out a loan, it would have to pay back twice the original amount of the loan because of interest rates. Repayment of the loan, he noted, would actually be a cost to the county, because no state money is available for such an expenditure.

Lupis stated he believed he could transfer the money from other areas of the school budget this year if the school board approves his recommendation and if the commissioners could guarantee that the money would be reimbursed. The commissioners agreed to try to work out an arrangement to meet Lupis' request.

Max Messenger, of Wood Products, Inc., met with the commissioners to recommend improvements to the Crellin Mine Road Bridge to raise the current load limit of 11 tons to a limit which would allow logging and coal trucks to cross the bridge. The commissioners agreed to meet with Messenger, Ken Metheny and representatives of other businesses interested in improving the bridge to decide what can be done to repair the bridge.

Icy Roads Cause Mishap

Snow-covered roads were blamed for a two-vehicle accident Saturday on the Herrington Manor Road, just beyond the radio station.

State police report that Stavros Floudiotis, 31, Baltimore, was southbound, attempting to ascend a hill, when a vehicle driven by Mary Sisler, 28, Cranesville, traveling northbound, attempted to get out of the way of the spinning vehicle, and went out of control.

Southern Rescue Squad responded, transporting Mrs. Sisler, her passenger, Lori; and Floudiotis to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where they were treated and released.

with heart defects.

Grimm said that 57.6%, of the deaths from all causes in Garrett County are due to Heart Disease which is higher than the national average and should bring reason to the residents of the county why they should support the work of their local Heart Association.

The 10th Annual Educational Dinner to kickoff the Annual Heart Association Campaign has been set for Monday, February 1, 1982, at 6:30 p.m. at the Friendsville Fire Hall with the Friendsville Rotary acting as hosts.

Heart Sunday will be February 21, however, Grimm pointed out workers may begin collecting February 1, and should be finished by February 21.

Main Heart Sunday Headquarters will be the First National Bank of Oakland with Francis and Rita Grimm, Donna Shaffer, Dorothy Cathell, Merritt Feather, and Betty Wildesen coordinating the headquarters. The telephone number to call that day will be 334-9417. Other area chairmen for Heart Sunday will have headquarters in their areas.

An active Heart Volunteer for a number of years in both Garrett and Allegany Counties, Grimm is vice-president of the First National Bank of Oakland. A graduate of Fort Hill High School in Cumberland, he has received graduate degree from the Installment Credit School at University of Chicago. He has taught Installment Lending at Garrett Community College, and has completed courses at Allegany Community College in accounting, psychology, and business law. He is presently attending the University of Maryland School of Bank Management.

Grimm is treasurer of the Mt. Top Home Builders Association and is a member of St. Peter's Catholic Church, Oakland. He served two years in the U.S. Navy and two years in the active Navy Reserve. He is married to Rita C. Grimm. They have three children, Denise, Mark, and Kimberly.

Grimm said that any individual or group wishing to hold a special event or to help with the Heart Campaign may contact him at 334-9471, ext. 204.

Snowfall, Winds Cause Hazardous Driving Conditions

Snow and gusting winds yesterday and today made Garrett County highways treacherous and caused poor visibility according to police and roads department officials early this morning.

Three inches of snow reportedly fell yesterday, bringing the total to five for the week, coupled with high winds and icy roadways.

The snow emergency plan was put into effect at 3 p.m. yesterday by Maryland State Police, and overnight accumulation caused a two-hour delay in the start of school classes throughout the county. School bus arrivals were hampered, but county roads department officials said all crews and equipment trucks were out this morning plowing and cindering.

High and low temperatures and precipitation levels for the week were, Wednesday, high 47 degrees, low 31 degrees, 0 precipitation; Thursday, 38, 30, .02 prec. and a trace of snow; Friday, 43, 27, .06 prec.; Saturday, 36, 26, .12 prec. and two inches of snow; Sunday, 30, 23, .04 prec. and a trace of snow; Monday, 42, 18, trace of prec. and Tuesday, 45, 27, .11 prec. and three inches of snow. The overnight low was 19 degrees.

Thayer To Hear Carroll County Arson Charge

Judge Fred A. Thayer will hear an arson case scheduled for today, against Lee Thomas Barnes, which was transferred on a change of venue from Carroll County.

Barnes is charged with deliberately setting a fire which destroyed a Church of the Brethren warehouse in Westminster.

Jury selection began this morning, with testimony slated to begin this afternoon. The trial is expected to last through Friday.

On Dean's List

The Office of Academic Affairs at West Virginia Wesleyan College, Buckhannon, W. Va., has announced that Paul A. Naylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Naylor, Oakland, has been named to the Dean's List for scholarly achievement during the summer term.

Naylor, a senior, majored in business.

To be eligible for inclusion to the Dean's List, students at the end of each semester must have attained a term average of 3.35 or above, based on a four point grading scale.

Bolden Interview To Be Broadcast On Public T.V.

Delegate DeCorsey Bolden (R-Allegany, Garrett) will be the guest on the "In Person" show to be broadcast on the Maryland Center for Public Broadcasting television channel 36 Sunday, December 13, at 10 a.m.

During the interview, Bolden describes how he became involved in politics, and discusses his grandfather who served in the General Assembly in 1910 and his father, and tells of his relationship with other legislators.

Also discussed is Bolden's involvement in work to pass coal tax legislation for Garrett and Allegany counties.

The same interview was broadcast on November 15.

Gasoline Taken From Truck At Accident Garage

Another incident of theft of gasoline from a Garrett County Roads Department vehicle at the Accident Garage occurred Friday night, making a total of 11 such incidents since September.

The Garrett County Sheriff's Department reports that approximately 15 gallons of gasoline was removed from a county truck while it was parked in the front parking lot of the establishment, located on Route 219. No loss value was placed.

The Deer Park Roads Department also reported theft of gasoline from a dump truck while it was parked at Madigan's Auto Sales Garage on Sunday. The fill spout to the gas tank was cut off and an undetermined amount of gasoline was taken.

Zion School To Present Original Holiday Cantata

Zion School of Christian Education, Grantsville, will present a new and original Christmas Cantata by Zion Tabernacle Choir on at least four occasions during the coming Christmas season. Portions of the Cantata, "The Promise Revealed," were composed by Rev. George McDowell, Jr., who also arranged the Bible narration and adapted the remainder from existing music. The choir is composed of students of Zion School of Christian Education and members and friends of Zion Tabernacle.

The first presentation, under the direction of Rev. George T. McDowell, Sr., will be at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 17, at Goodwill Mennonite Home. At 8 p.m. the same evening, the Cantata will be repeated at Zion Tabernacle, Grantsville. Here it will be preceded by a youth choir singing traditional Christmas Carols.

Other presentations will be as follows:

At 7:30 p.m., on Dec. 18, at Cherry Grove Church of the Brethren on Route 219 North of Grantsville; and at 7 p.m. Dec. 20, at Our Father's House on Knobley Road, Keyser, W. Va. where it will be preceded by the host church youth program.

Persons may call (301) 895-5978 for information.

Area Gospel Group To Present Concert At Gorman Church

The Brotherhood Four and Peggy, a gospel singing group, will appear in concert at the Gorman Church of God, Route 50 near Red House, on Sunday, Dec. 13, at 7 p.m.

The concert will be the group's last appearance until the first of March. During February, the group will record for an album.

Singers in the church will also perform gospel songs during the concert.

The concert is open to the public.

Unique Christmas Customs From All Around The World

by Carol Kapel

Traditions, so legends say, are the basic ingredients of everyone's fondest holiday memories. The Christmas sights, sounds, aromas, and tastes that light up the face of a child will be recalled many years from now, and become the heartwarming nostalgia of an adult.

Traditions from other lands make interesting fireside conversations, and add to the enjoyment of the holiday. Children, especially, are curious about customs of gift-giving in other countries, and the portions of the holiday which are not observed by American families.

In Czechoslovakia, for instance, on Christmas Eve, children often make a bed of straw on the floor under the kitchen table to recall the humble birth of Christ.

In Lithuania, Christmas tree ornaments made from straw, are often shaped to form crosses and bird cages, which are hung throughout the home as well as the tree.

Mexican children are treated to the "pinata," (a gaily fashioned paper jar) which is filled with toys and sweet treats and suspended from the ceiling. The children are then blindfolded, and swing at the "pinata" with a stick, scrambling for the treats when it breaks.

Children in Brazil place their empty shoes and stockings on a window sill, since there are no chimneys, in the hopes that Santa Claus will leave their gifts.

A Polish tradition of leaving an empty chair at the Christmas dinner table for an unexpected guest, is still observed today.

Dutch children fill their famous wooden shoes with vegetables and carrots to feed St. Nick's horse. Hopefully, he'll leave gifts in place of the food.

Christmas carolers in Hungary carry with them a miniature church. When they are admitted into a house, they reenact parts of the first Christmas story.

Irish children leave their doors ajar and place a candle in the window to invite visitors to join the holiday festivities.

Because there are very few trees in Iceland, the people make their own tree with a center pole and sticks. Pieces of foliage are then attached to the framework and decorated as a tree.

Legend has it that Martin Luther brought the first evergreen into a home. He supposedly put candles on the tree to represent the stars in the sky on Christmas Eve.

The earliest Christmas tree in America, for which a documented description can be found, dates back to 1822 in Lancaster County, Pa. The branches were hung heavy with items we now would find unusual, however, what a spectacular sight it must have been. Branches were also used to display the family gifts, which might include handkerchiefs, stockings, baskets of candy, dolls, little wooden men, horses, and tiny books. See, there hangs a pair of new spectacles for Grandma! Strings of nuts, dried fruit, raisins, figs, apples, and oranges often decked the boughs, along with wax candles, and often, strings of red cranberries.

During the late 1800s, it became fashionable to decorate the tree with tiny cakes shaped like various birds, which seemed to hang, suspended, in everlasting song. The Doylestown Democrat of December 29, 1885, makes mention of the first known Christmas tree to be decorated using electric lights.

By 1868, strings of popcorn became symbolic as an emblem of our national abundance. Around the time of the civil war, pretzels adorned the Christmas tree. In 1890, simulated snow was thrown on the tree in the form of flour, sprinkled with diamond dust, applied to the wet branches.

Childcare experts say a beautifully-decorated tree at Christmas time is of inestimatable benefit to little folks. It attaches them to home, and instills fond memories that will cling for all the years to come.

GLOGG

Glogg is a traditional Swedish favorite, made with claret wine, sweetened with sugar and flavored with almonds, raisins, dried orange peel, cinnamon, cloves and cardamon. It is usually set afire before serving.

TRIM A TREE . . . The "togetherness" of Christmas is no more evident than in the gathering of young and old to prepare and trim the family Christmas tree. In many homes it is a tradition which makes Christmas more endearing with the passing of time.

Snyder

Snyder's accountant shows the amount due at $890. All property seized that day has been auctioned off by the government. During the trial Snyder showed slides of the seizure.

The Oakland man was on the witness stand a day and a half and the prosecution reportedly questioned him regarding his purchase of silver and loans he had issued. Snyder said his attorney, Arthur Tronokas, a tax lawyer from Georgia, said he had more evidence against the government in this trial than in any other, and it was the first tax evasion trial he ever lost. The Oakland man added that the defense produced so many people from the Oakland area who testified to IRS harassment, he feels the jury members did not want to be subjected to similar government persecution.

To add to Snyder's dilemma in Baltimore, his personal vehicle was broken into Thursday night outside the federal building when the jury began deliberations. Snyder said the car was unlocked and locked again evidently by the use of a master key, and a parka coat was taken from the vehicle. Snyder added that the glove compartment of the car was opened and its contents were found on the floor. The car of a spectator at the trial was also entered in the same manner, and a diary and tape recorder were taken.

Snyder, who was indicted on the seven counts in May by a federal grand jury, said he anticipates a sentencing hearing sometime in January or February.

He and his wife, Hallie, are the parents of three children. They reside on Route 219 near Swan Meadow School.

cause of plans to construct a sewerage system in the Deep Creek Lake area. He noted that with the construction of the system, there would be a change in the characteristics of the neighborhood because there would be more development.

Traffic flow would not be greatly changed, Wagaman said, because the entrance to Railey's proposed development would be along Rock Lodge Road and there would be no direct access to U.S. 219. He added that that section of highway has a higher capacity for traffic than actual use even during peak periods of the year.

The Commission members expressed concern about having some sort of control over actual development of the property and on whether relocation of U.S. 219 as proposed four years ago was actually a dead issue.

The Commission members voted to reserve making a recommendation to the county commissioners until January after they and their planning director had time to analyze the petition and discuss it again at their January 4 meeting.

Tim Dugan, planning director, noted that the commissioners must hold a public hearing on the petition before making a decision.

In other business, Dugan reported on a recent meeting between county and Maryland Department of Transportation officials. He stated there were no new construction projects planned for Garrett County within the next five years.

There were seven projects proposed for the department's special projects program. Those projects included: improvements on an access road and water treatment facility at the U.S. 219 interchange along U.S. 48; Monies allotted to reconstruction of the Potomac River bridge at Gormania, W. Va.; Safety and resurface work one-and-a-half miles east of Chestnut Grove Road to Savage River bridge along Md. 135; Reconstruction of the railroad crossing along Md. 560 between Mt. Lake Park and Loch Lynn; Landscaping east of U.S. 219 to west of the Lower New Germany Road along U.S. 48; and safety and resurface work on Md. 495 from Md. 135 to North Glade Road.

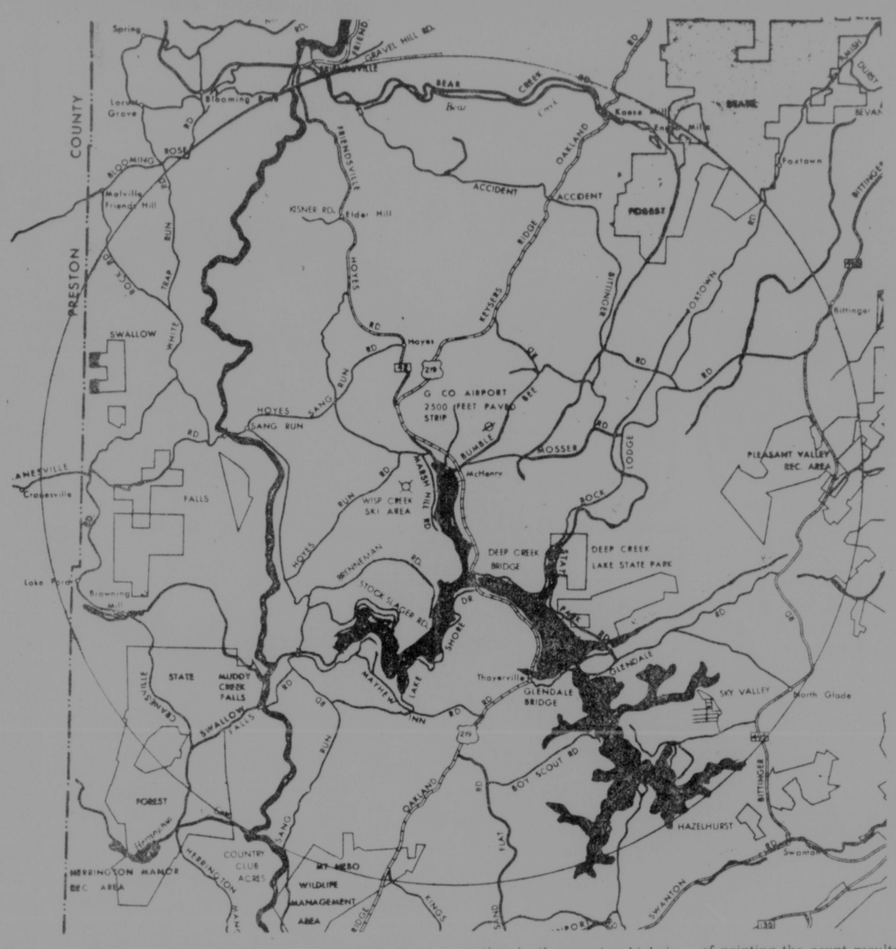
Local Annual Bird Count Scheduled For December 19



The annual December bird count, sponsored by the National Audubon Society, will be held Saturday, December 19, in the Garrett County area, according to Fran Pope, local coordinator. The count, which will run from midnight December 18 to midnight December 19, is one of 1,360 similar counts taken in the Western Hemisphere during the period December 19-January 3. 19-January 3.

The local count area, pictured above, includes Cranesville Swamp, Bittinger, Bear Creek, Swallow Falls, Mt. Nebo and McHenry.

Persons interested in participating in the count, which includes species and number, should contact Mrs. Pope at 334-4908. A charge of $1.50 per participant is asked by the Society to help defray the costs of printing the count results in the National magazine.

Mrs. Pope also stated that persons with bird feeders are encouraged to count numbers and species at their feeders.

Auto Accidents Investigated By State Police

Maryland State Police investigated several vehicle accidents around the district last week, including an incident involving an overturned coal truck.

The driver of the 1979 International, Reginald Lorraine Feaster, Maysville, W. Va., was southbound across the Deep Creek Bridge on Rt. 219 on Friday morning when the driver lost control at the end of the bridge, went through the guardrail, and overturned, spilling the coal in a partially dried portion of the lake bed.

No injuries were reported. Tfc. Dave Riggleman investigated the incident.

Two persons were charged by police with failure to keep right of center following a mishap on the Friendsville-Addison Road Monday afternoon.

David Wass, Addison, and Bertha J. Savage, Bruceton Mills, W. Va., both claimed the other had taken more than his share of the highway, causing the collision. Police were unable to determine who was at fault, since the roadway was wet, and did not have evidence of skid marks. Because of the lack of physical evidence and no witnesses, both parties were charged.

Baptists Plan Gospel Sing

The Deep Creek Baptist Church will hold a Gospel Sing this Sunday, December 13, at 7:30 p.m., featuring the Watchmen Quartet from Keyser, W. Va.

A free-will offering will be taken. The public is invited to attend by Rev. David C. Long, pastor. The church is located eight miles north of Oakland along U.S. Rt. 219 Deep Creek Lake.

Drunk Driver Arrests Noted

Maryland State Police and Grantsville Police Chief Frank Wilkins were responsible for five arrests for drunken driving during the week of December 3.

Those charged included Carl David Bradford, Jr., 54, Baltimore; Marvin Elwood Wiley, Jr., 21, Grantsville; Robert Kurt Cannon, 21, Wheaton; Patricia Rita Bornschlegel, 41, McHenry; and Judith Lorrain King, 38, Mt. Lake Park.

Tfc. Dale Williams, Tfc. Larry Resh, Tfc. J.W. Michael, and Wilkins made the arrests.

Legal Aid Bureau Notes December Outreach Schedule

The Western Maryland Office of the Legal Aid Bureau, Inc., will maintain an outreach schedule for persons in Garrett County in December, attorney Anne B. Wilson announced yesterday.

Staff members of Legal Aid will be available to discuss legal problems with persons at the following locations: Oakland, December 23, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m, Oakland Center of Garrett Community College; and Grantsville, December 21, 10 a.m. to 12 noon, at the Health Center.

Legal Aid Bureau, Inc., is a federally-funded organization of lawyers and other professionals which provides legal assistance in civil matters to qualified persons. The Western Maryland office was opened in December, 1978, to cover the need of low-income people in the three western counties of the state. Services are available free of charge to anyone whose income and property holdings are below certain federally-mandated levels.

The central office for the Legal Aid Bureau of Western Maryland is located at 110 Greene Street, Cumberland, and can be reached by dialing 334-8832.

Whenever possible, persons needing assistance should call to schedule an appointment for one of the outreach locations or for an appointment at the central office in Cumberland, Ms. Wilson said.

The Commission members voted to reserve making a recommendation to the county commissioners until January after they and their planning director had time to analyze the petition and discuss it again at their January 4 meeting.

Tim Dugan, planning director, noted that the commissioners must hold a public hearing on the petition before making a decision.

In other business, Dugan reported on a recent meeting between county and Maryland Department of Transportation officials. He stated there were no new construction projects planned for Garrett County within the next five years.

There were seven projects proposed for the department's special projects program. Those projects included: improvements on an access road and water treatment facility at the U.S. 219 interchange along U.S. 48; Monies allotted to reconstruction of the Potomac River bridge at Gormania, W. Va.; Safety and resurface work one-and-a-half miles east of Chestnut Grove Road to Savage River bridge along Md. 135; Reconstruction of the railroad crossing along Md. 560 between Mt. Lake Park and Loch Lynn; Landscaping east of U.S. 219 to west of the Lower New Germany Road along U.S. 48; and safety and resurface work on Md. 495 from Md. 135 to North Glade Road.

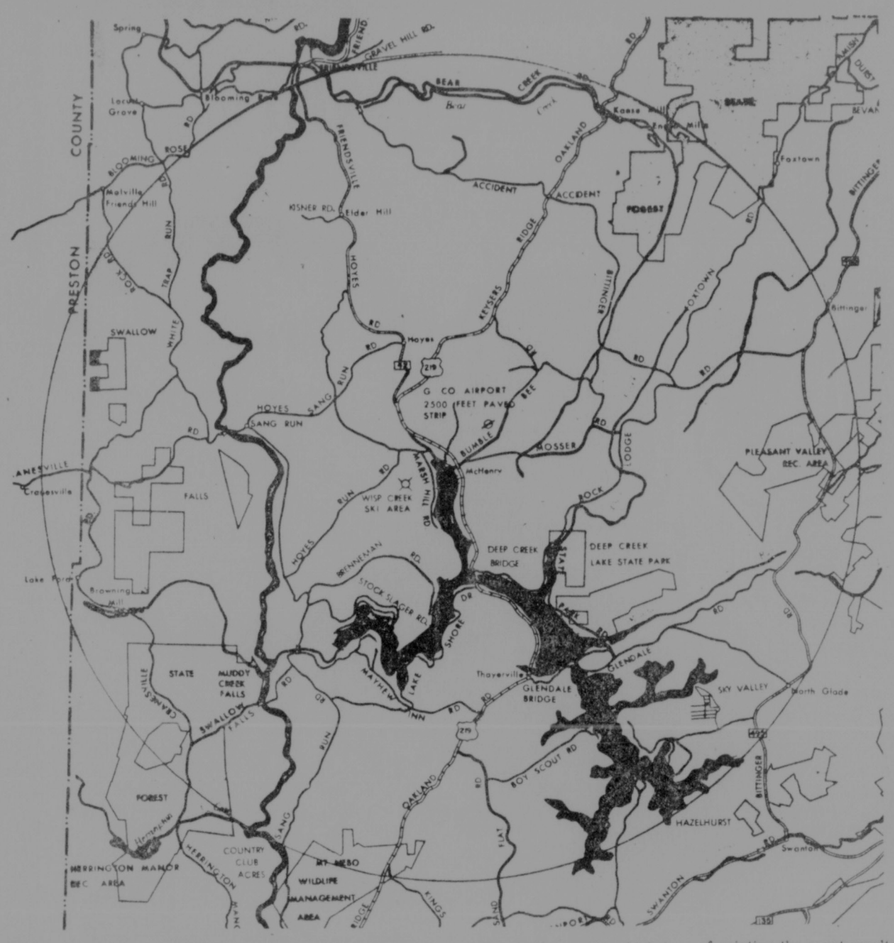
Local Annual Bird Count Scheduled For December 19



The annual December bird count, sponsored by the National Audubon Society, will be held Saturday, December 19, in the Garrett County area, according to Fran Pope, local coordinator. The count, which will run from midnight December 18 to midnight December 19, is one of 1,360 similar counts taken in the Western Hemisphere during the period December 19-January 3. 19-January 3.

The local count area, pictured above, includes Cranesville Swamp, Bittinger, Bear Creek, Swallow Falls, Mt. Nebo and McHenry.

Persons interested in participating in the count, which includes species and number, should contact Mrs. Pope at 334-4908. A charge of $1.50 per participant is asked by the Society to help defray the costs of printing the count results in the National magazine.

Mrs. Pope also stated that persons with bird feeders are encouraged to count numbers and species at their feeders.

Auto Accidents Investigated By State Police

Maryland State Police investigated several vehicle accidents around the district last week, including an incident involving an overturned coal truck.

The driver of the 1979 International, Reginald Lorraine Feaster, Maysville, W. Va., was southbound across the Deep Creek Bridge on Rt. 219 on Friday morning when the driver lost control at the end of the bridge, went through the guardrail, and overturned, spilling the coal in a partially dried portion of the lake bed.

No injuries were reported. Tfc. Dave Riggleman investigated the incident.

Two persons were charged by police with failure to keep right of center following a mishap on the Friendsville-Addison Road Monday afternoon.

David Wass, Addison, and Bertha J. Savage, Bruceton Mills, W. Va., both claimed the other had taken more than his share of the highway, causing the collision. Police were unable to determine who was at fault, since the roadway was wet, and did not have evidence of skid marks. Because of the lack of physical evidence and no witnesses, both parties were charged.

Baptists Plan Gospel Sing

The Deep Creek Baptist Church will hold a Gospel Sing this Sunday, December 13, at 7:30 p.m., featuring the Watchmen Quartet from Keyser, W. Va.

A free-will offering will be taken. The public is invited to attend by Rev. David C. Long, pastor. The church is located eight miles north of Oakland along U.S. Rt. 219 Deep Creek Lake.

Drunk Driver Arrests Noted

Maryland State Police and Grantsville Police Chief Frank Wilkins were responsible for five arrests for drunken driving during the week of December 3.

Those charged included Carl David Bradford, Jr., 54, Baltimore; Marvin Elwood Wiley, Jr., 21, Grantsville; Robert Kurt Cannon, 21, Wheaton; Patricia Rita Bornschlegel, 41, McHenry; and Judith Lorrain King, 38, Mt. Lake Park.

Tfc. Dale Williams, Tfc. Larry Resh, Tfc. J.W. Michael, and Wilkins made the arrests.

Legal Aid Bureau Notes December Outreach Schedule

The Western Maryland Office of the Legal Aid Bureau, Inc., will maintain an outreach schedule for persons in Garrett County in December, attorney Anne B. Wilson announced yesterday.

Staff members of Legal Aid will be available to discuss legal problems with persons at the following locations: Oakland, December 23, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m, Oakland Center of Garrett Community College; and Grantsville, December 21, 10 a.m. to 12 noon, at the Health Center.

Legal Aid Bureau, Inc., is a federally-funded organization of lawyers and other professionals which provides legal assistance in civil matters to qualified persons. The Western Maryland office was opened in December, 1978, to cover the need of low-income people in the three western counties of the state. Services are available free of charge to anyone whose income and property holdings are below certain federally-mandated levels.

The central office for the Legal Aid Bureau of Western Maryland is located at 110 Greene Street, Cumberland, and can be reached by dialing 334-8832.

Whenever possible, persons needing assistance should call to schedule an appointment for one of the outreach locations or for an appointment at the central office in Cumberland, Ms. Wilson said.

Rams Open With Loss To Beall; Then Defeat Fort Hill, 49-44

The Southern High Rams' 1981-82 season opened on a disappointing note Friday evening in Frostburg when the Rams were downed by Beall, 66-65. However, coach Tom Bosley's squad regrouped last evening and staged a rally to defeat visiting Fort Hill, 49-44.

The Rams held a 16-14 margin at the end of the first quarter against Beall, but the Mountaineers poured it on in the second stanza to take a 34-28 lead, an advantage they never relinquished. Beall led 48-41 at the close of the third period.

Jay Metz paced four Moutainneers who finished with double figures, scoring 22 points on 11 buckets. John Taylor contributed 12 points and Rick Eberly and Kerry Plummer, ten each.

Brian Selders led the Southern offensive attack, netting 21 points on seven goals and seven of ten free throws, while Kevin Winters hit 12.

Beall outshot the Rams 27-23 from the floor and connected on 12 of 27 free throws, compared to a ten-for-17 effort by Southern.

The Southern jayvee team won the preliminary contest, 37-24.

Against Fort Hill last night, the Rams were behind until Dave Harsh connected on a jumper with just 2:26 remaining in the game to put Southern on top for good. The Rams had been down 9-8, 22-19 and 36-31 at the quarters.

Harsh led the Rams in scoring with 18 points on six buckets and six of six at the foul line. He also was credited with 11 rebounds.

Gary Heginbotham also reached double figures for the Rams, netting 12 points on six goals.

Coach Bosley praised Tim Skiles for his defensive performance.

Leading the Sentinels in points was J.P. Warner, who finished with 12.

Both teams connected on 20 field goals, but Southern hit nine of 13 free throws while the Sentinels managed only four of ten.

Fort Hill was expected to be one of the toughest teams on the Rams' schedule, as all starters from last season's winning team returned this year.

The Southern jayvee team dropped the preliminary contest, 43-34.

The Rams will go back on the road Friday evening for a scheduled encounter with Allegany High in Cumberland.

Southern Girls Gain First Win In Two Seasons

The Southern High girls' basketball team, under new head coach Don Stemple, picked up its first win in two years Saturday afternoon by stomping Oldtown, 63-26, on Southern's floor.

The Southern gals were never threatened in the contest, holding quarter leads of 22-7, 32-12, and 50-16.

Sue Snyder paced the winners with 17 points, while Amy and Jennie Hillen finished with 16 and 13 points, respectively. Snyder also was credited with 13 rebounds.

Southern outshot Oldtown from the floor by a 26-10 margin and hit 11 of 24 foul shots, compared to a six of 21 effort by the losers.

The 1-0 Southern girls will host Allegany this afternoon at 4 p.m.

In Saturday's preliminary game, the Southern freshmen boys crushed Oldtown, 66-25.

GCC Plans Vermont Ski Trip For Credit

Garrett Community College has scheduled a trip to Killington, Vermont, for January 17-23. This year the trip may be taken for one college credit in Outdoor Education.

The price includes lodging, lift, intensive instruction on and off the slopes, two meals per day, and round trip transportation. The package fee is $330.00. Participants may elect to take the ski trip without credit for a $50.00 fee reduction.

Further information may be obtained by calling Carole Ann Lovett, trip coordinator, at 387-6666, 245-4133 or 359-9520.

Roundball Raffle And Shootout To Be Held At GCC

For the 1981-82 basketball season, the Garrett Community College Athletic Department will again feature a half-time shooting contest and raffle as a fund-raising measure for the College's general athletic scholarship program.

Gift certificates, merchandise, and cash prizes have been donated to the College by various county businessmen and businesswomen. During each home game, one of these prizes will be awarded to a ticket holder. The drawing for the gift certificate will take place during the first time-out of the second half.

Wynlyn's Edge Restaurant (Route 219) will also sponsor a basketball shooting contest for a ticket holder, with prizes ranging from a small cheese pizza to a $10 credit on food and drink. Walt's Tips Up Ski Shop (McHenry) will give a $25 gift certificate to the winning ticket holder who can make a basket from the top of the foul key. Additional prizes will be given away in a similar fashion. These shooting contests will be held during half-time of each GCC basketball game.

Everyone with a season ticket will receive a free raffle ticket and additional tickets may be purchased. Anyone attending the game may purchase tickets. Winning ticket holders must be present at the time of the drawing to be eligible for prizes. Shooting distances for Wynlyn's and Walt's have been determined by the respective donors, subject to the discretion of the Director of Athletics.

Contributors to the raffle include: Proudfoot's Pharmacy, Heck's, Bowman's Equipment Company, Green Acres Garden Center, Point View Inn, Lake View Exxon, Fratz Red & White, Englander's Pharmacy, Davidson's Army and Navy, Deep Creek Realty, Marvin's Men's Wear, Oak-Mar Restaurant, Mid-Town Cinema and Accident Garage.

Huskies Topped By Valley, 49-37, Rebound Against Salisbury, 68-50

The Northern High Huskies dropped a 49-37 decision Friday night to defending Class C champions, the Valley Black Knight, in Lonaconing, but regrouped Monday night and whipped Salisbury, 68-50, on the Pennsylvanins' floor.

Northern fell behind 10-3 against Valley at the end of the first quarter and never was able to narrow the gap, being down 29-14 at the half and 36-24 going into the final stanza.

Ted Winner led the winners with 25 points on 11 goals and three for three at the foul line. Lonnie Gardner also finished in double figures for the Black Knights, netting 11 points.

Mike Holtschneider was the only Husky to reach double markers, hitting 12 points on six field goals.

The Black Knights out-shot the Huskies from the floor, 21-18, and connected on seven of 12 free throw attempts, compared to a one-for-two effort by Northern.

In the preliminary game, the Northern jayvees were defeated by their Valley counterparts, 48-21.

Brad Yoder found the mark against Salisbury Monday evening, sinking 24 points on 12 goals, while Lowell Yoder hit 13, Stan Eggleston, 12, and Tim Yunker, ten points.

Northern was up by only two at the end of the first quarter, 14-12, and by just three at the half, 27-24, but ripped the nets for 28 points in the third period, compared to a 12-point effort by Salisbury. The Huskies led 55-36 heading into the fourth stanza.

Rod Tissue led three Salisbury players in double figures, finishing with 21, while Eric Yoder and Bill Yommer contributed 15 and ten, respectively.

The Huskies held a 28-23 margin from the floor and sunk 12 of 20 free throws, compared to a four-for-eight effort by Salisbury.

In the preliminary contest the Northern jayvees were edged by Salisbury, 25-22.

Coach Harv Speicher's Huskies will return to action this Friday evening by entertaining Beall.

Lakers Suffer Disappointing Week; Fall To Potomac State, Beaver

After securing a pair of wins in their own preview tournament last month, the Garrett Community College Lakers fell into the losing column this past week, dropping decisions to Potomac State last Wednesday evening, 97-84, and to Beaver Community College on Saturday, 91-67.

The Lakers jumped out in front of the homestanding Catamounts, 18-13, early in the contest, however, the Cats knotted the score at 19-19 and pulled away for a 47-35 halftime lead.

Bill Bender led a surge for the Lakers early in the second half to bring Garrett within five, but the Cats regained the momentum and maintained about a ten-point lead throughout the remainder of the contest.

Six members of the winning team finished in double figures. Kevin Healey scored 22 points; Anthony Amendola, 21; Gary Justice, 15; Keith Attenberger, 14; Tommy Martin, 13; and Rich Peggues, 11.

Bender paced the Lakers' offensive effort with 21 points while Dennis Goodson was close behind with 20. Shawn Finney netted 16.

The win was the third in as many starts for Potomac State.

Garrett's Jeff Burton led all scorers in the contest at Beaver with 25 points, but the Lakers never really threatened the Pennsylvanians, trailing by 16 at the half.

Other Lakers finishing in double figures were Bill Bender and Kevin Phillips, who scored 12 each, and Tom Johnson, who hit ten points.

Leading the winners' scoring were Frank Salopek and Tom Edwards, who netted 24 and 23 points, respectively.

Coach Randy Hess's 2-2 Lakers will travel to Cumberland this evening for an 8 p.m. game with powerful Allegany Community College.

Coming January 1, 1982 . . .

A tax cut for any wage earner who wants one! The IRA

New tax law lets you save thousands of dollars in taxes while you save for your retirement.

One of the best tax saving plans provided by the new tax law is the expanded Individual Retirement Account (IRA). Beginning January 1, 1982, the door will be open to many persons who were not eligible before, and contribution amounts have been raised.

You should consider setting up an IRA plan in January, if you don't already have one. Here's why.

• You can have an IRA, even though you may already be covered under a company pension or profit sharing plan. Before, if you were a participant in such a plan, you were not allowed to have an IRA of your own. But, beginning January 1, 1982, you can set up your own IRA and make deposits to it totaling up to $2,000 per year.

• The annual IRA contribution has been raised to $2,000, up from $1,500. To a person in a 30% tax bracket, a $2,000 deposit into an IRA would save $600 in taxes. The chart below shows the annual tax savings possible for four different tax brackets:

Tax Bracket	Your Annual Contribution	Your Annual Real Cost	Your Annual Tax Savings
20%	$2,000	$1,600	$ 400
30%	2,000	1,400	600
40%	2,000	1,200	800
50%	2,000	1,000	1,000

If a husband and wife both work and each deposited $2,000, the joint savings would be doubled.

• The compounding of interest, tax sheltered in the IRA can really add up. Let's assume you would make the maximum deposit of $2,000 per year, and that you would receive an average rate of interest of 12% annually on your funds. Here's how your IRA would grow over the years:

After	Your Contributions	Total Value of your IRA
5 years	$10,000	$ 14,226
10 years	20,000	39,298
15 years	30,000	83,490
20 years	40,000	161,376
25 years	50,000	298,640
30 years	60,000	540,548
35 years	70,000	966,926

Again, if a husband and wife both work and each deposited $2,000, the total value of your IRA would be doubled.

• "Spousal" IRA limits are boosted to $2,250. If you have a non-working spouse, you'll be allowed to contribute $2,250 annually, and the funds no longer have to be evenly divided between spouses. You could put in up to $2,000 for the benefit of your non-working spouse, and a divorced spouse could deposit up to $1,125 a year from alimony.

• IRA funds are insured at First National.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation insures all deposits, including IRAs, at The First National Bank of Oakland.

• Two easy steps to getting your IRA started at First National. Because we realize that most people can't afford to deposit large sums all at one time, First National has made it easier for you to get your retirement plan started.

Step One: We can set up a special "IRA Passbook Account" for you. This account will permit you to make deposits in any amount as often as you wish. The IRA Passbook Account earns 5¼% per year, compounded and tax deferred. It lets you accumulate funds until you have enough to get an "IRA Certificate of Deposit."

Step 2: Once you have accumulated $500, you may get one of our "IRA Certificates of Deposit*" which yield a much higher rate of return. There are several different IRA Certificates to choose from—all require a $500 minimum deposit, but the months to maturity and the interest rates are different. When, at some point in the future, you have accumulated $10,000 of deposits and maturing certificates, you may wish to convert to our "IRA Money Market Certificate of Deposit." This six-month instrument has a fixed rate which is tied to 6-month Treasury Bill rates, and it allows you to reinvest every six months.

Contact any First National office for the current rates, and more specific information about IRA Certificates of Deposit.

Earns Awards In Baton Events

Aimee Moyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Moyer, Oakland, recently earned several awards in baton competitions held in Morgantown, W. Va., and Latrobe, Pa.

She was awarded two first place trophies for twirling solo, age to 6; third place trophies for modeling; and fourth and fifth place medals for basic strut and solo.

She is a member of the Sterling Strutters baton corps, of Oakland, under the direction of Brenda Brosnihan.

Elks To Sponsor Tenth Hoop Shoot

Elks Lodge 2481, Oakland will sponsor its tenth annual Hoop Shoot Contest at Garrett Community College on December 12 at 9 a.m.

There will be a boys' division and girls' division, with three age categories in each: 8-9, 10-11 and 12-13.

Winners of the local tournament will compete in the District event in Hagerstown.

Persons desiring more information may call Bob Few at 334-9191.

Thousands of spectators witnessed the Battle of Bunker Hill. They sat on rooftops, in treetops, on church steeples, and in the rigging of the ships in the harbor.

"MARYLAND AND MAINE IN WATERCOLOR" is the title of an art exhibit of works by Jim McNeil to be displayed at the Ruth Enlow Library, Oakland, throughout December. The display includes this painting of a fishing shack in Maine. McNeil is employed by Communications Skills Company, based in Alabama, and his work takes him all over the country, instructing technical writing courses through the federal government. The collection pf paintings displayed is enhanced by sensitive, personal notes written by the artist, who holds bachelor's and master's degrees in English. McNeil stated that many of the paintings included in the exhibit were sketched on location during a two-week painting workshop in Maine which he attended last summer. A teacher for 25 years, McNeil is also a veteran of World War II. Having begun painting just six years ago, he has mastered a distinct variety of carefully executed techniques in watercolor.

This peaceful portrayal of Mother Nature's splendor is among several watercolor paintings by Jim McNeil, 60, of Columbia, on display at the Ruth Enlow Library in Oakland through the month of December. McNeil, who said he began "tinkering with" watercolors about six years ago, paints realistically, mostly from photographs or earlier sketches on location. Married 11 years to the former Nelda Harvey of Oakland, who he said does most of the matting and framing for his work, McNeil said he paints every day when he can. The couple travels to Garrett County frequently and some of the works displayed at the library were painted from scenes in Western Maryland, which he terms a "fertile source for sketching and painting subjects." This delightful and talented artist, who is exhibiting his works for the first time, said he prefers painting landscapes and seascapes, and he particularly enjoys farm scenes. He said both he and his wife were born and raised on farms, and "have a close affinity for nature," which is evident in his work. McNeil said he has "a passion for painting" and sees it as an attempt to interpret nature and "one of the ways we hope to give ourselves and others viewing pleasure."

CRIME SOLVERS

Call 334-3111
Reward $100-$1000

This week, the Maryland State Police are investigating the Crime of the Week.

Tfc. Gary Berkebile reports: Information is being sought leading to the arrest and indictment of the person or persons responsible for the breaking and entering and theft of Charlie's Bargain Center, Rt. 135, Altamont, on April 1, 1980.

The culprits entered the building and removed a safe containing $2,000 in cash. The empty safe has since been recovered.

All leads in this investigation have been exhausted and Crime Solvers is seeking the help of the public. Anyone having information on this crime or any unsolved crime is asked to call Crime Solvers at 334-3111. It is not necessary to give a name or appear in court. If the tip leads to the arrest and charging of the person or persons responsible, the caller will be eligible for a cash reward of up to $1,000.

Crime Solvers also pays for information leading to the capture of wanted persons, as well as persons involved in unsolved homicides, rapes, burglaries, and assaults. All information will be kept strictly confidential, and callers may remain anonymous. Information may be given by calling 334-3111.

State Police File Variety of Charges

Five juveniles were arrested on December 1 and charged by Maryland State Police with the breaking and entering of the Longstretch Fruit Market, Rt. 40, west of Frostburg.

Tfc. Carl Skidmore reported that a quantity of food items and cigarettes were removed from the establishment.

The investigation is continuing.

A destruction of property and larceny was reported by Thomas Humphrey, Swanton, on December 3.

According to police, the victim's pickup truck, which was parked at Wynlyns restaurant, was entered by forcing open a vent window, and a Craftsmen tool box containing miscellaneous tools and equipment was stolen. Also taken was a game call and a camera. Value of the loss was estimated at $183.00, plus damage to the vehicle.

Tfc. W.W. Rice is conducting the investigation.

James Montague, McHenry, told state police that he discovered his apartment had been entered sometime during the Thanksgiving holidays.

The culprits broke a window to gain entrance, and reportedly cooked a meal, slept in the bed, and used additional items belonging to the victim. The apartment, part of the Mountain View complex, McHenry, has been entered three times since October, according to reports.

Tfc. J.W. Michael is investigating.

A Crofton man, Gary Joseph Field, 18, was charged Wednesday on a criminal summons with shoplifting by the McHenry Beverage Shop.

According to the report, Field concealed a bottle of rum under his coat, and was observed by a store employee.

A charge of assault and battery has been filed aga nst Joesph Eugene Gilpin, 29, Swanton, by Frances and Wilmer Sweitzer, also of Swanton.

According to police, the victims discovered Gilpin, and Jim and Roger Beckman in a garage on the Gilpin Farm on Big Run Road, east of the New Germany Road, with the carcass of a female deer he was about to butcher.

An argument between the parties ensued, and law enforcement officers from the Maryland State Police and the Department of Natural Resources Police were notified.

Tfc. Ronald George, MSP, and Tfc. Richard Towers, DNR, are investigating.

Citizen Group Seeks Members Public Support

Garrett County Crime Solvers met Thursday, December 3, in the community room of the First National Bank of Oakland.

Routine business was discussed, under the leadership of William Burke, vice-chairman, and William Ferry, chairman of the organization.

Several local citizens were cited for contributions of cash, materials, and time. Included were Paul Wampler, owner of the Town and Country Print Shop, Janice Hileman, owner of Jan's Hair Stylist, Friendsville; and First National Bank of Oakland, who presented a cash donation to the group. Cash donations were also received from Mr. and Mrs. Ray Sisler, Friendsville, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cupp, also of Friendsville.

The group commended the recent citizen participation, and is taking part in a membership drive during the month of December to encourage increased interest by the public.

Posters and telephone information labels are currently being distributed throughout the county in an effort to further acquaint the public with the existence and purpose of the organization.

Persons interested in more information about Crime Solvers are asked to call 334-3111. The next meeting will be held January 7, in the First National Bank of Oakland community room, at 1:30 p.m.

PET POINTERS

If you change your car's antifreeze and leave the liquid in an uncovered container or drain it on to the driveway, you may be risking poisoning your pet, according to the Maryland Veterinary Medical Association.

The main ingredient of automotive antifreeze is ethylene glycol which, owing to its sweet taste, is often drunk by dogs and cats.

The ethylene glycol can cause permanent kidney damage by forming crystals in the kidney tissue.

The typical poisoned dog or cat will show some or all of the following signs: weakness, trembling, vomiting, depression, infrequent urination, or possibly blood in the urine.

If you suspect that your pet has ingested some antifreeze, see a veterinarian immediately. The earlier treatment is begun, the better the chance of averting death. Even with aggressive veterinary therapy, this type of poisoning may be fatal.

For every ten gallons of fuel oil you burn, you may waste four.

At more than a buck a gallon, who can afford that?

(DEALER INQUIRIES INVITED)

Your old, inefficient oil burner may turn as little as 60% of your expensive fuel oil into useful heat.

But a new INTERburner™ replacement oil burner is highly efficient, because its exclusive, patented Turbo-Reversed Air System burns hotter, cleaner. And puts nearly every drop of oil to work where it can do the most good - heating your home.

Some INTERburner owners report cuts of up to 40% in oil consumption (without "dialing down"). That means, if you used 1000 gallons of fuel oil this heating season, INTERburner could save you up to 400 gallons next season.

An INTERburner runs whisper quiet. It even saves on electrical bills, because its Interrupted Ignition uses only a fraction of the power other burners need.

Since it's an energy-saving product, an INTERburner qualifies for Federal Energy Tax Credits on your income tax.

And every INTERburner is UL-listed and factory-fired for your peace of mind. It's made in U.S.A. and parts are readily available.

You've wasted enough expensive fuel oil. It's time to talk to your local Qualified INTERburner Installer. He's a pro. A graduate of the intensive INTERburner training program.

He'll give you a free energy audit of your present oil heating system. And tell you how much you can save with INTERburner.

Financial Aid Meeting Slated At Southern High

There will be a financial aid meeting in the Southern High School cafeteria on Monday, December 14, at 7 p.m. for all students who plan to attend college in the future, according to Mrs. Pam Peddicord, Southern High guidance counselor.

The director of the financial aid office of Frostburg State College will attend the meeting and explain the Financial Aid Form (FAF) in detail, as well as answer questions about grants, loans and scholarships. The information will be applicable to all colleges, not just Frostburg State according to Mrs. Peddicord.

The meeting is "especially important" for seniors and their parents, Mrs. Peddicord said, and for juniors who plan to attend the academics or selective college.

Persons wishing to attend the meeting are asked to contact the Southern High School guidance office at 334-9447. Specific questions should be directed to Mrs. Peddicord.

Delta Kappa Gamma Holds Auction For Scholarship Fund

The annual auction of the Garrett County chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma netted a total of $518.75, according to a spokesman for the group. The auction, which involves the sale of craft and food items, was the main feature of the December 5 luncheon meeting of the chapter, held at the Will O' the Wisp, Deep Creek Lake.

The money raised from the auction goes into the scholarship fund of the chapter, which provides scholarships to county female students seeking a career in teaching.

County Vocational Rehabilitation Obtains Long-Awaited Counselor

by Kathy Railey

The Division of Vocational Rehabilitation recently placed a permanent counselor in the local office, Joe Blanco, 29, of Cresaptown, who was promoted to a counselor level V on November 25. Blanco said he hopes "to re-establish service in the Oakland office," which has apparently suffered since July.

The local office of Vocational Rehabilitation was among others in the state caught up in a shuffle apparently resulting from anticipated federal budget cutbacks. The Garrett County office was perhaps affected to a greater degree because it was the only office with one counselor (and no clerical staff) at the time the division began cutting its counselor staff from 181 to 124 statewide, including the lay-off of Oakland's existing counselor on July 7.

Although the office has gone through many changes in the past several months, J. William Eberly, supervisor of the Cumberland and Oakland offices, states that, "The office never really shut down," it just hasn't been manned consistently on a full-time basis during the state's attempts to find a replacement. The office, has however, made use of call-forwarding to the Cumberland office in the absence of a counselor here.

When the lay-offs began in July, Blanco was sent to man the Ellicott City office, but he maintained his home in Cresaptown. Blanco is still required to serve the Ellicott City office one or two days a week, but says he can presently guarantee service to Garrett County Wednesday through Friday from 8:30 to 4:30 p.m. Eberly said that hopefully by January the position at Ellicott City will be filled, and he added that the days when Blanco is not in the Oakland office, he will be manning it, unless he is required to attend a training workshop. In addition, Eberly and Blanco began last week interviewing applicants for a part-time secretarial position at the Oakland office.

The Division of Vocational Rehabilitation is the only agency in Garrett County which provides direct services to persons with disabilities in need of physical restoration, job training, vocational testing and employment services. The division requires reasonable expectation that applicants for services can obtain employment following rehabilitation, job or college training.

When the division realized an impending deficit in the spring, results of a reassessment of the entire program called for a level V counselor in Garrett County's one-person office, who could act as a supervisor when necessary. The existing counselor, Charlotte Griffith, who supervised the operation of the Oakland office for one and one half years, was at a level III. According to Joe Onder, state director for case services, some 200 employees were demoted or eliminated from the program on the basis of seniority, and Eberly said that all offices in the state were affected.

When Ms. Griffith left in July the office was serving an average of 200 clients whose cases were prioritized prior to the counselor's departure. Clients were also informed that the office would be staffed with a new counselor from Frederick by July 22 and no later than August 1, but that counselor did not come into the office until August 10. He handled cases prioritized based on the need of immediate services, and was then transferred back to Frederick September 30.

Eberly stated that when the office was not manned full-time he traveled here two days a week, Tuesday and Friday, manning the office from about 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Reports indicated that the counselor assigned here during August and September maintained similar hours, as he also traveled from Cumberland. Eberly said that not all clients have been contacted since the lay-off, but added that if a client has a need he/she can contact Vocational Rehabilitation at the Oakland number which rings into the Cumberland office if Oakland's office is vacant, or if the call-forwarding is not operating clients can call the Cumberland office directly at 77-2119, collect.

According to Onder, the changes in Vocational Rehabilitation came about when the division experienced an approximate $2 million shortfall in its 1981 budget. He said the cutback affected counselor staff, supervisory staff, specific programs at institutions, clerical staff and case services. Eberly said the division is now primarily concerned about severing severely disabled, a number one priority since the Rehabilitation Act of 1974, which was also the year the Garrett County office opened full-time.

The local office has been attempting to cut the total client caseload down to be able to fully serve severe disabled persons, who often need more than one service, Eberly added. The local office currently handles a caseload of 144, with 22 referrals to review. Onder said about the same amount of money for case services will be allocated to counselors this year as was allocated last year, once again dependent upon the caseload.

"The blind are affected terribly," Eberly said, noting that one of this region's two full-time blind specialists was taken out of the budget this year. There is one rehabilitation specialist (who is blind) handling five counties at this point, who comes to Garrett County upon demand, about once a month. Eberly added that there are other facilities available to the blind if persons want to travel out of the county to get them, such as the Maryland Rehabilitation Center in Baltimore and services in Cumberland. Onder said the division has requested reinstatement of a blind specialist in this region in its 1983 budget, but that position would be predicated on whether money is available.

Onder added that he definitely foresees more financial problems and that he has no idea what money will be allocated for Vocational Rehabilitation in the future. Others within the division said they feel the shuffle is not over.

NEW COUNSELOR ASSIGNED TO GARRETT COUNTY — Joe Blanco, 29, was recently assigned as the new permanent counselor with the Garrett County Vocational Rehabilitation office located in Oakland. The assignment came after Blanco was promoted to a counselor level V position. Blanco has been with the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation since September, 1973, beginning with the educational unit in Hagerstown. In 1976 he was transferred to Cumberland to provide general case load services and work in high schools. Blanco holds bachelor's and master's degrees from Frostburg State College in education, and is a 1969 graduate of Bishop Walsh High School, Cumberland. He is a member of the Cumberland chapter of Knights of Columbus, the American Federation of State and County Employees, the Athletic Board at Bishop Walsh High School, and St. Patrick's Catholic Church in Cumberland. He and his wife, Maureen, and their two children reside in Cresaptown.

State Forests Provide Trails For Snowmobilers, Cross Country Skiers

by Michael R. Gregory,
Forest Naturalist
Maryland Forest Service

Few can argue that Garrett County provides unique opportunities for winter recreation that can not be found in any other portion of the state. Due to the cold climate and heavy snowfall, the region is an ideal location for such winter activities as cross-country skiing and snowmobiling. Each year the number of tourists and area residents who engage in these activities seems to increase. As a result of this increase, there is a great need for the development of suitable trail systems throughout the country to meet this recreational demand.

At present, the 75,000 acres of state forest and park land in Garrett County are the primary sites for most cross-country skiing and snowmobile trails. For the past decade the Maryland Forest and Park Services have built and maintained trails for the use of skiers and snowmobiles. In January of 1980 snowmobilers could find approximately 34 miles of designated trails, varying in length from two to six miles. Additionally, cross-country skiers could find about ten miles of designated ski trails on the three state forests and four state parks. Realizing that this amount of trail was proving insufficient to meet the demands of skiers and snowmobilers the Maryland Forest and Park Services began to work on the expansion and improvement of their trail facilities.

The state forests recognized that snowmobilers were more interested in being able to travel long distances rather than running short trails. As a result, plans were made to establish a trail from the northern part of Savage River State Forest, running south along Meadow Mountain, to Deep Creek Lake State Park, a distance of approximately 23 miles.

Much of this trail was to travel over state owned land, however, due to the area's terrain it was nescessary to travel through approximately six miles of private land.

Construction of the trail on state property began in September of 1980. At that same time personnel from the Maryland Forest and Park Services began to negotiate with private landowners for recreational easements or purchase of their land in order to complete the trail. To date the forest and park services have secured agreements and constructed the trail over all but three parcels of private land.

Negotiations are still proceeding, however, the trail cannot be considered complete until a route of travel can be secured through or around these three parcels of land. For the upcoming season snowmobilers will be permitted to run portions of the newly constructed trail. Snowmobilers will be able to travel from the northern terminus of the Meadow Mountain Trail due south to a point one half mile below the Frank Brenneman Road. Additionally, snowmobilers may be operated on the designated trail out of Deep Creek Lake State Park to a point three miles northeast of the Thayerville Tower.

The Maryland Forest Service has also attempted to improve the existing snowmobile trails on the state forests. For example, a three-mile section of trail was added onto the trail system on Garrett State Forest. This trail will provide snowmobile enthusiasts the opportunity to travel over a much larger area than was previously available.

Snowmobile operators are reminded that they must obey all Department of Natural Resources regulations while operating their sleds on state owned land and must ride only on designated trails. Trespassing onto private property could endanger legal agreements made with private landowners.

This, in turn, may result in landowners barring their property to snowmobile traffic in the future.

Cross-country skiers will find several new trails open for their use this year in the New Germany and Herrington Manor areas. The opening of these trails is due in large part to the efforts of the Potomac Appalachian Trail Club and a newly formed county ski club. Both clubs have generously donated their time and energies to establish new trails on the state forests and parks.

Volunteer programs such as these will be a key factor in providing more snowmobile and cross-country trails in future years. The state forests and parks are experiencing reductions in their work force along with ever-tightening budgets. As such, it becomes very difficult to develop and then maintain new trails. However, volunteer groups can provide the necessary manpower that allows for the expansion and improvement of a trail system. Usually, these groups will spend one weekend a month clearing brush, building bridges, or removing debris from the trails they plan to use. As a result, these groups can do much to improve the trail system in any forest or park.

The Maryland Forest and Park Services are committed to improving the recreational opportunities on the state forests and parks in the county. Current budget and manpower limitations dictate that we investigate new avenues through which we can provide for the public's recreational needs. Regardless, the state forests and parks of Garrett County will continue to provide a major recreation area for both cross-country skiers and snowmobilers.

Conversations on Carpeting

Brought to you by
Carolyn & Butch Helbig
Who say
"A Floor without a Rug is like a Kiss without a Hug."

IS IT A GOOD VALUE?

Last time we talked about the differences between cost and value in carpet selection. We said that a carpet's wearability is more important than its initial cost. Today, I'll give you some hints on how to tell if that carpet you're considering is a good value.

First, do you like it? Does its color and texture appeal to you? Don't buy a carpet just because the price is right. You'll tire of it too quickly and perhaps discard it before you've gotten your money's worth.

Next, consider carpet construction. Is its pile dense or skimpy? If it's dense, you've chosen a quality carpet that should wear well. Less density means less wearability.

How about fiber content? Is it made of fiber known for stain-resistance? You'll need this if you're selecting kitchen carpeting. Is it made of a fiber that can take a lot of punishment yet not show wear? You'll need this in heavy traffic areas. Don't forget to check the backing. A quality backing can add lots of life to your carpeting.

When selecting carpeting, remember that we at Roderick's can be your best friends. We're well thought of in the business community, so be sure to include us in your shopping.

Maryland Legislative Districts—

Reapportionment Committee Calls For Separate Plans For Congress, Assembly

ANNAPOLIS (UPI) — Gov. Harry Hughes' Advisory Committee on Reapportionment harmoniously finished its work Tuesday by unanimously recommending to the governor separate reapportionment plans for Congress and the General Assembly.

The five members of the committee commended each other for tackling the politically sensitive task in a nonpartisan way, and for insuring that blacks in the state continue to have representation both in Congress and in the state legislature.

Hagerstown's Barbara Fetterhoff, the lone Republican on the committee, joked that the panel had taken the advice of one citizen who recommended that it adopt a plan no one will be happy with.

In the end, the final maps that will be forwarded to Hughes differ only in minor ways from the maps presented at a pair of public hearings the last two weeks.

Despite their claims of nonpartisanship, perhaps the committee's most significant 11th hour change involved a Carroll County-Baltimore County district that Democrats had complained would have been a "sweatheart district" for Republicans.

The original plan would have combined the rural — and heavily Republican — northern portions of the two counties into one legislative district without an incumbent state senator.

The senator who now represents northern Baltimore County, Democrat Francis X. Kelly, had complained his constituents had more in common with the rest of the county than they had with the neighboring county to the west.

State Democratic Party Chairman Rosalie Abrams also had complained purely on partisan grounds.

The committee redrew the lines, but said it did so not for political reasons, but because the northern Baltimore County residents needed a state senator to handle their problems in the county seat in Towson.

House Speaker Benjamin L. Cardin, D-Baltimore, a panel member, said he opposed the switch, but nevertheless smiled broadly as he tried to dismiss it as merely "a philosophical change."

Although minor adjustments of precinct lines were also made in Baltimore and elsewhere, about the only other substantial change involved a pair of Howard County precincts that had formed part of the border between Democrat Barbara Mikulski's 3rd congressional district and Republican Marjorie Holt's 4th.

One precinct, which includes some of the older parts of Elkridge, were switched from Holt's district into Mikulski's, and a southeast Columbia precinct that had been in the Mikulski district was moved into the Holt area.

Ms. Fetterhoff said she had attended all 23 commission meetings, had driven 5,000 miles on committee business, had "worried, prayed and agonized" over various decisions, but proclaimed, "No one told me how to vote."

She said she accepted the task because, "It's too important a job not to do."

Cardin said the plans "give greater opportunities to minorities in the state" and said committee's series of public meetings meant that, "The lines literally were drawn by hundreds of people."

Senate President James Clark, D-Howard, another panel member, praised Hughes' selection of Treasurer William S. James as the committee's chairman, but otherwise only said, "I'm tired of the subject."

Former Maryland Governor

Mandel, Sentence Commuted, Takes Job With Anne Arundel Developer

Will Be Set Free On Dec. 20.

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Former two-term Gov. Marvin Mandel took a job Tuesday with Charles J. Cirelli and Sons, an Anne Arundel County general contractor involved in real estate development and construction.

Mandel, 61, who said he had been "straining at the bit to get back to work," said he was enjoying his first day at work and planned to stay with the firm.

Mandel's sentence for mail fraud and racketeering was commuted by President Reagan last week and Mandel will be free Dec. 20. In the meantime, he's living in a Volunteers of America halfway house in east Baltimore.

He left the facility early Tuesday morning and did not have to report back until 10 p.m. Tuesday night, a condition only allowed those who have a job.

Mandel said he would be involved in real estate development and financing at the firm, just 10 miles from his home in Annapolis.

"The principals in the company had mentioned to Mrs. (Jeanne) Mandel they would be interested in hiring me to work once I was released and I was only too glad to accept the position," he said.

He would not say how much the job paid.

"This is something I really enjoy. It's just great to get back to work. I've been straining at the bit to get back to work and do something useful," he said.

Baltimore Mayor William Donald Schaefer offered Mandel a job in the city finance department Friday, the day Mandel returned to his home state, but the former governor turned it down.

Mandel then said he wanted to work close to his Annapolis home, but a plan to have him transfered to an Anne Arundel halfway house has been abandoned.

Mandel was convicted in 1977 and was to have been held at Eglin Air Force Base, near Pensacola, Fla., until May 1982.

Mall Reverses Decision; Permits Salvation Army Collection Inside

SALISBURY, Md. (UPI) — Owners of the Salisbury Mall Tuesday backed off a decision barring Salvation Army troops from soliciting Christmas funds inside the shopping center, with bells ringing and kettles swinging late in the day.

Mall manager John R. Moxley said troops were allowed inside following a Monday vote by owners of the facility. He did not explain why the owners changed their position.

The earlier decision restricting the Salvation Army to a spot outside the shopping centered angered local residents and prompted an outpouring of critical letters to the editor and irate calls to local radio stations.

Maj. Paul Kellner, secretary of the Salvation Army in Maryland, agreed that was uncomfortable for soldiers to stand out in the cold. He added that collections drop drastically when kettles and bells are set up outside, rather than inside.

Moxley had said mall policy prohibited fund solicition on the property.

16-Year-Old Charged In Murder Of Carroll County Girl

FINKSBURG, Md. (UPI) — State police Tuesday arrested a 16-year-old boy and charged him in the death of a Carroll County girl who was shot at a classmate's home.

Cecil L. Redman Jr., the object of an intensive search Monday following the fatal shooting of 17-year-old Ingrid Bernhard, was found about 7:45 a.m. in a a wooded area southwest of Finksburg.

Redman allegedly fired the shot that killed Ms. Bernhard around 3 p.m. Monday as she talked with friends at the home of a classmate from Westminster High School. Police said several shotgun blasts fired from outside shattered a picture window in the house, one of those shots hitting Ms. Bernhard in the chest.

Police charged Redman with first-degree murder, attempted murder and burglary. They describe the youth as a "very unstable loner" with a lengthy record of juvenile offenses.

Homicide investigators would not speculate on the motive for the killing, but said it appeared Ms. Bernhard was not the intended target of the shooting.

GE Delays Recalls To Columbia Appliance Assembly Plant

COLUMBIA, Md. (UPI) — General Electric Co. Tuesday blamed slow appliance sales for a decision to delay by one week the recall of more than 2,000 workers at its local plant.

The 2,200 laid-off workers were scheduled to return Jan. 4, 1982, but now will be recalled Jan. 11, the company said.

GE spokesman Thomas Neal said that despite the Christmas rush for appliances, the recession has slowed sales so drastically that the workers won't be needed until large inventories are reduced.

The Columbia plant formergy had 2,350 workers, but shut the plant last month and furloughed 2,200 employees. The remaining 150 lost their jobs permanently.

Nationally, GE has laid off 15,000 workers in recent months because of the slump in appliance sales.

Conservatives Elect New Head For Montgomery Co. Education Board

ROCKVILLE, Md. (UPI) — The Montgomery County Board of Education's conservative majority Tuesday elected Eleanor Zappone as board president for the coming year and Suzanne Peyser as vice-president.

The election drew criticism from the board's liberal minority. Board member Blair Ewing said the four conservatives on the seven-member body had agreed before the meeting who to elect, an action he called "clearly unethical."

Mrs. Zappone is serving in her first term. After the election she said the board "cannot afford the luxury of personal rivalry or vindictiveness."

The board has recently been the center of controversy over its decisions to close many schools. Critics charged the board often did not take racial balance into account in deciding which schools had to close.

And in neighboring Prince George's County, the school board voted unanimously Monday night to name Doris Eugene, of Beltsville, its chairman for the next year. She replaces Joann Bell.

The board also voted to make Angelo Castelli, of Oxon Hill, its vice-chairman.

Ms. Eugene and Castelli have been board members since 1978.

Three Suspects Apprehended In Robbery; $25,000 Stolen

GLEN BURNIE, Md. (UPI) — Police apprehended three suspects in the robbery Tuesday of an Anne Arundel County bank branch in which an estimated $25,000 was stolen.

There were no injuries in the holdup of the Irvington Federal Savings and Loan in Glen Burnie and the suspects were taken into custody shortly afterwards. The money was recovered.

County police said the men were arrested after a plain-clothes detective spotted an automobile matching the description of the getaway car on the Baltimore-Washington Expressway.

Lhe suspects were pulled over and arrested without incident. Firearms and cash were seized from the vehicle, police saaid.

Those arrested were identified as Phillip R. Brown, 24, of Gambrills; and Timothy Dyer, 22, and Grey Williams, 25, both of Washington, D.C.

The three were charged with bank robbery and county police said other, related charges were pending against them.

Pimlico Sets 112th Meet

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Pimlico Race Course announced Tuesday the schedule for its 112th annual meeting to begin March 13, a 60-day season with stakes events valued at a minimum of $960,000.

The card includes six graded events, four stakes on the turf, two $100,000-added races and the Preakness Stakes, the second leg of Triple Crown that will be run for the 107th time May 15.

The Preakness purse, with entry and starting fees boosted by $3,000 to $5,000, is expected to top the record $270,800 it carried last May when Buckland Farm's Pleasant Colony won the race.

Pimlico is projecting a total purse distribution of about $6 million for the 60 days,

Howard Co. Sign Law Amended; Entrance Granted Reprieve

ELLICOTT CITY, Md. (UPI) — Old King Cole, the Foot Long Hot Dog and other landmark fixtures marking the entrance of The Enchanted Forest have been granted a reprieve.

By a 4-1 vote, the Howard County Council Monday night decided to amend a zoning ordinance that would have required many of the signs at the amusement park's entrance to be torn down by next March.

Legislation passed in 1972 said merchants had 10 years to remove the signs that didn't conform to new zoning regulations. But the council Monday modified the law to exempt signs erected before 1972.

Howard E. Harrison, owner of The Enchanted Forest, said he was glad the fanciful signs at the park have been spared.

"It (the council decision) saves businessmen an awful lot of money. It would have involved at least $50,000 or $60,000 to change my signs," said Harrion, noting that his signs have entertained motorists on Route 40 for the past 26 years.

Keith S. Franz, a lawyer for county merchants affected by the sign laws, said he was pleased with council's decision to amend the sign law.

"Although the sign law is still strict, the council's action was fair because when the merchants erected their signs, they were doing nothing wrong," he said.

The sign law is one of the strictest in Maryland, limiting both the size of the sign and how close it can be placed to the road.

Prisons Will Run Out Of Space For Inmates, Report Says

TOWSON, Md. (UPI) — Maryland prisons will run out of the room needed to house all of the inmates in the state before the end of December, the Secretary of Public Safety and Correctional Services said Tuesday.

Thomas W. Schmidt said, "We will be looking for beds in the next couple of weeks. We need the space now."

As of Dec. 3 the state had 9,876 prisoners. A recent prison construction plan proposed by Gov. Harry Hughes would give the state a total of only 9,800 prison cells by 1990.

Schmidt said inmate population is increasing far faster than the projections of most experts and concedes "it probably will be over 11,000 before it levels off."

The current upswing in the number of prisoners began in March when Schmidt assumed control of the state's penal system. Schmidt reversed the policies of his predecessor, Gordon C. Kamka, who tried to reduce prison overcrowding through work-release and early-parole programs.

Paroles have decreased 26 percent since Schmidt took office, while the number of inmates coming into the correctional system has risen 10 percent. The Maryland inmate population has grown an averaage of 150 inmates per month since April.

Schmidt said some possible plans to deal with the immediate overcrowding problem include:

— Placing portable trailers on the grounds of the Maryland House of Correction in Jessup.

— Putting two inmates in cells designed for one in the bottom tier of cellblocks at the Maryland Correctional Training Center in Hagerstown.

— Making dormitories out of four more basement rooms at the Maryland Correctional Institution in Hagerstown.

— Asking the U.S. District Court in Baltimore to reverse previous court orders barring the state from increasing inmate populations at the correctional system's older prison facilities.

"Battle For The Bible" Shapes Up Over Science Vs. 'Creationist' Views

ACLU Suit Holds Arkansas Law Is Unconstitutional

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — Scientists dissecting Arkansas' creation-science law word-by-word testified that no scientific evidence exists to back up the theory as explained in the statute or as presented in literature.

Requiring teachers to give balanced treatment to creation-science and evolution would be "dreadfully wrong" because creation-science "is not science," said Francisco Ayala, a genetics professor at the University of California at Davis.

The American Civil Liberties Union has filed suit against Arkansas' creation-science law saying creation-science is nothing more than religion and, as such, violates the constitutional separation of church and state.

The state defends the law by saying creation-science can be supported with evidence that is at least as scientific as evolution. Only that evidence would be used in the classroom, state lawyers say, because Arkansas' law specifically forbids religious instruction.

Testimony in the trial was scheduled to resume today.

Ayala and geologist Brent Dalrymple gave detailed scientific testimony Tuesday to discount creation-science writings that they said were based on outdated or discredited research, were erroneous or were deliberately misleading.

Dalrymple, who tested moon rocks for the U.S. Geological Survey, said he particularly objected to creation-scientists' claim that the earth is no more than 20,000 years old.

"I put that in the same category as the flat earth hypothesis and the hypothesis that the sun goes around the earth," he said.

Ayala, who was a Catholic priest until 1966, said language in the creation-science act was taken from the Genesis story of creation.

Sen. James Holsted, D-North Little Rock, testified that his willingness to introduce the bill in the Legislature last spring grew from his personal religious beliefs.

Holsted testified to the fact that the bill passed the House and Senate with virtually no debate. The bill was signed by Gov. Frank White, a born-again Christian, who later said he had not read all of it.

a pipe on the West Virginia plant site of the Mt. Top Public Service District, constructed to provide water for the Kitzmiller Water Project. The amount borrowed jointly from First National Bank and Garrett National Bank was in the amount of $110,000, but extensions and interest have increased the amount to $135,000.

Beitzel informed the commission that the Department of Housing and Urban Development will not fund any work prior to their involvement with the project, but he said the funds can be obtained by some other funding source. The federal government requires, however, that all HUD funds be used before funds from other agencies can be dispersed for the project. The commission therefore authorized an eight-month renewal of the notes, as money is not available at this time.

G. Wallace Caulk, state director of the Farmers Home Administration, announced this week that the Kitzmiller Sanitary District is the recipient of an Appalachian Regional Commission grant in the amount of $57,500. The funds for construction of the town's water system will be handled through FmHA.

Previous funding through FmHA, announced in November, 1977, includes a loan of $248,000 and a grant of $422,000. Project funding also includes a HUD block grant in the amount of $244,000. The number of water subscribers to be served by that project is 216.

In other business, Earl Quance, administrator of the State Health Department's Construction Grants and Permits Program, informed Beitzel that no grant action will be taken on the proposed Route 135 transmission line because effluent parameters for the Youghiogheny River have not been established. At a November meeting Quance, who is to establish the parameters, informed local officials that a determination would be made by Thanksgiving. Beitzel noted that the state has had that transmission line grant application since April. He added that nothing can be done with the Upper Youghiogheny Facilities Plan or the Mt. Lake Park interceptor line until those effluent limitations are set.

Quance further informed the commission that a study conducted on the Bausch and Lomb treatment plant by Stearns and Wheeler is not grant eligible, as it was initiated without authorization. Beitzel said the study could have been grant eligible, but no letter of intent was sent to the state prior to its completion by the previous Sanitary District administration.

George Mason of Western Maryland Associates informed the commission December 1 that the Gorman Water Project is basically completed. All lines and service connections have been completed and the system is ready for customer hook-up. The commission agreed to bill water customers for tap fees prior to connections, and to inspect service line connections.

Ruling Favors Minister Over State School Laws

GLEN BURNIE, Md. (UPI) — A fundamentalist minister who has battled the county school system to keep his children out of public schools may legally teach them in the church basement, a county judge ruled Tuesday.

The Rev. Richard Offer, his wife Nora and 150 members of the House of Prayer for all People Church near rural Harwood, Md., cheered the verdict in Anne Arundel District Court with cries of "Thank you, Jesus" and "Amen. Amen is right."

"I never had the intention to send my children back (to public school). And my intention done got stronger now. God didn't entrust his children to no one except their mom and dad," said Offer, who has nine children.

Fred Snowden, executive director of the Maryland Association of Christian schools, said the ruling was a "landmark victory. State law has spoken. We provide our children a superior education and the state has no right to control our schools."

District Court Judge George M. Taylor said the 12 children taught by Offer in the church basement were getting sufficient schooling and there was no violation of an order issued Aug. 17 that the children be schooled.

The county Board of Education contested that ruling, saying the school had no state sanction, but Taylor, a Mormon whose father was a Baptist preacher, ruled in favor of Offer.

Offer, 47, said the schools were corrupting his children and three other parents, also members of the church, began sending their youngsters to the school.

Offer said the schools are an environment filled with "drugs and free sex" and said the "law of God" won in the case.

"It's just not possible for anyone to obey God and be a Christian if they go to public school. We thank God and give him all blessing and honor and glory," he said.

The U.S. Mint will produce 13 billion coins this year—including pennies, nickels, dimes, quarters and half-dollars.

RECEIVES SCHOLARSHIP — The recipient of the Oakland Civic Club Scholarship this year is Ruby J. Collins, a full time coal mining technology major at Garrett Community College. Recently she was interviewed by Public Broadcasting Systems (PBS) regarding why she is going back to school and why she is entering the mining field. At left is Mrs. Helen Carstens, president of the Civic Club of Oakland, presenting the award. At right is Clara Kirk, Financial Aid Officer at Garrett Community College.

October Jobless Rate Highest Ever Recorded

Maryland's October unemployment rate of 7.4 percent marks the highest rate ever recorded in Maryland for that month of the year. According to statistics released by the Maryland Department of Human Resources, this compares to 7.2 percent in September and greatly exceeds the 6.1 percent recorded in October 1980.

Garrett County's rate, however, dropped from 14.1 percent in September to 12.7 percent in October. The 1980 October jobless rate for Garrett County was 11.2 percent.

Normally, Maryland's unemployment rate is noticeably lower than the rate set nationally. Since July, however, the state trend has been to equal or to be no more than 0.1 percentage point lower than the national rate.

Specifically, the number of persons unemployed in October rose above the September figure by an estimated 4,346 and exceeded the number of persons unemployed last year by 27,823.

In addition, the civilian labor force declined while the number of persons employed in October fell from the September total by 15,152 persons. Employment declines were felt particularly in manufacturing, construction, trade, services and federal government jobs.

In the Baltimore Metropolitan Area the unemployment rate rose slightly from 8.4 percent in September to 8.6 percent in October. Employment decreased by an estimated 2,219 persons and the jobs most affected fell within the areas of agriculture, manufacturing, construction and the federal government. The number of persons unemployed increased by 2,349 while seasonal hiring by public schools caused a gain in local government employment.

In the Baltimore area counties the unemployment rate remained virtually the same while in Baltimore City the rate inched up from 10.7 percent in September to 10.8 percent in October.

Employment in the Washington, D.C. Metropolitan Area subsided by an estimated 6,281 persons and the unemployment rate raised slightly from 4.7 percent in September to 4.8 percent in October. Most affected were jobs in agriculture and agricultural services, construction, eating and drinking places, real estate and amusement and recreation services.

Unemployment in Western Maryland increased from 9.3 percent in September to 9.8 percent in October. Employment declined in agriculture and manufacturing including non-electrical machinery manufacturing and outnumbered seasonal hiring by schools.

In Southern Maryland and on the Eastern Shore, seasonal declines in employment were most obvious in Worcester County where the unemployment rate jumped from 7.2 percent in September to 12.2 percent in October. This rate reflected an employment drop of 3,638 persons and a jump in unemployment by 645 persons in that area.

shepherd

Whoever he is, wherever he is — I respect this man.

Naturally I respect anyone whose presence can bring calmness and peace where there could have been confusion and turmoil.

As for me, I'm just a writer. With others I've been writing on behalf of the Church — with conviction and enthusiasm — for many a year. Rarely until now have I written in the first person.

But this picture challenges one to identify himself. On this rocky hillside teeming with restless life only one is master, guide, guardian of all.

I share with you the common realization. I am not that one. We share too the simple faith that knows: The Lord is my Shepherd.

DIABETICS ENDANGERED BY FOOT PROBLEMS
Infected corns, callouses, problem ingrown toenails, thickened toenails with ulcers at shoe pressure points, fungus and bacterial infections are the most common foot problems associated with diabetes.
To help overcome the lesser healing powers of most diabetics, strict cleanliness is a must. Strong antiseptics, and the usual patent corn and callous remedies should be used only with the approval of a physician or podiatrist. Cleers and infections require immediate attention by a physician. We can cooperate with your physician and podiatrist by supplying any product they may prescribe or suggest.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

HUMAN-PLUS
December 13, 1981

Background Scripture:
Matthew 8: 18-22; 9: 1-8; Mark 8: 31-33; 14: 61-65.

Devotional Reading:
Matthew 3: 1-12.

We've noted some of the titles by which Christians refer to Jesus. But have you ever stopped to think about the one title Jesus almost always used in referring to himself?

Although Jesus permitted his disciples to call him Christ, the Messiah, even the Son of God, he never once said "I am . . . " any of these. Neither did he say "I am the Son of man," but, according to the Gospel accounts, there are many times when he refers to himself in the third person with that title. For example, in Matthew 9: 1-8, when the scribes have rebuked him for forgiving the paralytic, Jesus says: " . . . that you may know that the Son of man has authority on earth to forgive sins," and proceeded to heal the man. Later, when the high priest asks him: "Are you the Christ, the Son of the Blessed?", Jesus replies: "I am; and you will see the Son of man sitting at the right hand of Power . . . " (Mark 14: 61, 62).

The Son of Man

So, "the Son of man" was the one title that Jesus used in referring to himself. Why this title and what does it mean?

Once again, it is a title that defies a clear definition. Essentially it was a term that meant "a man," a "human being." It seems, then, that at least one reason Jesus used it was to emphasize his humanity.

This is evident in Matthew 8: 18-22 when Jesus says, "Foxes have holes, and birds of the air have nests; but the Son of man has nowhere to lay his head." His use of the term here indicates not only his humanity, but his humility. Later, at Caesarea Philippi after Peter has confessed him as "the Christ," Mark tells us: "he began to teach them that the Son of man must suffer many things, and be rejected by the elders and the chief priests and the scribes, and be killed . . . " (8: 31). This is another indication of his vulnerability as a human being. Jesus as the Son of man shares our humanity and knows our feelings of frustration, powerlessness, and inadequacy. When he referred to himself as the Son of man, he said, in effect, "I am one with you."

The Right Hand of Power

There was also, however, another meaning that came to be attached to the term "Son of man." In the literature of the times the "Son of man" was anticipated as one who would be elevated to become the judge of all humanity. A human being, it was believed, would become or be something more than human or perhaps would lift humanity to a new level. Thus Jesus could say to the high priest, "You will see the Son of man sitting at the right hand of Power, and coming with the clouds of heaven" (Mark 14: 62). The humble human being would be glorified by the power of God.

Someone has said, "Jesus became what we are so that we might be what he is." In Jesus the Son of man we see what God intends for humanity to be.

PROGESS WITH PROJECT BASIC

by David W. Hornbeck
State Superintendent of Schools
Maryland State Department of Education

School year 1981-82 is well under way. And this year, for the first time, all public schools in Maryland have included Project Basic competencies in their curriculum.

Another important first in Project Basic is that every graduating senior next June, except those who are handicapped, will have had to pass the Maryland Functional Reading Test to get a diploma. Also required are 20 credits of English, science, math, social studies and electives.

In case you are not familiar with it, Project Basic is Maryland's competency based instruction program. It is designed to insure that all graduates can read, write, do arithmetic and possess certain skills in work, citizenship, arts/physical education and other survival skills such as consumer skills and those needed to conduct personal finance.

Initiated in 1977, Project Basic has several objectives. First, it sets a concrete minimal and measurable standard. No longer should we encounter any graduate who cannot, for example, read and fill out an employment application. Project Basic insists that meeting those standards is a prerequisite to graduation. It gives greater substance and meaning to the high school diploma. Second, its significance goes beyond the minimum standard embodied in the test. The idea of standard-setting itself is being reasserted and applied to other courses and school work. To achieve one standard raises expectations in other parts of the school curriculum.

Third, Project Basic emphasizes important values embedded in the constitution, history and tradition of the United States. For example, the citizenship component includes the importance of respecting the property of others, the significance of voting, understanding other people. The work component serves to underscore the work ethic. The work competencies are those important to all of us, such as punctuality, following supervision, giving a full day's work for a day's pay, and being concerned with product quality.

The part of Project Basic which is complete is reading. And we have already begun to see its benefit. Reading achievement scores in both nationally normed tests (Iowa and California) and the Functional Reading Test continue to go up. Tests in math and writing will be field tested this fall as well as those in work, citizenship, and survival. As they are validated, passing them will become a prerequisite to graduation.

Some ask why it's taking so long to put this program in place. The answer is that Project Basic is an instructional effort first, not a testing program. We want to make sure that students have been taught what they should know. The objective is not to withhold diplomas (though that will happen). It is instead to give greater substance to the diploma as school systems across the state work with students having difficulty.

The product of Project Basic is a raised floor beneath the efforts of all twenty-four Maryland school systems to improve student performance, to achieve educational excellence, to provide all students — the handicapped, the average child, the gifted youngster — the kind of instructional program which allows each of our 750,000 young people to reach their potential.

Holiday Park Closings Noted

The Maryland Forest and Park Services have issued a reminder that all day use areas in state parks will be closed Wednesday, December 23, 1981 through Thursday, December 31, 1981. The parks will be open New Year's Day.

State park campgrounds, in four distinct geographic areas of the state will be open for primitive winter camping, including Big Run State Park with limited sites available. Big Run State Park is on the northern tip of Savage River Reservoir, in the heart of the Savage River State Forest in Garrett County.

Crime Solvers Now Offering Speaker's Bureau

Garrett County Crime Solvers met Thursday, December 3, making known the existence of a speaker's bureau which is available to clubs, organizations, church groups, and civic structures.

Members of the citizen sleuth group are anxious to make their presense known in the county, and hope to make personal appearances before groups to explain the service Crime Solvers offers.

In addition to paying cash rewards for aiding law enforcement officers, the organization gives residents an opportunity to participate in actual solving of crimes and adding a measure of personal effort to the decrease in loss from theft, breaking and entering, assault, and more serious forms of crime.

Crime Solvers has distributed posters and literature to all parts of the county, and will answer questions on the Hotline, 334-3111, at any time.

Persons interested in hearing a speaker from the organization are asked to contact William Ferry chairman, at the Hotline number listed above. Arrangements will be made to have a representative at a meeting to detail all the facts and explain just how the program works.

It's YOUR Money

By Randle A. Rodeheaver

THE WORKING WIFE

Why do wives go to work?

For most it's the need or lure of extra money. Many families must have the additional income to meet today's living expenses. Others use it to help buy a home or build up a college fund, or for such extras as a second car or a summer home.

Any other reasons?

A job may be more stimulating than housework. It may also provide a sense of self-sufficiency and accomplishment. A newly-wed living in a small apartment may find that she has plenty of time she wants to use gainfully. A wife with older children at school or college may be in almost the same position.

Does it pay to work?

What's left of the second income after costs may fall short of expectations. Income-tax withholding, social security, and other payroll deductions take a big bite out of the paycheck. So do the extra expenses in connection with the job—carfare, lunches, more clothes, household help. There may be more eating out, more time-saving but expensive convenience foods.

What problems can arise?

If the family lives up to the second income or incurs additional obligations, it may run into difficulty if the extra income is cut off. Trying to run a household and a full-time job may be too taxing physically and emotionally for some wives. A husband may resent the fact that his income needs supplementing, especially if his wife makes more than he does.

What about part-time work?

That may minimize many of the problems and still provide a satisfactory amount of extra income.

More than one-half of all wives now work, with the number increasing steadily. Apparently more and more are finding that the pros outweigh the cons.

TV PEOPLE

Ricky Schroder stars in 'Lord Fauntleroy'

The small boy in the starched, white nightshirt stood on the canopied bed in the blue room of England's historic Belvoir Castle.

"Am I done?" he asked.

"Yes, Ricky. That's a take," was the reply.

"Hey, mom," shouted the youngster, jumping up and down on the gilded antique bed. "I did it in four takes."

Before mom could reply, he was gone across the floor, past the coal-burning fireplace, and into an adjoining playroom that was filled with toys children in the late 1800s enjoyed — from a large rocking horse the size of a small pony to marble marbles, grotesque puppets and a croquet set.

"He prides himself in never having taken more than five 'takes' to do a scene," said the mother of Ricky Schroder. Ricky, then 10, was filming the starring role in the adaptation of "Little Lord Fauntleroy," which was first broadcast Nov. 25, 1980.

The special will be rebroadcast on CBS Tuesday, Dec. 15. Alec Guinness also stars in the film.

Ricky, who achieved star status as a result of his performance in the remake of the motion picture "The Champ," is, according to his mother, Diane Schroder, "totally uninhibited by cameras because he has grown up with them," having started his career in commercials at the age of 3 months.

Ricky Schroder

"We (she and her husband, Richard, an executive with New York Telephone Co.) were not sure we wanted Ricky to go into acting," said Mrs. Schroder. "We had been against it. Then, Ricky was auditioning for a toothpaste commercial in the same building in which they were casting 'The Champ.' We stopped by, and it all just more or less happened.

"He has changed very little," she noted. "He is as full of energy as ever, and as interested in sports as his friends. He goes to public school and is involved in everything. He's a member of the Little League. He bowls, plays soccer, tennis. He's crazy about science-fiction games.

"We try to keep his life as normal as possible. And we keep the family together."

Ricky was accompanied to England by his mother and teen-age sister, Dawn, who also was reared on commercials and does some modeling as well. His dad flew over for long weekends and vacations.

"If we felt there was too much pressure being put on Ricky, we'd put an end to the acting," continued Mrs. Schroder. "But he seems to enjoy it and still be able to live a full, normal life; and he has missed very little school. I think there is more pressure put on some children in Little League games."

Movies for Moore; award for Lahti?

By Cindy Adams

NEW YORK — Mary Tyler Moore is looking to do movies from now on... The drums are already beating for a best supporting actress award for Christine Lahti for "Whose Life Is It, Anyway?"... The candidates for the international casts due soon for "Sophisticated Ladies" are: Sammy Davis, Richard Pryor, Ben Vereen, Billy Dee Williams, Lou Rawls... My pal Virginia Graham has a new syndicated five-times-a-week half-hour TV show that will tape out of New York.

Muhammad Ali

Jackie Gleason

Jackie Gleason: "Anthony Quinn marinates a role. He gets into the guts of the guy he's playing. Not me, Quinn says I act like I'm picking grapes off a tree."

Muhammad Ali swears he has no desire for fame and fortune and the only reason he wants to un-retire is to show the world there's no disgrace to being 40... Cynthia Freeman, whose best-seller "No Time for Tears" just pulled two mil for the pocketbook, said she's OK financially nowadays. Said the San Franciscan: "Let's just say that for the rest of my life I'll be able to afford $150 a day at the Plaza Hotel"... A while back I wrote that Raquel Welch and Andre, her husband, were looking for a pad in New York, a house in the country, a trailer, something, anything — as long as it was on the East Coast. A lady who lets rooms in Long Island wrote to me saying that they're welcome at her place... Robert Duvall bought a five bedroom co-op in the big apple... Lowell Thomas' widow, Marianne, is moving from the 52-room mansion in upstate Pawling to a small apartment in the big apple... Some superstars are insisting on clauses providing bodyguards. Some spend $500,000 a year for such protection.

The selling power of actors' images

By Ruth Thompson

You're watching a television commercial and you think you hear a familiar voice speaking as the unseen narrator. You think it could be Raymond Burr? If you're tuning-in to a solemn plug for a New York brokerage house, you could be right.

Why do some "big" names choose to do the non-endorsement commercials?

Because the money is good. Even without their up-front plugging of a product with their on-camera, visible presence, some of our top actors and actresses are recognized by advertising agencies as having "what it takes to sell." Burgess Meredith has such a voice. So has Tammy Grimes, the sensuous husky voice-over for a battery of products, including cosmetics.

Those voices pay well... and so, of course, do the endorsement commercials.

Before she was hired as one of the three original "Charlie's Angels," Jaclyn Smith (who recently starred in a docu-drama as Jacqueline Bouvier Kennedy) ran through fields with her dark hair blowing — a symbol of what could happen to you if you used the right shampoo. This year, Ms. Smith — as herself — is doing a sultry hard-sell for perfume.

Men and automobiles are a whole separate field. The guys are often aficionados of their brands.

But Gene Barry, who in his series "Burke's Law" became known as a fan of Rolls Royces, sells Fords on television. What about the Rolls Royces? Oh, he still owns one. But mostly he drives Ford's prestige vehicle, a Lincoln.

And a product, service or event doesn't have to be of nationwide interest to draw star talent as a spokesman.

Jaclyn Smith

Patrick O'Neal, the suave star of many television shows (and also the owner of a string of restaurants) is known across the country as the advocate of pleasant-music stations. In the New York-New Jersey area he speaks of WPAT. It's been estimated that by now he has endorsed as many as 60 others. He explains: He doesn't live in all those areas but he's checked out the music policy. It's all to his taste.

That major movie star Lauren Bacall has two kinds of commercials going for her.

Nationally, she speaks out on behalf of a mass product — coffee. And in the New York area, she's pitching jewelry (the real stuff, not costume fakes) with wit and style and, all in all, in a manner that can only enhance her current status as the star of the Broadway show, "Woman of the Year," a part that won her a Tony award for best musical actress.

THE BLACKHEARTED GRINCH again reveals the "arsenic in his soul" and the "termites in his smile," on "Dr. Seuss' How the Grinch Stole Christmas" to be rebroadcast Wednesday, Dec. 16 on CBS.

Ashby Adams fits well in his doctor's role

By Nancy M. Reichardt

NEW YORK — Princeton, N.J., native Ashby Adams has joined the cast of "The Doctors" in the role of Mike Powers. Adams made his daytime debut in "All My Children" and has also played a doctor on "As the World Turns."

It would seem that his new role as Dr. Mike would be extremely appropriate, too, since Ashby was a pre-med student at Lafayette College and did graduate work in physiology at Rutgers University before becoming an actor.

After traveling in regional theater productions like "Camelot," "The Lion in Winter," and "The King and I," Ashby and his wife Christine have settled down to life in New York City.

Dr. Joyce Brothers, who has appeared on soaps before, recently portrayed herself for a two-week stint on "As the World Turns." In the story, Dr. Brothers' old friend Dr. Bob Hughes (played by Don Hastings) asked her to visit Memorial Hospital to counsel some young victims of PCP-laced marijuana.

Philece Sampler (Renee Dumonde on "Days of Our Lives") was married last September to this season's new "Three's Company" star, Brad Blaisdell.

The official word is out — the next show going off to Europe on a shoot is "All My Children." All the details as to which cast members will be joining in on the trip weren't available at press time, but the location is going to be Switzerland.

Stephen Schnetzer (Marcello Salta on "One Life to Live") is currently appearing in the Round About Theatre's production of "Miss Julie."

Robert Alda

"Days of Our Lives" actor Robert Alda, who plays Stuart Whyland, has been spending his spare time off the set helping his wife, Flora, tout her new celebrity cookbook, "99 Ways to Cook Pasta." Endorsed by several other Hollywood well-known names, the book's collection of wonderful recipes has a preface by Alan Alda ("M*A*S*H" star and son of Robert and Flora), plus 50 delightful autobiographical stories.

You can obtain your own copy by writing to: Flora Alda, 712 Wilshire Blvd., Suite 100, Santa Monica, CA 90401. The cover price is $9.95 plus $1 for handling.

ASK ME ABOUT TV

By Val Carew

BIG FAN — Can you please help me to find James Arness' address? He's been a great favorite of mine for 28 years and I would like to write and tell him so. — Cheryl Ritchie, So. Beloit, Ill.

Sure can, because big Jim is returning to television this season in "McClain's Law," a new NBC series. It's being filmed out of MGM Studios, so write him in care of the show at MGM, Culver City, CA 90230. Jim has been a major factor in a lot of television fans' lives for many years.

James Arness

OH NOAH — Please tell me something about Rick Springfield, who plays Noah on "General Hospital." Where I can write him? — Betsy PaPura, Amsterdam, N.Y.

Tall, handsome Rick Springfield was born in Sydney, Australia, and he grew up on Army bases in Australia and England. His father is a retired Lt. Col. As well as being an actor, Rick is also a rock star and has recently had his fourth album released. It's "Working Class Dog" on RCA Victor records. He has studied acting with Malcolm McDowall and Jack Garfein and had a one-year contract with Universal where he appeared in "The Six Million Dollar Man," "The Rockford Files," "Turnabout" and "The Incredible Hulk." He was in "The Young and the Restless," before moving on to "General Hospital."

FAMILY TREES — Is Jennifer Jason Leigh related to either Vivian Leigh or Janet Leigh? Where does she live? — John R. Kaufman Jr., Camp Lejeune, N.C.

Jennifer is the daughter of actor Vic Morrow and not related to either Vivian or Janet Leigh. Jamie Lee Curtis is the daughter of Janet Leigh and Tony Curtis. Jennifer lives at home with her mother, Vic's ex-wife, who is a writer.

Jimmy Stewart

AIR MAIL — Would you please advise me where I can write Jimmy Stewart? I wish to contact him in regard to his military service as a pilot in the Air Force during World War II. — Kirk Kellogg, Los Altos, Calif.

Write him in care of his agent, Chasin Park Citron, 9255 Sunset Blvd., Los Angeles, CA 90069.

(Do you have a question about TV? Write Val Carew at 200 Park Avenue, Room 602, New York, NY 10166.)

'Cosmos' looks for other civilizations

In the twelfth and most speculative episode of "Cosmos" — "Encyclopaedia Galactica" — Dr. Carl Sagan examines the prospect of extraterrestrial civilizations. The program will be rebroadcast Tuesday, Dec. 15 over PBS. (Local times may vary; check listings.)

Carl Sagan

Sagan, the distinguished Cornell University astronomer and Pulitzer Prize-winning author, shows that no convincing evidence exists for any extraterrestrial visitors, past or present. What is needed, if Unidentified Flying Objects (UFOs) are ever to be established as extraterrestrial spacecraft, is a solid piece of evidence, something that can be examined and perhaps decoded.

"Cosmos" recreates a famous UFO incident, the claimed abduction of Betty and Barney Hill by extraterrestrial visitors to New Hampshire in 1961. After showing the unreliability of the Hill incident, Sagan asks: What would the first real contact with extraterrestrial visitors be like?

The first interstellar contact is likely to occur in a one-way situation, Sagan says, in that they talk and we listen. This situation resembles the one-way messages we receive from ancient, now-vanished civilizations on Earth. In particular, it is analogous to the deciphering of the Rosetta Stone by Jean Francois Champollion during the 1820s. Sagan suggests that the "Rosetta Stone" of interstellar communication is the language of science, the knowledge we share with other civilizations that may exist within our Milky Way galaxy.

Can we estimate the number of intelligent civilizations in our galaxy? At the Arecibo Observatory in Puerto Rico, the world's largest radio telescope, Sagan considers the relevant factors we must estimate to form this number. His conclusion is startling: possibly a million intelligent civilizations exist in our galaxy alone. This number cannot be regarded as definitive, Sagan says, but even if the number of civilizations turns out to be as little as a thousand, or as much as a hundred million, we face the problem of establishing contact with them.

In a recreation of his own research to find extraterrestrial civilizations, Sagan programs the Arecibo telescope to detect possible signals at various radio frequencies. Part of the difficulty in searching for such signals lies in knowing which portion of the "radio dial" to listen to. Sagan suggests that radio-emission processes in the cosmos may provide natural signposts.

In the spaceship of the imagination, he summons up the images of possible worlds and discovers among them the entry for our own planet.

"Cosmos" was written by Sagan, Ann Druyan, and Steven Soter.

TUESDAY

Ricky Schroder and Alec Guinness star as grandson and grandfather in "Little Lord Fauntleroy," to be rebroadcast Tuesday, Dec. 15 on CBS.

Grinch is back

The Grinch, known for the arsenic in his soul and the termites in his smile, will again emerge from among the snaffer snoof, oobleck, zuffs and other creatures in Theodor (Dr. Seuss) Geisel's "Dr. Seuss' How the Grinch Stole Christmas," an animated musical special to be rebroadcast Wednesday, Dec. 16 on CBS.

The saga of the crotchety creature is narrated by the late Boris Karloff, who is also heard as the voice of the Grinch and other principal characters in the production.

In the tale, the Grinch tries to erase Christmas from the tiny town of Whoville by stealing all the material symbols of its Yuletide celebration — only to discover that the real spirit of the season is beyond his grasp.

Assessment Answers & Tax Talk

by James Burley

THE 45-DAY PROTEST PERIOD

Property owners receiving their notices of assessment this December will be getting them for the first time in three years. This is through no assessor's oversight. The reason is that the assessment method changed in the meantime, and notices are no longer sent yearly but every three years.

They will find several new items on the notice, among them the current assessment and full value now in effect, as well as the proposed full value and assessments for the next three years. The proposed full value represents the assessor's best estimate of the market value as of now, or more precisely as of December 31, 1981.

The increase - if there were no increase, the owner would not have gotten a notice — is not added in one lump sum for tax assessment purposes, but in three equal, yearly installments. These are shown on the notice as the first, second, the third year phase-in values, and the corresponding assessments are based on these figures.

The proposed assessment for the first year is exact and will serve as the basis for the property tax bill to be issued next July for the 1982/83 property tax year. The assessment amounts to 456343, or roughly 45½%, of the value shown in Block No. 8.

The proposed assessments for the second year and third year of the cycle are based on the same fractional values of the amounts in Blocks No. 9 and No. 10, respectively. However, they could be somewhat less if the growth factor, the multiplier that replaced the inflation allowances, drops as predicted. The growth factor, to use its legal term, is the assessment rate by which the property value is multiplied to arrive at the assessment.

Taxpayers who receive new notices of assessment have the right to protest the new valuation. The term "proposed full value" indicates that the value assigned by the assessor is tentative until after the taxpayer has had the opportunity to protest. Taxpayers choosing to protest must do so within forty-five days of the date of the notice. Since the notice is dated December 7, the final date for this is January 20, 1982. The appeal copy must be signed by the property owner and received by the assessment office on or before this date. If mailed, it must be postmarked on or before January 20.

The forty-five day period in which to protest is new to those receiving their notices this year. When they last had an opportunity to appeal their assessment, the time interval from the date of this notice was thirty days. This additional fifteen days is only at the first step of the appeal procedure. The first step is the hearing at the local supervisor of assessments level. Thereafter, at the second and third appeal steps, the time interval from the date of the notice is still only thirty days.

Instructions for appealing are given on the notice, but the important thing to remember is that the appeal copy must be signed and returned within forty-five days of the date of the notice. The assessor is not legally authorized to accept one afterwards. Property owners failing to get their protest in on time will not have another regular appeal opportunity until they receive their next notice, three years from now.

Oakland VFD Elects Officers

Election of officers for 1982 was among the items on the agenda of the December meeting of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department, held last Wednesday evening. All nine of the 1981 officers were reelected for another term, plus two of the three 1981 standing committee members.

Reelected president was Don Sincell; vice president, Mark Durst; secretary, Phil Rook; treasurer, Gene Helbig; and chaplain, Manning Smith. Line officers reelected were: Buzz Updyke, chief; Milton Fike, first assistant chief; Clay Winters, second assistant chief; and Bob Rudy, captain. Elected to the standing committee were Frank Biser, Jack Glotfelty and Smokey Stanton.

Women's Legal Problems To Be Workshop Topic

The final Homemakers in Transition, entitled "Women's Legal Problems," will be held at Garrett Community College Oakland Center, sponsored by the Homemaker Career Opportunities Program, on Wednesday, December 16. This workshop will be conducted by Cynthia Fenimore, a member of the Legal Ad Bureau from Cumberland, who will address the many legal problems confronting women who go through separation, divorce, or loss of loved ones through death.

The workshop will be held in Room 306 at the Oakland Center from 10 a.m. until 12 noon on Wednesday, December 16. All interested persons are invited to attend and encouraged to ask questions regarding legal problems of women. For more information and to register for the workshop, persons may contact Barbara Frey, Director of the Homemaker Career Opportunities Program, at 334-9184.

Students Named To Who's Who

A total of 70 students from this area have been included in the 15th annual edition of Who's Who Among American High School Students, 1980-81.

Who's Who, published by Educational Communications, Inc., Northbrook, Ill., is the largest high school recognition publication in the country. Students are selected by high school principals and guidance counselors, national youth groups, churches or by the publishing company based upon students' performance in scholarship award contests or extracurricular activities.

Final selection is determined on the basis of criteria which include high achievement in academics and leadership in school activities, athletics or community service. Traditionally, 99% of Who's Who students have a grade point average of "B" or better and 97% are college bound.

Who's Who students also compete for over $50,000 in scholarship awards and participate in the publication's annual opinion poll of teen attitudes. The book is distributed on a complimentary basis to over 15,000 high schools, colleges, universities and public libraries throughout the country.

Local students selected for this year's volumes are:

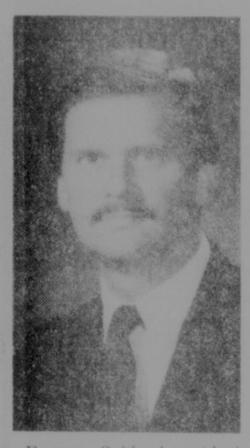
Named Head Of Missouri Mental Health Centers



Former Oakland resident Todd D. Schaible, Ph.D., has been elected president of the Missouri State Coalition of Community Mental Health Centers, Inc. The Missouri State Coalition, with administrative staff housed in Jefferson City, Missouri's State Capitol, consists of a membership of representitives from a variety of mental health centers, counseling centers and psychiatric clinics statewide.

Organized to promote the growth and development of mental health services within Missouri, the Coalition is actively involved with legislative, as well as educational activities which can affect the quality of statewide mental health services.

Dr. Schaible lives in Springfield, Mo., where he is executive director of Burrell Center, Inc., a comprehensive mental health clinic with offices and approximately 100 staff located throughout an eight-county area in Southwest Missouri. He has served as executive director since that organization's inception nearly five years ago.

Schaible graduated from Southern High School in 1963, attended the U.S. Air Force Academy, received a B.A. degree from Clark University, a M.A. degree in clinical psychology from West Virginia University, and served an internship in clinical psychology at Texas Research Institute for Mental Sciences. Before moving to Missouri he served in various clinical and administrative capacities in West Virginia and Virginia.

Schaible's wife is the former Carol Ann Clutter, a 1964 graduate of Terra Alta High School. Mrs. Schaible, presently is assistant manager of Hyland Plasma Center, a division of Baxter Travenol Laboratories. Her parents, Von and Carrie Clutter, currently reside in Accident.

The couple has a nine-year old son, Trent.

Homemaker Rep. From GCC To Be At Accident

Barbara Carl, administrative assistant of the Homemaker Career Opportunities Program of Garrett Community College, has announced she will be at the Accident Library branch on Monday, December 14, to meet with anyone interested in learning more about the free services available through that program. Mrs. Carl will be available from 12:30-2:30 p.m. to talk about career decisions and to answer questions regarding opportunities available through the displaced homemaker project.

Services offered through the program are designed to assist people who find themselves in a transition period of their lives due to separation, divorce, widowhood, or the economic crunch. These individuals may need to go to work but lack the skills of self confidence necesssary to reach their employment goals.

Anyone interested in learning more about the Homemaker Career Opportunities Program or participating in its free career counselng services should arrange to be at the Accident Library on December 14, or call 334-9184 for further information.

Maryland Hospital Cost Increases Remain Below National Average

David P. Scheffenacker, chairman of the Health Services Cost Review Commission, announced last week that data newly published by the American Hospital Association shows that during 1980 inpatient cost per admission in Maryland's hospitals rose at a rate of 9.82%. This is three and one-half percentage points below the average rate of increase reported for the 44 states without hospital cost containment programs.

Recent federal reductions to Medicaid, the health program for the poor, are offset by 1% if the rate of increase in a State with a qualifying hospital cost containment program is at least two percentage points below the average of the unregulated states.

Scheffenacker said that "this achievement by Maryland's hospitals will allow the State to receive between $2,000,000 and $2,500,000 in additional federal dollars to purchase health care for the poor in Maryland."

The Maryland Health Serices Cost Review Commission was created in 1971 under the legislative leadership of Senators Rosalie Abrams and Harry McGuirk and with the strong support of Governor Marvin Mandel. It was the first hospital rate review program created. Since 1974, when rate control in Maryland began, an estimated $360,000,000 have been saved by Maryland's hospitals by keeping their rate of cost increase below the national average. Total hospital cost in Maryland are in excess of one and one-half billion dollars.

Grantsville Voices To Be Raised In Holiday Style

The Grantsville United Methodist choir and community singers will present its annual Christmas Cantata "A Song is Born" by Joe E. Parks, on Sunday evening, December 13, at 7:30 p.m. The performance will be held in St.Paul's United Methodist Church, Grantsville.

Preceding the cantata, Miss Ellen Finzel will present a solo "C is for the Christ Child." A duet, entitled "One Night" will be offered by Mrs. Sue Beachy and Mrs. Rae Ann Frazee. Soloists for the cantata will be Mrs. Ruth Hetz, Mrs. Sue Beachy, and Gerald Beachy.

The choir will be under the direction of Mrs. Gloria Martin. Mrs. Frazee will be the pianist, and Sam Beachy will narrate.

Choir members include Mrs. Betty Jo Swauger, Mrs. Ruth Stanton, Mrs. Esther Durst, Miss Linda Resh, Miss Carol Durst, Miss Roxann Resh, Miss Ellen Finzel, Miss Schrilla Beachy, Mrs. Cindy Sessa, Mrs. Bertha Beachy, Mrs. Sue Bowers, Mrs. Ruth Hetz and Miss Karin Durst.

Male voices include Bill Edwards, Wayne Durst, Victor Twigg, Sam Beachy and Gerald Beachy.

Pastor Almond invites the public to attend.

Study Details Target Industries For Western, Northern Maryland

The Maryland Department of Economic and Community Development (DECD) released a business opportunity study Friday which shows the western and northern portions of the state are ideal locales for metalworking industries.

The announcement concludes an 18-month study by DECD on suitable industry for the state's Northern Tier, which includes Allegany, Baltimore, Carroll, Cecil, Frederick, Garrett, Harford and Washington counties and Baltimore City.

The study analyzed nine major factors business executives consider before making decisions on plant relocations or expansions. These factors included labor, training, proximity to markets, supporting and compatible industries, and business climate within the state.

The study showed that the state already has a large, young, and skilled workforce in its metalworking industries. The productivity of this workforce is above the national norm, yet costs to the manufacturer for this laborforce are lower than in other comparable areas of the nation. The Northern Tier also is home to an additional 248,000 individuals who could be employed in the metalworking industry.

Maryland also has a solid and diverse support base of manufacturers in the metalworking field, the DECD said. The study points out that Baltimore, Frederick, Hagerstown and Cumberland are strong employment centers for this industry, with 37 firms each employing 500 or more people in the metalworking field.

Other advantages for the metalworking industry in the Northern Tier include lower plant construction costs, reasonably priced energy, a history of fiscal responsibility by state and local government, a healthy business climate, and an equitable taxing structure.

"Though this study is now complete, it really represents just the beginning of our efforts to market the Northern Tier to the metalworking industry as a good place to do business. With our aggressive national and international marketing efforts, we hope to lure that type of industry to Maryland," DECD Secretary James O. Roberson said.

The opportunity study of the metalworking industry in Maryland complements similar studies completed by DECD for high-technology and the medical equipment manufacturing industries last year. A fourth opportunity study on the electronic assembly industry, which appears compatible with the resources of the Eastern Shore, is expected to be released in early 1982.

Almanac

Today is Wednesday, December 9th, the 343rd day of 1981 with 22 to follow.

The Moon is moving toward its full phase.

The morning stars are Mercury, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening star is Venus.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Sagittarius. English poet John Milton was born December 9th, 1608. This also is the birthdate of actors Kirk Douglas (1918), Broderick Crawford (1911) and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. (1909).

On this date in history:

In 1793, Noah Webster founded the American Minerva, the first daily newspaper in New York City.

In 1907, Christmas Seals were placed on sale in the post office in Wilmington, Delaware, to raise money to fight tuberculosis.

In 1920, the Nobel Peace Prize was awarded to American President Woodrow Wilson.

In 1974, White House aide John Ehrlichman testified at the Watergate coverup trial that President Richard Nixon had been responsible for the coverup.

A thought for the day:

English poet John Milton said: "Peace has her victories no less renowned than war."

COMEDY SKETCHES TO BE PRESENTED — Dean Marsico, left, and Kim Flick, students at Garrett Community College, audition for parts in Harold Pinter's Revue Sketches, a series of comedy sketches to be presented at Garrett Community College on December 10 and 11.

Comedy Sketches To Be Presented By GCC Students

A series of comedy sketches by Harold Pinter will be presented by students of Garrett Community College in the auditorium Thursday, December 10, at noon, and Friday evening, December 11, at 8 p.m.

The production is under the direction of Ben Sincell, Instructor of Speech and Drama, and student director Lisa Thayer.

All of the students in the performance are members of the college Drama Club. Stage sets and lighting will be done by members of the Introduction to Theatre class.

Sketches to be presented are "Trouble in the Works" with Dean Marsico and Tim McLoughlin; "Black and White" with Melissa Jessup and Jane Carroll; "Request Stop" with Lisa Thayer, Tim McLoughlin, Lisa Frazee, Rita Vaeth, and Dean Marsico; "The Applicant" with Mary Lou Ries and Tim McLoughlin; "That's All" with Lisa Frazee and Melista Jessup; "That's Your Trouble" with Karen Frankhouser and Dean Marsico.

Tickets for the evening performance may be purchased at the door.

According to Sincell, who will be teaching the Fundamentals of Acting course in the spring semester, the Drama Club plans to do a Children's Theatre production and one other major production in the spring. Members will also be taking field trips to see dramatic presentations at West Virginia University and at Frostburg.

CRT Protocol Session Slated

The Region I office of the Maryland Institute for Emergency Medical Services Systems, will be holding a "marathon" protocol session on Saturday, December 12, 1981, from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. at the Grantsville Volunteer Fire Department. This session is for any CRT (cardiac rescue technician) who has attended all four sessions on the CRT Protocols. If any CRT does not complete any of the four sessions he/she will be unable to practice in the field after January 1982 when the new state protocols go into effect, according to the Region I office.

For additional information on the times of each session CRTs are asked to check local squad bulletin boards or call the Region I Office at 895-5934 between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. weekdays.

Holiday Bazaar, Bake Sale Set In Terra Alta

"Christmas Creations," Terra Alta Civic Club's second annual bazaar and bake sale, is scheduled for Saturday, December 12th, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Sunday, December 13th, 1 to 5 p.m. at the Terra Alta Town Hall.

Assorted Christmas crafts, hand painted Christmas balls along with numerous baked items will be on sale with proceeds going towards the club's yearly budget for civic projects. Chairwoman of the event this year is Ms. Judy Wiles, who leads the Finance Committee.

A special feature for the children this year will be a visit from Santa Claus, on Sunday, 2-4 p.m.

Bereaved Parents Find Help Through "Compassionate Friends"

by Kathy Railey

A group of volunteers recently affiliated with Compassionate Friends, Inc., is offering help, particularly through the holiday season, to families who have suffered the death of a child, from miscarriage through any age. A unique aspect of this self-support group is that everyone involved has lost a child, including the supporters.

The aims of the chapter are to offer support and friendship to any sorrowing parent, to listen with understanding and provide "telephone friends" who may be called, to provide sharing groups that meet monthly, to give cognitive information about the grieving process through various programs, and to provide acquaintance with bereaved parents whose sorrow has softened and who have found fresh hope and strength for living.

According to one member, the local group was the brainchild of Dr. William Pope, Deputy State Health Officer with the Garrett County Health Department, assisted by Sara Donley, director of Adult Health Services. Dr. Pope stated that, "In our work with pregnant women at the Health Department we noted difficulties couples were having who had losses of infants and earlier loss of pregnancies that did not come to successful completion. People often don't understand or know how to assist people with this type of loss." He added that people with losses generated an interest in this kind of help.

An organizational meeting was held March 31, and since that time the group has investigated groups in other areas which deal with this type of aid to families. Bill Ermatinger, executive director of the Baltimore region of Compassionate Friends, Inc., and other representatives from Cumberland spoke to the group, and November 30 the local membership decided to become affiliated with that international organization, the purposes of which are to promote and aid parents in the positive resolution of the grief experienced upon the death of their child, and to foster the physical and emotional health of bereaved parents and siblings.

Persons in the group who are available for telephone contacts (someone to talk to during the holidays) are Lynne Elmlinger, Mt. Lake Park, 334-3137; Paula Briggs, Friendsville, 746-5161; and Bob and Audrey Banks, Bruceton Mills, W.Va. (304) 379-7362. Members of the group will also make home visits when necessary.

Compassionate Friends asks for no membership fees or dues. Voluntary contributions cover the cost of printing, postage and programs when necessary. The organization is not a therapy group, nor are chapter meetings therapy sessions, but an opportunity for bereaved parents to gain understanding and to ventilate their feelings in an accepting atmosphere, according to one member. Strict laws of confidentiality are observed by the group, and the format of the meetings is described as a very general discussion and sharing of feelings.

The Compassionate Friends was founded in Coventry, England by Rev. Simon Stephens in 1969. Rev. Stephens was employed in a hospital in which many children died each year, and bereaved parents joined with him in establishing the organization which grew throughout the United Kingdom. The first United States chapter was organized in Florida in 1972, and others have since been established throughout the United States and Canada. The national headquarters is located in Oak Brook, Illinois.

Dr. Pope noted that, after a period of time, persons may become group leaders and help others with more recent losses. He said the Health Department sees at least a dozen people each year with these types of losses, and all, including cases of miscarriage, accident, or illness, and the siblings, grandparents and other relatives involved, will have this organization available if they need assistance during their time of grief. One member noted that the group occasionally will make use of resource and referral (professional) persons.

A representative from the national headquarters states that "Parents who felt they were coping effectively with their loss, as well as parents who felt loneliness and despair in their grief, have found Compassionate Friends helpful to them. While there are no instant solutions, no easy answers, and no timetable for recovery, there is a sense of direction to be found through knowledge and understanding of the grief experience. Bereaved parents can find healing and hope for the future."

Real Estate

FINANCING IMPORTANT TO SELLER

Financing the purchase of a home is not only a problem for the purchaser - it is also a problem for the seller - because in days of tight money, if the prospect can't get financing - there's no sale.

That's why it is so important for the seller to list his home for sale with a REALTOR. If anybody knows how to get mortgage money, he does. He solves that problem every day because he has the knowledge and contacts to help the buyer find the money he needs. He works closely with many financing institutions, knows their requirements and methods. He may know a private local lender who might be interested. In a period of tight money, especially, he knows best where to look and alternate methods of tieing together a satisfactory financial package.

For example, he might suggest that the seller take back a mortgage. This is called a purchase-money mortgage that the seller extends to the buyer in order to make the sale possible if the buyer cannot raise sufficient cash. When money is really tight, it is sometimes the only way to complete a sale.

Wood Burned In One Of Every Three Houses In Maryland

According to preliminary data received from a Maryland Forest Service Survey of fuelwood use in Maryland, nearly 30% of residential households in the state burn wood. Twenty percent of the users consider wood as their major heat source and use approximately four cords of wood each season. Fifty percent use wood as a supplemental heat source and burn about 1.7 cords of wood each year. The remaining 30% of wood burners use a small quantity of wood only for enjoyment.

The Resource Utilization unit of the Maryland Forest Service, in cooperation with the U.S. Forest Service, conducted a telephone survey of fuelwood use during the summer. The wood usage varied around the state with a high of 52% of the households surveyed in Southern Maryland using wood to a low of 22% in the metropolitan Baltimore area using wood.

Stoves were the most popular method of heating for those who considered wood a major source of their home heat. Modified fireplaces (those with inserts, special grates, blowers, etc.) were mentioned next as a primary heat source. People burning wood for enjoyment used fireplaces. Mixed hardwoods were burned most often; oak was the next used wood, followed by pine.

The survey also showed that people do know the dimensions of a cord of wood. Maryland law requires that firewood be sold by the standard cord (128 cubic feet) or a fraction of a cord. It must be identified by species and described as green or seasoned. Most people who purchased wood got delivery in a pickup truck and realizing they were not getting a full cord, expected the wood to be priced accordingly.

Firewood users cut approximately 70% of what they burn. More than 90% of that is cut from private land. Half of the wood cut was said to be cut from dead trees, 11% from tree removals and urban land clearing.

The preliminary date from the survey clearly shows that wood is an important heat source in Maryland. More than 750,000 cords of wood were burned in the state, ranging in cost from a low of $50 per cord in Western Maryland, to a high of $102 in the D.C. area. When wood is used in an airtight stove it is a very efficient source of heat, according to the Service.

More information about the fuelwood survey can be obtained from the Annapolis office of the Maryland Forest Service, Resource Utilization staff, 301-269-2782.

State Regulations Governing Sale Of Firewood Noted

Individuals and businesses involved in the sale of firewood in the state of Maryland should be aware of two regulations which pertain to this activity, according to the Maryland Forest Service.

First, any person engaged in the sale or manufacture of forest products shall obtain a license from the Department of Natural Resources. The applications for this forest products operators license can be obtained from the Maryland Forest Service office at Mt. Nebo or the DNR Regional Service Center at Naves Crossroads in Cumberland. Registration as a forest products operator costs ten dollars per calendar year. Individuals registering during December 1981 will receive a 1982 license.

After the initial registration, renewal registrations will be mailed to the operator each year during the month of December for the upcoming year. Failure to register as a forest products operator while engaging in the forest products business could result in a fine of up to $125 for the first offense, according to the Forest Service.

The second regulation which applies to the sale of firewood is commonly referred to as the Cord Law. This regulation stipulates that any person or business engaged in the sale of fuelwood is required to advertise and sell only by measure using the term "cord". A cord is the amount of wood contained in a space of 128 cubic feet when the wood is stacked in a compact manner. A standard cord measures four feet wide, four feet high, and eight feet long.

The Cord Law prohibits the use of terms such as face cord, rack, pile, or truck load in the advertisement or sale of firewood. This regulation also requires that persons engaged in the sale of firewood include in their advertisements a declaration of the species group and whether the wood is unseasoned (green) or dry.

These two regulations were instituted for the protection of consumers and the forest resources of the state of Maryland. The Maryland Forest Service encourages persons involved in the sale or purchase of firewood to familiarize themselves with these regulations.

GOH Elects New Officers

The Garrett Organization for the Handicapped elected new officers for the coming year at its December meeting held Thursday at the Appalachian Center, Oakland, presided by Dorothy Leuba, president.

Officers for 1982 are Dan Elmlinger, president; Dorothy Leuba, vice-president; Kathy Railey, secretary, and Alice Ann Ridder, reelected as treasurer. Outgoing vice-president and secretary are Tom Graybill and Luanna Toston.

It was announced that the group collected $122.26 through balloon sales at Autumn Glory, and other funds raised through tootsie roll sales and a GOH Radiothon, with the aid of the Knights of Columbus and the Oakland Rotary, will be announced at a later date.

Mrs. Leuba informed the group that the Maryland State Special Olympics is requesting that all counties form a separate Special Olympics committee and a separate bank account for that event.

Discussion was held regarding the distribution of funds raised by the group. Part of the money will be offered to special education classes for the purpose of field trips. The group agreed to send out request forms to special education teachers to be returned to GOH by the end of January along with an estimated cost of the proposed field trip.

The GOH Speakers Bureau will meet today at 4:30 p.m. at the Appalachain Center. Members of the organization who are interested in participating in the Speaker's Bureau are asked to attend.

The group's annual Christmas Party will be held Sunday, December 20, from 2 to 5 p.m. at the Appalachian Center. All GOH members, handicapped residents of Garrett County and their families are invited.

Charlotte Griffith announced that a public forum on funding for developmental disabilities will be held December 17 at 7 p.m. at the Baltimore Hilton. GOH members agreed to draft a letter to state officials in support of that forum.

The group will meet again on Thursday, January 7, at 7 p.m. at the Appalachian Center.

The Guild of Professional Toastmasters holds an election every year to determine the most boring speaker.

Lois K. Filemyr Earns High Honors At Virginia Univ.

Lois K. Filemyr, a third-year student at the University of Virginia, received Intermediate Honors at Fall Convocation at the University in Charlottesville, Va., on October 23. This honor is awarded to those students who have achieved an outstanding academic record during their first two years of attendance at the University.

She was also recently initiated into the Virginia Alpha chapter of Tau Beta Pi Association, national engineering honor society. Nominees to Tau Beta Pi, in addition to qualifying academically, must exhibit "exemplary character, breadth of interest, adaptibility and unselfish activity."

Miss Filemyr is a computer science major in the School of Engineering and Applied Science. She is a student advisor to first-year engineering students, a member of the Society of Women Engineers, the Association for Computing Machinists, and the student curriculum committee of the Engineering Council. She is also a member of the University Pep Band and Delta Zeta Sorority.

Miss Filemyr is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Filemyr, Mt. Lake Park.

Deborah Fike, Timothy Buhr Wed In Double-Ring Ceremony

Deborah Ann Fike and Tomothy Kevin Buhr were united in marriage on Saturday afternoon, September 19, in the Deep Creek Baptist Church, Oakland. The Rev. Ernie Baker, Lanham, officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Darwin Fike, Oakland. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Buhr, Gasport, N.Y.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a gown fashioned of lace. The bodice featured a Queen Anne neckline accented with Chantilly lace and seed pearls. The sheer bishop sleeves had deep lace cuffs. Satin ribbons accented the waistline holding the full hooped skirt sweeping to a cathedral-length train beneath tiers of lace ruffles. A matching fingertop veil was edged with lace, and she carried her mother's Bible topped with an arrangement of daisies.

Becky Christiana, the bride's sister, Ephrata, Pa., was matron of honor, wearing a riviera blue quiana gown with a lace collar and a bow flowing from the neckline. The tie belt accented the pleated floor-length skirt. Identically attired in marigot blue gowns were the bridesmaids, Sharon Larimore, sister of the bride, Harrington, Del.; Marilee Merle, sister of the groom, Attica, N.Y.; Melissa Safritt, Dunwoody, Ga.; and Sue Moberger, Winchester, Mass.

Dennis Buhr, brother of the groom, Lockport, N.Y., served as best man. He was attired in a blue bentley tuxedo. Ushers were Phil Buhr, brother of the groom, Gasport, N.Y.; Tom Schmitt, Lockport, N.Y.; Mike LeDuc, Cape Cod, Mass., and Alvin Hull, Hancock.

Julie Larimore, niece of the bride, Harrington, Del., served as the flowergirl and Brian Kahly, Oakland, served as ring bearer.

The message was delivered by Tom Crogan. Pastor David Long offered the prayer and scripture reading. Both are from Oakland.

The organist was June Harvey, Swanton. The pianist was Brenda McIntire, Hyattsville. Vocalists were Mr. and Mrs. Roger Christiana, Ephrata, Pa., Brian Mosior, Lanham, and Karen Otto, Oakland. A recitation was given by Barbara Carper, Riverdale.

A reception was held in the downstairs portion of the church following the ceremony.

The couple spent their honeymoon traveling throughout the state of Virginia. They now make their home in Gasport, N.Y.

The bride is a 1976 graduate of Southern High School, Oakland, and a 1980 graduate of Washington Bible College, Lanham where she received her B.A. degree in Bibical Studies.

The groom is a 1974 graduate of Royalton-Hartland Central High School, N.Y. He is a 1976 graduate of Alfred State College, Alfred N.Y.; where he majored in Agricultural Engineering, and a 1981 graduate of Washington Bible College, Lanham, where he received a B.A. degree in Biblical Studies. The groom in presently employed at Newroyal Farms, Gasport, N.Y.

Accident Homemakers Announce Plans For Christmas Dinner

The Accident Homemakers Club will meet at the Hamburger House, Rt. 219, on December 18 at 6 p.m. for the annual Christmas dinner and party.

Helen Harmon is in charge of the program.

Gladys McQuain, John H. Wolf Exchange Vows

Gladys McQuain of Franklin, W. Va., and John H. Wolf, Sr. of Oakland exchanged wedding vows Saturday, December 5, at 2:00 in the afternoon in the Franklin United Methodist Church. The Rev. Frank Shomo, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony before an altar decorated with lighted candelabra and a basket of white gladiola, white, wine and turquoise pompoms.

Traditional wedding music was played by Walter B. Judy, organist.

Escorted to the altar by her brother, Daniel Carl Wimer of Richmond, Va., the bride wore a formal length gown of sapphire blue quiana. The gown featured a jewel neckline and long tapered sleeves. Her jewelry was iridescent crystal beads, bracelet and earrings which had belonged to her mother. She wore baby's breath in her hair and carried a single long stemmed red rose.

Mrs. Frances Wimer of Richmond, Va. was her sister-in-law's matron of honor. She wore a formal length gown of burgundy polyester with a bolero jacket. Ruffles trimmed the long sleeves of the jacket at the wrists and neck of the gown. She wore baby's breath in her hair and carried a single long stemmed pink rose.

John H. Wolf, Jr., M.D., of Morgantown, W. Va. was his father's best man. Ushers were William Savage of Pittsburgh, Pa., son-in-law of the groom, and Andrew Schappell of Landisville, Pa., friend of the couple.

Acolyte was Miss Tracy Sanders of Pittsburgh, Pa., granddaughter of the groom.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church social hall.

Mrs. Lorraine Harper of Franklin, W. Va., friend of the couple, registered the guests. The three-tier wedding cake was cut by Mrs. Joan Bowers of Mint Spring, Va., cousin of the bride, and served by Mrs. Janet Savage of Pittsburgh, Pa., daughter of the bridegroom and Miss Julie Sanders of Mountville, Pa., granddaughter of the bridegroom. Punch was served by Mrs. Tillie Wolf of Morgantown, W. Va., daughter-in-law of the groom and Mrs. Marcia Warner of Franklin, W. Va., friend of the couple. Coffee was served by Miss Tracy Sanders of Pittisburgh, Pa., granddaughter of the groom. Mrs. Linda M. Mallow of Franklin, W. Va., friend of the couple, was in charge of the gift table.

Photographers were Miss Rebecca Wolf of Morgantown, granddaughter of the bridegroom, and Miss Pamela Bowers of Mint Spring, Va., cousin of the bride.

The bride had been on the staff of The Pendleton Times in Franklin for the past 24 years, and the bridegroom is a retired supervisor and personnel manager for the H-P Stores, Inc.

After a honeymoon at The Greenbrier, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., the couple reside in Franklin and Oakland.

DNR Police Wage War Against Jacklighters

The annual battle against jacklighting, the practice of immobilizing a deer by shining a light at it, is dangerous, time consuming and expensive for Department of Natural Resources Police, according to a release from the DNR.

Since November 1, according to Natural Resources Police records, 60 arrests have been made on charges of jacklighting with a weapon in possession, 41 arrests made on charges of casting rays of light with no weapon found and five arrests made on charges of casting rays of light after 10 p.m. with no weapon in possession.

Police report that statewide jacklighting complaints are 20 percent higher than last year.

Generally, it takes a lot of time to catch the jacklighter practicing his trade, police said. Inland Division officers of the Natural Resources Police Force many times stake out a field where jacklighting is believed to occur, which means staying in an automobile for hours until the opportunity to make an arrest arises.

One of the biggest aids available to the force is the use of aircraft. This fall, for example, the police plane was instrumental in making 31 arrests in different parts of the state, including Garrett County.

On air patrols in areas where the criminal may be active in jacklighting, the pilot can spot suspicious rays of light. By radio, he will contact a land-based unit and give the position of the lights.

Jacklighting is not confined to any one area of the state. Area commanders of the Inland Division report that it is widespread.

AURORA-EGLON NEWS

A Christmas program and band concert will be presented December 16 at the Aurora School, 7:30 p.m. by the fourth through sixth grades and the band. The public is invited to attend this Christmas celebration.

The Kindergarten through grade three will present a Christmas program for the PTO on December 8 and on December 23, they will again present their program for the school. School will be dismissed on December 23 at 1:30 p.m.

Persons are asked to save the labels from Campbell soups, Franco-American, V-8 and Swanson products, until December 18, there is a special bonus on V-8 juice and Soup-for-one labels. The program, which is to help the school to obtain equipment ends February 20.

On December 5 the staff and employees of the Aurora School met at Chimney Corner for their annual Christmas party with dinner and a gift exchange. There were 34 in attendance. Several were unable to attend because of the road conditions.

Their annual ham and turkey dinner in observance of Thanksgiving and Christmas was held December 5 by the Union District Senior Citizens at the Aurora U.M. Memorial Building with 150 members and guests attending. Grace for the meal was asked by Mrs. Ruth Snyder.

Devotions were led by Martha Crowe, using Christmas Memories as a theme, and the prayer was by Charles Crowe.

Harold Holsopple was present to show slides of Hawaii and to make comments about the trip. He also led in group carol singing with Sarah Henline accompanying at the piano. The Rev. Galen Fike dismissed the group with a closing prayer.

The next meeting at the Union District Senior Citizens is scheduled for January 2 with a covered dish dinner at 6:30 p.m. at the Memorial Building.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Feather of Eglon announce the birth of their first child, a daughter, on December 4 at the West Virginia University Medical Center. With birth weight at three pounds, ten ounces, the girl is doing well and has been named Kiley Allison.

Mrs. Feather is the former Nancy Hauser, daughter of Mrs. Peggy Hauser, Aurora, and the late Wade J. Hauser. Paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Norman Feather, Eglon. Great-grandparents include Mr. and Mrs. Wade Hauser, Mrs. Thelma Adams, Aurora; Mr. and Mrs. Guy Feather, Eglon; Mrs. Grace Gierdane, Baltimore and great-great-grandmother, Mrs. Iva Slaubaugh, Aurora.

Mrs. Mildred Wilt of Eglon was a patient last week in Garrett County Memorial Hospital undergoing tests. She returned to her home Friday.

Mrs. Louella Fike of Aurora remains a patient in Garrett County Memorial Hospital where she underwent surgery last week.

Forest Greaser of Eglon is a medical patient in Garrett County Memorial Hospital, also.

Mark Crawford of Horse Shoe Run was a patient last week at West Virginia University Medical Center where he underwent tests.

Mrs. Armand Heckert of Eglon received word that her nephew, Charles Strawser of Rowlesburg, was admitted last week to Preston Memorial Hospital where he will remain a patient due to a heart attack.

Their first child was born October 31 at 6:42 p.m. to Mr. and Mrs. John Jones of Horse Shoe Run. A boy, his name is Jonathon Elijah and his birth weight was seven pounds, ten and one-half ounces.

Mrs. Jones is the former Teresa Helmick, daughter of Virgil D. (Denny) and Wilma Hauser Helmick of Horse Shoe Run. Paternal grandparents are George and Mabel Jones of Oakland. Maternal great-grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hauser of Eglon and Mrs. Virgil Helmick of Alexandria.

Ellis Teets of Eglon spent the weekend in Virginia with his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Merlin Reish at Harrisonburg and on Sunday returned home accompanied by his wife who had spent the week with the Reishes.

The Eglon Homemakers had their annual family Christmas party on December 1 at the Eglon Memorial Building. A meal was served and recreation for all concluded with the singing of Christmas carols. Mrs. Rebecca Teets read the Christmas Story as written by Lewis Carroll for his children to conclude the evening's program. There was also a gift exchange with a display of each by the recipients.

Attending the evening affair were Mr. and Mrs. Leland Teets, Nathan and Nicole, Mr. and Mrs. John Teets, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Hartsell and Carroll Joe, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Harsh and Mark, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Rembold and Shawn, Mr. and Mrs. Sheridan Layman, Barbara Heckert, Mildred Wilt, Lela Roth, Mr. and Mrs. Ron Parsons, Mr. and Mrs. J. ARMED SERVICES REVIEW

Douglas A. Paugh, Rt. 4, Deer Park, recently completed basic training in the U.S. Navy at Great Lakes, Ill. He has reported to Memphis, Tenn., to attend Aviation Anti-Submarine Warfare Operator School.

Airman Recruit Paugh is a 1981 graduate of Southern High School.

Airman Michael T. Skidmore, son of Carl D. Skidmore of Route 2, Accident, and Iva M. Skidmore of 56 Green St., Frostburg, has been assigned to Chanute Air Force Base, Ill., after completing Air Force basic training.

During the six weeks at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations.

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree in applied science through the Community College of the Air Force.

The airman will now receive specialized instruction in the vehicle maintenance field.

He is a 1981 graduate of Northern High School.

The earliest recorded astronomical observations were made in China around 3000 BC.

Better Breathing Club Party Slated

The annual holiday party of the Better Breathing Club of Allegany and Garrett Counties will be held on December 28 at Sacred Heart Hospital auditorium from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. according to Katherine Floto, club coordinator. The Better Breathing Club is for local residents with Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease (asthma, emphysema, chronic bronchitis) their families and other interested people.

Because of the effect cold weather on lung patients, the club will not meet during the months of January and February. Lung patients can "keep in touch" through the "Breath of Life" newsletter published every other month. Homebound patients are also encouraged to join the club and may do so by contacting Ken Girard at the American Lung Association of Maryland, 11 E. Mt. Royal Avenue, Baltimore, Maryland 21202 or by phone, toll free, (800) 492-7527.

The club will hold its first meeting of the new year during March.

Polled Hereford Association Meets

The Mason-Dixon Polled Hereford Association held a meeting November 12 at the Garrett Community College. A discussion was held of things which may improve the next sale of the association. The directors present felt steps should be taken to hold a spring sale in early May.

Larry Chaikcic, Sam Hunter, Paul Peasley, Don Ross, Randall Harman, James Jenkins and William Buser will serve as a sale committee to plan for the sale. They have scheduled meetings for Tuesday, January 5, and Tuesday, March 16, to finalize spring sale plans.

The annual membership drive in the spring will include a newsletter to members. All members are encouraged to send items of interest to Dr. William H. Buser, P.O. Box 3025, Swanton, Md., 21561 for inclusion in this February mailing. In addition any member who wants to advertise cattle for sale at private treaty may have a brief sale ad included in the newsletter by sending a $1.00 check with the sale ad by February 10.

In other business the board of directors decided to plan a series of farm tours to the eastern part of the state as a part of the annual field day and business meeting. The group is expecting there will be sufficient interest to charter at least one bus from the Garrett County area. The tour will be planned for June 5 and 6.

Some discussion was held for the need of a directory of membership including paid ads, but no action in this matter was taken at the meeting.

Farming in Maryland

Survey To Collect Information About Hired Farm Workers

Information about farm work done for pay during the past year and about migratory farm work will be collected by the Bureau of the Census in this area during the work week of December 14-18, 1981, John Kuntz, acting director of the Bureau's Regional Office in Philadelphia, has announced.

The farm work questions are in addition to the ones asked regularly in the monthly survey on employment and unemployment conducted by the Bureau for the U.S. Department of Labor.

Results of this survey provide data on conditions in the labor force, prime indicators of the economic health of the country. For example, in October the survey indicated that of the 106.7 million men and women in the civilian labor force, 98.2 million were employed. The nation's unemployment rate was 8.0 percent, up from 7.5 percent in September and the 1981 low of 7.0 percent in July.

About 71,000 households across the country, scientifically selected to represent a cross section of American households, take part in this monthly survey. All information provided by the Bureau is confidential by law and can be published only as statistical totals in which no individual or household can be identified, according to Kuntz.

Farmers Advised To Determine Conservation Needs

"Now is the time for farmers to take a good look at their farmland and determine conservation needs," William B. Crum, chairperson of the Maryland State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, said. The Agricultural Conservation Program provides solutions to conservation and pollution problems on farms.

Crum said the county ASC committees have assigned priorities to the overall conservation needs in the state and the percentage of cost-sharing will be based on these priority ratings. Some of the high priority problems include Animal Waste Facilities, Waterways, Stripcropping Systems, Diversions, and others. Solutions to these problems can be cost-shared up to 75 percent.

ACP funds are used to correct conservation and pollution problems on a farm beyond that which would be accomplished with the farmers own resources. The program provides both technical and financial assistance to farmers whose land is a source of agricultural pollution or affected by soil or water erosion.

Crum said soil erosion is a major problem for farmers and with today's more intensive cropping patterns it is vital that producers perform good soil and water conservation practices such as those offered under the ACP.

During Fiscal Year 1981, 22,370 acres of Maryland farmland were protected or served by one or more of the ACP conservation practices. To solve soil and water conservation problems, ASCS here in Maryland provided cost-share funds totaling $861,376. This assistance was used by 906 producers to carry out conservation measures.

"We have an obligation to protect soil and water resources for the benefit of farmers and the public, and ACP endeavors to meet this obligation," Crum said.

"We urge farmers who have conservation problems they wish to solve to apply as soon as possible," the ASCS official said. Further assistance may also be obtained from the Soil Conservation Service and Extension Service.

Prices Three Percent Lower

Farm prices in Maryland dropped for the fourth consecutive month, announced the Maryland-Delaware Crop Reporting Service. The mid-November index of all farm products declined to 217 percent of its 1967 base. That decline was three percent of its October prices and 11 percent below November 1980 prices. Crops led the decrease with a four percent over all reduction, but livestock and livestock products were also lower by two percent.

The index for all crops stood at 223 in mid-November compared with 232 in mid-October and 266 a year earlier. All items registered declines from the previous month except for rye. The price for fruits fell the greatest amount, pushing the fruit index 10 percent lower. Soybeans and small grains also decreased significantly. The soybean index dropped six percent to 233 percent of 1967 and the feed grains and hay index was three percent below last month at 203.

The November price of milk in Maryland was unchanged from October at $14.20 per cwt. to help soften the decline by other livestock and poultry items. The livestock and livestock products index at midmonth was 214 compared with 218 in October and 234 in November 1980, two percent and nine percent lower, respectively.

Meat animals at an index level of 230 was seven percent below the previous month and 12 percent below the previous year as cattle and hogs were sharply lower. The poultry index was two percent lower to 188 percent of its base.

The changes in feed price from October were mixed. Most of the prices were higher than in the previous month, however, as only soybean meal, 18% and 32% dairy feed registered declines. The increases were generally about one percent except for bran, up six percent and laying feed, up three percent.

GRANTSVILLE

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Grantsville Firemen met at the fire hall and elected the following officers for 1982: first president, Mary Broadwater, who is in charge of the kitchen; second president, Mary Kelly, who is in charge of all bookings and the dining hall; vice president, Cleda Baker; secretary, Shelby Diehl; treasurer, Juanita Swauger; and dining room committee, Lulu Brown and Linda Handwerk. The historian and reporter is Jenny Swauger. All bookings will be made by calling Mary Kelly at 895-5747.

Walter Younkin remains a patient in Sacred Heart Hospital, Cumberland.

The Grantsville Firemen and Ladies Auxiliary had their Christmas dinner on Sunday evening at the Grantsville Fire Hall. Herman Yoder, president, had charge of the program, which included piano playing by Deise and Lyndon Yoder, children of Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Yoder and singing by Dorothy, Lola, Larrisa, Linda and Darla, children of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Yoder.

Dean Savage gave a report and presented awards to firemen. The Firefighter of the Year Award was presented to Herman S. Yoder. The most Important Fire Fighter Award was present to Duan Stein. The Unusual Fire Fighter Award went to Raymond J. Yoder. The Most Important Jr. Fire Fighter Award went to Eugene (Chip) Broadwater. The Dedicated Time and Effort Award of Allegany and Garrett County Firemen's Association went to Harry A. Michael. The fellowship closed with Raymond Yoder's homemade ice cream, and Santa visiting the children with treats.

The man hours spent in the year 1981 totaled 6,430½ hours.

Sgt. and Mrs. Eddie Kelly and daughters, Christie and Carry, of Fort Belvoir, Va., and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Mort, Baltimore, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Kelly and daughter, Zelma, and Steve of Timonium, were recent guests of Mary Kelly and family.

PASSIVE SOLAR RETROFIT

by Patricia Driscoll Extension Agent
Community Resource Development

Camp Hope, a local organization that uses volunteer contributions of time, building materials and money to repair homes of low income residents in Allegany County, is already planning for next summer's work camps. One way they are going to expand their program this year is to retrofit some of the homes for greater energy efficiency, and for passive solar energy gain. This project will also serve as a demonstration for other homeowners interested in energy efficiency.

There are several factors the Camp Hope Advisory Board will be considering when retrofitting or adapting the homes for passive solar heat gain, and any homeowner contemplating a retrofit should also consider these factors.

The first step is to consider the climate. Sunny climates with short heating seasons, such as Southern California and Florida, are not well suited for solar space heating but are the most economical areas for solar domestic hot water systems. The most economical factors for solar space heating include long heating seasons (long winters), sunny heating seasons and high utility rates.

The next step is to make sure your home is adequately insulated. A well insulated home will result in increased efficiency of your solar heating system, whereas a poorly insulated home will merely heat air that flows outside of the house through cracks and holes, rather than staying inside and providing heat for the occupants. Recommended insulation standards for a home in this area are a thickness equal to R-30 in the ceiling, R-11 in the walls and R-19 in the floor. A home should also be weatherstripped, caulked and have double-pane windows.

The third consideration for a passive solar retrofit is the availabilty of sunshine. If collectors are to be placed on the roof or wall of the house, the roof or wall must face within 30° of due South, and not be shaded at any time of the day. The strength of the roof should also be considered if the roof is the planned location for the device.

If the system you plan to use requires a thermal mass for heat storage, the location of the unit must also be determined. The location and type of heat storage you decide on will largely be determined by the design of the passive solar device you plan to use.

The solar devices planned for use by Camp Hope are thermal air syphoning panels (TAP units). These solar space heaters consist of a flat, rectangular box covered with glass or plastic (called glazing) and a black metal absorber plate inside the box. As part of the system, vents are cut into the south wall of a building, and the panel is mounted over the vents. Sunlight passes through the glazing and heats the absorber plate. The absorber plate heats the surrounding air which rises and passes through the upper vent into the room. At the same time, cool air is drawn from the house floor through the lower vent into the panel. This cool air warms, rises and passes through the upper vent, creating a natural circulation loop.

TAP units are simple, effective solar space heaters. They can be built for approximately $100 and usually will pay back the investment in one year.

For more information on passive solar retrofit, contact the Allegany County Cooperative Extension Service at 11 Prospect Square, Cumberland, telephone 724-3320 or the Garrett County Cooperative Extension Service at 202 South Third Street, Oakland, telephone 334-2145.

Maryland Adopts New Portable Kerosene Heater Regulations

The Maryland Fire Prevention Commission has announced it has amended the Fire Prevention Code to permit the use of Underwriters Laboratories, Inc. (U.L.) labeled unvented protable kerosene heaters in one and two family homes.

This is in addition to the previously permitted use by hunters and campers, in buildings under construction, agricultural buildings and other similar uninhabited buildings.

This new regulation, which took effect on December 7, does not apply in Baltimore City, Baltimore County, Anne Arundel County, Annapolis or Cumberland which have local ordinances prohibiting use in residences.

The new State regulation does not allow the use of these portable unvented kerosene heaters in other occupied buildings such as stores, schools, day care centers, nursing homes and places of public assembly.

The new regulation requires that all unvented portable kerosene heaters sold or used in the State of Maryland be tested to meet U.L. Subject 647, and bears a U.L. label so certifying. In addition, all units must contain a special warning label stating: "This Device Must Not Be Operated While Unattended."

Consumers are urged to read and carefully follow the detailed manufacturer's instructions and precautions concerning operation, placement, fueling and maintenance which come with each particular unit. Dealers should be asked to explain and demonstrate the safety features of these devices and answer questions.

In particular, consumers are warned to use only pure or "water-clear" (having the transparency of water) kerosene meeting No. 1-K specification. This is a special low-sulfur grade (0.04 percent maximum) kerosene acceptable for use in the U.L. Subject 647 test.

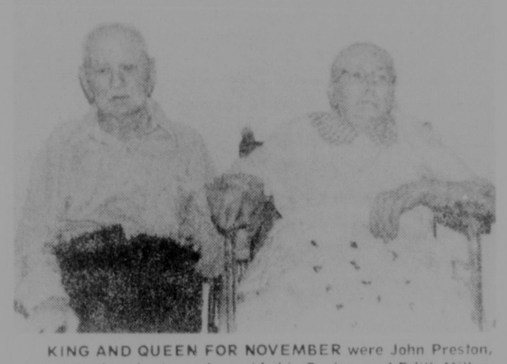
Use of "yellow" or otherwise contaminated kerosene can cause the wick to gum up resulting in incomplete combustion, smoke, odors and other harmful by-products. Manufacturers recommend that a window or door should be left open to the outside with a net clear opening of at least three square feet to prevent possible asphyxiation to occupants. This is especially important in a tightly weatherized house. Consumers are specifically warned to never use gasoline in these units as an explosion can result.

Other user considerations include the potential hazards posed by children and pets near the heaters, improper fuel storage and handling, refueling the heater while still hot or in operation, and provision of safe clearance from combustible materials, especially draperies and unupholstered furniture.

Storage containers for kerosene must be of metal or heavy duty plastic construction approved for petroleum products. All containers one gallon or less must have a child resistant cap. The use of food type plastic or glass (milk or juice) containers is forbidden. In addition, such containers must carry the following warning label as prescribed by the State Department of Health and Mental Hygiene: Danger, kerosene petroleum distillate; harmful or fatal if swallowed; keep away from heat, sparks, or fire; if swallowed, do not induce vomiting; call a physician immediately; use with adequate ventilation; avoid prolonged contact with skin; keep out of reach of children.

Although the new U.L. Subject 647 test is intended to help reduce risk of accidents, the State Fire Prevention Commission, State Fire Marshal's Office and the State Police will continue to monitor state and national trends in order to identify any future unreasonable hazards and to determine if additional changes in the regulation are warranted.

SALES CONTEST WINNER — Lois Beckman Meyers, a representative of Century 21, Haywood Real Estate Agency, has won the Gold Crest Warranty Sales Contest Award, entitling her to a trip to Las Vegas. Mrs. Meyers studied real estate principles and practices and real estate law at Kent State University, Warren, Ohio. While there, she was associated with Anthony Iannucci and Associates. She joined the Haywood's Deep Creek lake office staff in 1978, and is a member of the Cumberland Board of Realtors, the Maryland Association of Realtors, and the National Association of Realtors. She and her husband, Jim, reside in Grantsville.



KING AND QUEEN FOR NOVEMBER were John Preston, 94, a retired coal miner who resided in Barton, and Edith Miller, 94, who was a former Grantsville area resident. He enjoys reading the newspaper, and visiting with those who come to the nursing home to see him. Edith enjoys embroidering and sewing. She is a member of the Mennonite Church, and taught Bible school for many years.

ACTIVITY PERSON for the month of November at the Cuppett-Weeks Nursing Home was Patty Gonder, 54, an Oakland native. Patty has been residing at the nursing home since 1973. She participates in all provided activities of the nursing center. She enjoys embroidery, reading, and visiting other residents of the home.

UL Spokesman Discusses Portable Kerosene Heaters

Portable unvented kerosene heaters have grown in popularity, particularly over the past year. Public sensitivity to energy conservation and the new look and safety features of some units have made it hard for retailers to meet consumer demands.

A spokesman at Underwriters laboratories Inc. (UL) advises consumers to follow the manufacturer's instructions, and to check with local authorities before purchasing unvented portable kerosene heaters. UL investigates kerosene-fired heaters for overall stability and performance in accordance with established safety requirements.

Besides their appeal to energy conscious consumers, the current generation of UL Listed portable unvented kerosene heaters have two new safety features: (1) an automatic mechanism extinguishes the flame when the heater is tipped over completely or even when it is tipped off balance or jarred; and, (2) no hazardous concentration of carbon monoxide can result when the heater is used in accordance with manufacturer's instructions.

Enno Toomsalu, associate managing engineer, responsible for UL testing of kerosene heaters, said, "The safety features on UL Listed kerosene heaters greatly reduce the risk of fire. But consumers who are thinking about purchasing portable kerosene heaters this year should check first with their local authorities. Most cities have codes governing the use of these units in residences."

UL also requires a copy of the manufacturer's operating instructions to be furnished with each listed heater. "Consumers should follow the operating and maintaining instructions contained in the owner's manual to make sure they are operating and maintaining their heaters safely," said Toomsalu. "The consumer's role in the safe use of these heaters is important."

The owner's manual for portable kerosene heaters includes important information about operation, flame adjustment, refueling and lighting procedures, and maintenance. UL also requires specific warnings to the consumer in these instructions, as well as marking on the heaters, about the risk of explosion, high surface temperatures and asphyxiation.

"The risks can be reduced by following these common sense safety precautions," said Toomsalu. "Never use any other fuel than pure kerosene; refill the fuel tank outdoors and never when the heater is operating or still hot from use. Don't use a kerosene heater in an area where there are other flammable gases; and store kerosene only in approved containers, away from living space."

UL's investigation and safety testing of kerosene heaters includes determination that the temperatures on all materials and components do not exceed established limits during prolonged use. UL also tests to see that the temperature of kerosene in the tank remains below its anticipated ignition temperature. "It's important for the consumer to know, however, that the chimney portion of the heaters, through which hot gases escape, may get as hot as 500-600 degrees F," said Toomsalu. "The consumer must be sure there's always someone present when the heater is operating and keep children and combustibles, such as clothing, furniture or newspapers, away from an operating heater.

"Concern has been expressed about smoke, odor and the risk of carbon monoxide buildup," said Toomsalu. "Units meeting UL's requirements do not indicate the development of high concentrations of carbon monoxide. They also burn virtually clean and odorless."

Requirements for UL Listed heaters limit carbon monoxide emission. For an average size heater rated 10,000 BTU/hr. (British Thermal Units), the amount of carbon monoxide that can be produced when the heater operates at the maximum burner setting is less than normally produced by a single burner on a gas cooking range, Toomsalu said. "In an average size room (say 12 ft. by 12 ft., 8 ft. high), one complete change of air is needed every 12 hours in order not to significantly deplete the available oxygen by using the heater. The average residential house undergoes one-half to one and one-half complete air changes through general infiltration every hour," said Toomsalu.

UL Listed heaters are required to be marked for use only in well-ventilated areas. Said Toomsalu, "Consumers can be sure that the area where the heater is operating is well-ventilated by raising a window one inch or keeping the door to adjacent rooms open."

STOCKING STUFFERS TO MAKE

Filling that special someone's stocking with special gifts can be very meaningful, so now is the time to get out those scraps of fabric, empty boxes, buttons and paper you have been saving and create your own "Stocking Stuffers." Try these ideas.

FOR SMALL CHILDREN

*Make bean bag or toss toys from leftover fabric using free form, doll, heart or animal shapes. Sew pieces together and fill with beans. For variety, use heavy clear vinyl as an insert so the beans can actually be seen.

*Make building blocks from cut-down milk cartons with self-adhesive paper and decorated with alphabet letters or numbers.

*Make puppets by tracing the outline of the hand and making a glove. Decorate each fingertip and thumb with a face (using felt, yarn, etc.) Be creative and try making the faces to represent a story such as Snow White.

FOR TEENAGERS AND ADULTS

*Cover inexpensive telephone and address books, small notebooks or photo albums with upholstery fabric or quilted calico.

*Make bookmarks by sewing embroidered trim to a piece of felt or by decorating it with a tassel at one end.

*Make homemade postcards. Use 4"x6" plain cards and decorate one side (pictures, sketch, name, etc.), and add stamp to address side.

*Make a sweat band for the athlete. Sew together (zig-zag) 1¾" terry cloth and decorative ribbon together using head measurements plus 2" for overlap. Use velcro fastener to close.

Enjoy being creative.

FOOD NOTES

Try this economical nutritious casserole—I think you will enjoy it:

THRIFTY-CHICKEN BAKE

2 cups diced cooked chicken or turkey
1 can (10¾ ounces) condensed cream of chicken soup
1 cup water
½ cup milk
½ cup grated cheddar cheese
½ teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon salt
1½ cups quick cooking rice
1 package (10 ounces) frozen cut green beans, thawed
¼ cup dry bread crumbs
2 tablespoons butter or margarine melted

In a greased 1½ quart casserole, blend soup, water and milk. Stir in chicken, cheese, mustard, salt, rice and green beans. Mix bread crumbs with melted butter. Sprinkle over chicken mixture. Bake at 400°F. for 25 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Holiday Seminars To Be Held By Extension Office

"Make a Merry Christmas" is the title of a demonstration which will be presented Thursday, December 10, from 10 a.m. to 12 noon at the Swanton Community Center, and again on Friday, December 11, from 10:30 a.m. to 12 noon at the Garrett County Extension Office, Oakland. Christmas food, decorating, and gift ideas will be shown.

All interested persons are invited to attend, according to Jane G. Rentschler, extension agent.

Bradley Manor

Sharon Elsey met with Cecil Patterson of Community Services, Frank Gant of Frank Gant Architects, Tim Dugan of the county planning office, and Duane Yoder of Community Action Committee on Friday morning.

Patterson said hot tar will be sprayed on the apartment roofs as a temporary repair until permanent repairs can be made.

Gant, whose firm conducted an engineering study of the units last week, expects to complete his report in one week and will notify the tenants organization of his recommendations. He noted that his comments on the structural condition of the units could be a determining factor in whether the units will be rehabilitated or reconstructed. He added that the amount of money available will be the major determining factor.

Nora Fike has returned home after being a patient in Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Brass Quintet Visits NHS

A brass quintet from Frostburg State College performed chamber music Thursday, December 3 for the band and chorus members. The quintet also demonstrated proper playing and singing techniques under the direction of Charles Grab. A question-and-answer session followed.

Band Activities

The band is participating in a fund-raiser by selling tickets for $3.35 that entitles the buyer to receive a medium-sized cheese pizza at Grantsville Fox's Pizza Den. The band will receive $1.00 for each pizza purchased.

The band will also be performing in the two Christmas concerts being held on December 17 and December 23.

MLW

A Maryland Leadership Workshop reunion for 1981 members was held in Kensington on Sunday. Roxane Zuckerman, Spencer Schlosnagle, and Lisa Zuckerman, 1981 members, attended the reunion which was held in the Eatery Room of the White Flint Mall. One hundred and fifty of the 283 members attended.

Christmas Concert

A Christmas concert is being held by the band and chorus members on December 23 for the student body. The public is invited to attend the concert on December 17 at 8 p.m.

Christmas Tea

The annual Christmas Tea will be held December 17 for all of the administration from 10:30 to 1:30. Crafts will be sold.

On Wednesday, December 9, a speaker from the Hobby Habit will visit FHA members during class time to demonstrate the making of various Christmas crafts.

ACC Admissions Representative

Allegany Community College admissions representatives visited Northern on Wednesday, December 9. On Thursday, December 10, Sgt. Hayhurst, Army recruiter, will also visit.

Candy Sale

The Girls' Basketball Team is currently selling candy bars and boxes of M & M's to raise money for the team.

Yearbook

The yearbook staff is taking orders for the 1982 yearbook in homerooms and on lunch shifts for the price of $11.00. One dollar extra will be charged to have a name printed on the front cover of the yearbook.

Plank Selected For Who's Who

Mark Andrew Plank, of Oakland, has been listed in the 1981 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges."

Plank, a senior at Weber State College in Ogden, Utah, joins an elite group of students selected from more than 1300 institutions of higher learning in the United States and around the world.

Campus nominating committees and editors of the annual directory have selected him on the basis of his academic achievement, service to the community, leadership in extracurricular activities and future potential.

Outstanding students have been honored in the annual directory since it was first published in 1934.

Plank is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Plank.

Energy Assistance Grant Monies Received By State

Initial funds for the payment of energy assstance grants to eligible low income households in Maryland have been received from the federal goverment.

According to officials of the Maryland Energy Assistance Program (MEAP) $5.6 million, which represents approximately 25% of the total funds due Maryland this year, became available Monday in local administering agencies for the payment of benefits.

Stephen D. Minnich, MEAP director, said that more than 19,000 households throughout the state have applied for assistance since the program began on November 16.

The energy assistance program, which State officials estimate will serve approximately 75,000 Maryland households this year, is available to renters as well as homeowners who pay for their own heat including coal and wood.

Low-income families who believe that they might be eligible should contact their local administering agency.

MEAP assistance is provided in Garrett County through Garrett County Community Action, Inc. Persons desiring more information may call the office at 334-2151.

GARRETT COMMUNITY COLLEGE

GCC Intersession Courses Slated

For the fourth consecutive year, Garrett Community College students will have an opportunity to "catch up" or "get ahead" on needed credits, or just to try something new during the three-week period of January 5-25 known as Intersession. This year the college has made an effort to plan some courses at times convenient for part-time students in the community, according to W. Cassel Pulliam, coordinator of Intersession. "We are offering more courses than ever before, and are expecting higher enrollments," he stated.

In addition to the required offerings in English composition I and II and Technical Writing, the Humanities Division is offering three courses at the Oakland Center in the afternoons and evenings. These classes will meet twice a week for seven weeks.

Basic Photography (ART 110) will be taught by Jim Crabtree on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 1-4 p.m. at the Oakland Center, with a few sessions meeting at the McHenry campus to enable students to use the dark room facilities.

Fundamentals of Painting (ART 206) will meet on Tuesday evenings and Saturday mornings at the Oakland Center. According to Lane Heise, this class will focus on painting winter landscapes.

Creative Writing (ENG 110), a course that helps students develop techniques of writing fiction, poetry, children's stories, or personal reminisces, will be taught by Joan Crawford on Monday and Wednesday evenings at the Oakland Center.

Another evening course, Aerobic Exercise (DE 119), will be given on Mondays and Wednesdays from 7-8:30 p.m. for nine weeks at the Northern Middle School. Geri Marucci is the instructor.

For business people in the community, a course in Introduction to Micro-Computer Programming (CS 120) will be given Monday-Friday from 8:30-12:30 at the McHenry campus. A first-time business offering, Supervision and Personnel Administration (BUS 220), will be taught by Pat Fischetti Monday-Friday from 1-4 p.m.

Several skiing courses are being offered during this Intersession. Both downhill and cross country skiing will be given in the afternoons from January 5-15. A ski trip to Killington, Vermont, from January 17-23 will offer one credit in either beginning or advanced skiing. This is the ski area where the United States Olympic ski team trains.

Persons interested in receiving further information about these and other Intersession courses may call W. Cassel Pulliam or the Registrar's Office at 387-4666. Students may register for Intersession courses up until and including the first day of class, January 5. Persons taking courses only at the Oakland Center may register at that facility.

Intersession schedules are on racks throughout the county and will be mailed to county residents along with spring semester schedules.

Mining Course To Be Offered

The Continuing Education Division of Garrett Community College will offer two 80-hour Health & Safety Underground Coal Mining courses beginning on Monday, January 4. Sessions will be held Monday through Friday for five weeks at the McHenry Campus of GCC.

There will be both day and evening classes. The day class will meet from 2-6 p.m. and the evening class will meet from 6:30-10:30 p.m. Final tests will be given on Monday, February 8, at 2 p.m. for the day class and 4 p.m. for the evening class.

The courses are limited to 25 participants each and registration will be taken on a first-come, first-serve basis.

For additional information persons may contact the Offices of Continuing Education at 387-4666, ext. 77 or 334-8266.

According to scientists, gold exists on Mars, Mercury, and Venus.

GCC Professor Attends Course On Cognition, Teaching

Dr. George Dailey, professor Garrett Community College, was a recent participant in the National Science Foundation Chautauqua Short Course Program conducted by the American Association for the Advancement of Science. The intent of the Chautauqua program is to provide an opportunity for scholars to communicate new knowledge, new advances, and new concepts and techniques directly to college teachers, and in ways that are immediately beneficial to their teaching.

Dr. Dailey was one of 25 professors throughout the nation competitively selected from a group of 137 applicants to attend a three-day intensive course entitled, Cognition and Teaching, held at the Christian Brothers College, Memphis. The course instructor, Dr. Ruth S. Day, is associate Professor of psychology at Duke University. Dr. Day is a leading national figure in the field of cognitive psychology and much of the course was devoted to her research in this field.

The Cognition and Teaching course was designed to explain various stages in the process of knowing (cognition), and to inquire into the question of how persons learn or know information. Stress was placed on the difference between teaching subject matter and teaching students. Ways in which a subject is presented can, in large measure, determine whether students succeed in learning the material presented because, according to Dr. Day, students have different kinds of cognitive styles for learning, and ways an instructor presents information to students may explain why some students learn the required subject matter and others do not.

Fischetti To Teach Course On Supervision

Pat Fischetti, Oakland, who recently retired as plant manager of the Mt. Lake Park Bausch and Lomb lens facility, will teach an Intersession course at Garrett Community College in January. The course, Supervision and Personnel Administration (BUS 220), will be offered at the McHenry campus Monday through Friday, 1-4 p.m., from January 5-25.

The course is designed for anyone who works in a supervisory capacity, according to Fred Learey chairperson of the Business Division.

Fischetti holds a bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering from Pratt Institute, New York, and a master's degree in mechanical engineering from Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He has also taken various graduate courses at the University of Rochester and at New York University.

Before joining Bausch and Lomb in 1962, Fischetti was a manager of value engineering with General Dynamics Corporation, a section engineer for Merganthaler Linotype, and as assistant project engineer for Sperry Gyroscope Company. During those years he also was an evening instructor in physics at Pratt Institute in Brooklyn.

Family Of Five Homeless After Sunday Blaze

A Garrett County family of five suddenly became homeless Sunday when their combination trailer-wood frame home was destroyed by fire along with most of its contents.

Oakland, Gorman and Bayard firefighters were dispatched by Garrett Central Alarm to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. James Sisler on the Mason School Road at 11:34 a.m. However, the structure was fully involved in flames upon their arrival. Also residing in the home were James A. Sisler, 19, Jennifer Sisler, 15, and Rose Fries, 19.

Home at the time of the fire were Mr. and Mrs. Sisler and their daughter and son-in-law, Joyce and Tommy Ridder. Sisler told Robert H. Shimer, fire investigator for Garrett and Allegany counties, that the four were watching television when they noticed the lights go dim and then observed smoke in the hall near a rear bedroom.

Shimer stated they found the fire burning near the wall of a bedroom, but their attempts to extinguish it were futile. They immediately phoned Garrett Central Alarm and attempted to remove personal items from the residence, but Sisler told Shimer that the heat and smoke became so intense, they were unable to make more than just a few trips back into the home.

The mobile home, which had been placed on the lot in 1967, had been remodeled and two wood frame wings had been added.

Shimer determined that the fire originated in the area of an electric heater. He said that an extension cord that was being used to supply current to the heater had become overheated, causing it to short out and subsequently ignite nearby combustibles.

Sisler stated that he had no insurance on the property and damage estimates exceed $15,000.

Firefighters remained on the scene until about 3 p.m. Also responding were the county air cascade vehicle and the equipment truck from the Southern Rescue Squad. There were no injuries.

Members of the Sisler family are reportedly staying with friends and relatives in the area. Sisler is employed by the Chessie System. Jennifer is a sophomore at Southern High School.

FAMILY LEFT HOMELESS — Volunteers assist in the cleanup of what remains of the residence of Mr. and Mrs. James Sisler after the home was destroyed by fire on Sunday. The combination mobile home wood frame structure, located on the Mason School Road, was completely involved in flames upon the arrival of firefighters from Oakland, Gorman and Bayard. The cause of the blaze was determined to be an overheated extension cord which was supplying power to an electric heater. See story.

Road Conditions Cause Mishaps, Injury To Five

Snow-covered and icy roads in Garrett County this week caused hazardous driving conditions that resulted in several accidents and injury to at least five persons.

Four persons sustained minor injuries in two separate accidents Thursday night.

Maryland State Police report that, at 4:20 p.m., a vehicle driven by Linda Bosley, 34, of Friendsville, traveling northbound on White Rock Road, slid on a patch of ice, crossed the center line and struck a southbound vehicle head-on. The other vehicle was operated by Gary Hodeheaver, also of Friendsville, and State Police in McHenry report there were several passengers in the vehicle with Mrs. Bosley.

Police said only one lane of the road was plowed open, snow was falling heavily and high winds caused a "white-out." Garrett County Central Alarm dispatched the Friendsville Fire Department and Northern

Fund Drive For Hospital Project Nearing The $200,000 Mark

Approximately 1,000 donations and/or pledges, amounting to just under $200,000, have been received by the Garrett County Memorial Hospital to fund a portion of Project G, the building and renovation project underway at the facility. The local fundraising effort, which has a goal of $250,000, was begun just three months ago and involved sending requests for donations to area residents, businesses and organizations.

The bulk of the $8 million project is being funded through the sale of general obligation bonds and an Appalachian Regional Commission grant. In order to obtain Certificate of Need for the project from the state, however, a portion of the project was required to be funded via a local fund drive.

According to Annette Mitko, who is in charge of collecting and recording all donations, 21% of the donations and pledges have come from the Oakland area, 21% from the rest of Garrett County, 10% from surrounding West Virginia communities, 11% from Pennsylvania and the remainder from 12 other states.
